BUDDY BAUER WINS DERBY; BACKERS GET $55.20 FOR $2

25,000 Persons See Bradley Entry in Surprise Upset; Whiskery and Osmand Finish Second and Third.

WINNER FAILS TO LOWER 1926 MARK

Mile and Quarter at Fairmount Is Covered in 2:05 2-5, Bettering Time Made in Kentucky Classic

By CARLOS F. HURD.

FAIRMOUNT PARK, June 4.—The Spirit of St. Louis may be a spirit of the air, but the fancy of St. Louis still turns to the green turf and its encircling track. St. Louis furnished the greater part of the throng, estimated as numbering more than 25,000, which saw the second annual Fairmount Derby, at the Collinsville track this afternoon, won by E. R. Bradley's Buddy Bauer.

The excitement of the $24,400 event, the fifth race in the day's program, lay chiefly in the surprise furnished by Buddy Bauer's victory over Harry Payne Whitney's Whiskery, winner of this year's Kentucky Derby, and Osmand, the Widener horse ridden by the noted jockey, Earl Sande. These two finished second and third, but the inner had a clear half length lead at the end of the mile and one-quarter course.

Pays $55.20 for $2.

To what extent calculations were upset by the result, may be seen in the announcement posted on the "contribution refund" board after the event. It stated, in the quaint phraseology of the certificate booths that a $2 "contribution" would pay the contributor a "refund" of $55.20, or more than 27 to 1.

Those who "contributed" in such fashion as to express confidence in Whiskery and Osmand got no "refunds" unless they chose them respectively for place and show, in which case their reimbursement was $5.70, or $3 on the $2, which is the smallest amount of money at which the "sellers" will look. It was also the amount at which they looked with far the greatest frequency in yesterday not heavily-plunging crowd of "contributors."

Time Beats Kentucky Derby.

The time, two minutes, five and 1-5 seconds, was two seconds slower than that of Haste's victory in the first Fairmount Derby last year, was taken as showing that the day's sunshine and breeze did not quite complete their job of perfecting the track. But the day was a perfect one for spectators in both sun and shade, and the time was better than that of last month's Kentucky Derby, 2:06. Six of the seven Fairmount contenders were in the Kentucky race.

It was a slowly gathering crowd, as compared with that of last year, and the track management say that it fell several thousand short of last year's number, which it records as more than 32,000.

But it was a throng which blocked Collinsville road at the peak hours of its coming and departure, and which gathered denser in the stand and along the rails for the hour before 4:15, when the selected 3-year-olds went to the post.

Summery Crowd Attends.

Among the early comers, felt hats and fur-collared cloaks were the rule, and the women's coats remained on until the warmth of mid-afternoon brought most of them off and displayed the bright summer fabrics beneath. The men who came late, more than the early comers, remembered that straw hat day had preceded Derby day, and when the crowd had all gathered, it looked summery enough for the sort of a June.

Those who sat still in the shade of the grandstand, and even in the sunny spaces of the clubhouse balcony, had no difficulty in keeping cool. The seemingly greater number who had to use the stairways between races, to arrange the matter of their "contributions," found it a fairly warm day.

Along the rail, the crowd, stand-

WORTH $6,000,000, LIVED IN POVERTY

Chicago Woman, Now Under Mental Treatment, Has $1,500,000 in Cash.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, June 4.—"Chicago's Hetty Green," Mrs. Ida Sawyer Garrett, lived in abject poverty in a small Chicago loop hotel, disregarding an estate valued at $6,230,000, a Probate Court inventory disclosed today.

A few months ago Mrs. Garrett, who now is 74 years old, was found in a cheap room in the hotel, half starved and dressed in frayed and tattered garments. Friends who had known her since childhood and when she was known as "Chicago's Hetty Green" and "Belle of the North Side," rushed to her assistance and despite her protestations, they placed her in the St. Luke's Hospital for mental treatment and observation.

Today, Abel Davis, conservator for her property, filed an inventory in Probate Court which showed Mrs. Garrett the owner of $1,500,000 in cash, $4,500,000 worth of real estate, $190,000 worth of stocks and bonds and notes for $40,000.

The Garret fortune dates back to pre-Civil War days when Mrs. Garrett's grandfather, Justine Butterfield, was appointed Federal Land Commissioner for Illinois, defeating Abraham Lincoln for the appointment. At his death, he left numerous tracts of Chicago real estate which have doubled in value again and again.

Mrs. Garrett has no near relatives.

A story of Mrs. Garrett's career appears in the Sunday Magazine of the Post-Dispatch today.

MEXICAN ACCUSED OF KILLING FORMER FOOTBALL STAR HELD

By the Associated Press.

MEXICO CITY, June 4.—Dispatches from Guadalajara say that Javier Diaz, charged with shooting and killing Arthur Brewer, an American coal merchant and former Harvard football star, has been arrested.

The shooting was reported in press dispatches as having occurred on Wednesday in a quarrel over business matters. Unless instructions are received from the Department of State at Washington, the American Embassy will make no representations, since it is without official information.

Brewer had lived in Mexico for a long time, engaged in mining and business enterprizes at Guadalajara.

'DIAMOND JACK' ALTERIE SHOT

GLENWOOD SPRINGS, Col., June 4.—Louis (Diamond Jack) Alterie, once a Chicago gang leader and now a Colorado "Dude" ranch owner and rodeo promoter, was near death in a hospital here tonight from a gunshot wound. He was shot mysteriously this morning at his ranch near Sweetwater, 35 miles from here.

Alterie refused to say who fired the shot. Sheriff George Winter and a posse were searching for Alterie's brother, Bert Varian.

89 LIVES LOST IN CLOUDBURST IN KENTUCKY HILLS

Property Loss Set at $25,000,000 by Red Cross After Survey in Eastern Part of State.

RELIEF WORK OPENS IN STRICKEN AREA

Liberal Gifts to Mississippi Flood Sufferers Had Been Given by Citizens Who Now Must Be Aided.

By the Associated Press.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., June 4.—Communication lines, broken in the cloudburst of Sunday night, are being re-established to bring into Red Cross headquarters belated reports of the devastation wrought throughout the whole eastern end of the State by raging mountain streams that raced through narrow valleys in the night, sweeping all before them.

89 Deaths Reported.

Latest estimates show that 125,000 persons, one-sixth the total number made homeless in the Mississippi Valley, were affected by the storm and the flood that followed. Eighty-nine deaths have been reported and upward of 20,000 men have been thrown out of employment. Many more are homeless.

To meet this situation, the Red Cross already has sent relief trains and workers into the area and is conducting a statewide campaign for funds. No definite goal has been set in the drive for funds, but Lewis H. Kilpatrick, National Red Cross disaster director, estimated the property damage at $25,000,000 and, he said, "the loss of these people is their need."

Fresh from the Mississippi flood area, where he had charge of relief work in Kentucky and Tennessee, Kilpatrick has established his headquarters here, with distribution centers at Lexington and Ashland which will be the contact points for the Kentucky and Big Sandy valleys.

Wall of Water Drowns Many.

Most of those who lost their lives were drowned when they were unable to get out of the path of the great wall of water which in some instances was reported 75 feet high.

Normally inaccessable, a great area whose chief mode of travel is muleback became isolated from the world. Mining and lumber camps and villages that dotted the mountain sides became centers of distress and suffering. Roadways, built along the narrow creek valleys became unpassable and railroad lines were washed out.

For days the extent of the disaster was not known to the outside world.

Word from Roxana and Elsiecoal told of the pitiful conditions there. Children, scantily clad, searched through the deep deposit of mud and debris for lost clothing while parents dug into the mud banks to recover household furnishings.

Hazard reported today that the damage there alone would reach $1,000,000. Flood waters inundated the town to a depth of many feet.

To prevent the spread of disease, the State Board of Health has taken over direction of the sanitary and health conditions. Dr. A. T. McCormick is in charge of this work. Appointed by Gov. Fields as chairman of a special committee to co-operate with the Red Cross, he has despatched nurses and doctors to the district.

THREE FILMS SHOWN AS ONE

Triple Screen Used by French Director in New Achievement.

PARIS, June 4.—A new technical achievement in film production was shown for the first time at the Paris Opera the other day. Abel Gance, the French director, in making "Napoleon," used three synchronised cameras, made three separate films, and threw them on a triple screen 16 yards long with three synchronised projecting machines. The use of the triple screen gives endless possibilities to the cinema. M. Gance in "Napoleon" used it to show Napoleon in the central screen, a surprint of Josephine's face on the map of the world on the right and the army marching to victory on the left.

CHAMBERLIN AND LEVINE LEAVE COAST AND HEAD ACROSS OCEAN FOR "SOMEWHERE IN EUROPE"

Plane, Pilot, and Passenger on Perilous Adventure.

THE Bellanca airplane Columbia, which if all is well, is now speeding across the Atlantic Ocean, piloted by Clarence D. Chamberlin and carrying the chief backer of the enterprise, Charles A. Levine.

CROSS OUT OVER OPEN OCEAN AT 4:13 P. M.

DUE OVER IRELAND ABOUT 1 P. M. TODAY

"Columbia" Takes 47 Minutes Longer Than Lindbergh Took in Reaching Cape Race, N. F.

NEW YORK, June 5 (Sunday).—The Cunard liner Antonio, in a radio message sent when she was about 100 miles southwest of Ireland, reported overcast skies, misty and rain, with a southwest wind and slightly falling barometer, early today.

By the Associated Press.

ST. JOHN'S, N. F., June 4.—The Bellanca Monoplane "Columbia" piloted by Clarence D. Chamberlin, which started from Roosevelt field, New York, today at 6:05 a. m. Eastern daylight saving time (4:05 a. m. St. Louis time) passed out to sea over Cape Race, N. F., the eastern point of land of this island at 6:13 p. m. (4:13 p. m. St. Louis time.)

Clear weather with favoring west winds attended the Chamberlin - Levine transatlantic flight in its second and most hazardous phase, when the plane headed out over the ocean in the 1900-mile race to the Irish coast, according to radio reports from ships in the North Atlantic.

Due Off Ireland Today.

Calculations based on an average speed of 100 miles an hour indicate that the "Columbia" would reach the Irish coast about 3 p. m. Eastern daylight saving time tomorrow (1 p. m. St. Louis time), provided Chamberlin holds her on the great circle course.

As the airplane carries no radio and is flying well north of steamship lanes it was considered improbable that it would be reported again until close to Ireland.

When Chamberlin headed out to sea he had completed the first leg of his flight in 12 hours and 15 minutes. Although he left the Newfoundland coast 90 minutes earlier than Lindbergh had done, Chamberlin was 47 minutes behind the time the "Spirit of St. Louis" took to make the first 1000 miles of the journey. The Bellanca plane left New York an hour and 40 minutes earlier than Lindbergh and cut off nearly 100 miles by heading

HELD UP IN ROOM AT HOTEL; ROBBED OF $2200 IN GEMS

F. T. Thomson Bound and Gagged by Three Men, Who Take His Diamonds, $35 in Cash.

Francis T. Thomson, who lives at the Melbourne Hotel, was held up in his apartment there last night by three men who bound and gagged him and escaped with jewelry which he values at $2200 and $35 in cash.

Thomson was preparing to go out for dinner at 6:15 o'clock, when the robbers knocked on the unlocked door of his thirteenth-floor apartment, pushed in, displayed two revolvers and ordered him to hold up his hands. Suspecting a joke, Thomson was slow to obey, and the robbers repeated the order, with oaths.

His hands were then tied behind his back with heavy automobile tape, which a robber took from a pocket. His mouth was gagged with the tape. He was robbed of $35, a four-carat diamond ring, valued by him at $1600, and a diamond-cluster stickpin, valued at $600. After locking him in the bathroom, the robbers departed.

Releasing himself, Thomson pounded on the door and shouted until let out by a hotel clerk, summoned by occupants of an adjoining apartment. No one had seen the robbers depart. A maid, Marie Kelenen, had seen three men walking toward Thomson's apartment just prior to the holdup.

Thomson said the robbers were about 30 years old. The jewelry was insured.

Thomson, a bachelor, 43 years old, has warehouse interests. A permanent guest at the Melbourne, he returned there three weeks ago after visiting for several months with his father at Los Angeles.

John Drew Rallies From Fever.

By the Associated Press.

FRENCH AVIATORS HOP OFF ON 2-LAP HOP TO TOKIO

Coste and Rignot Are Bidden Farewell by Lindbergh at Le Bourget.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, June 4.—Dieudonne Coste and Capt. Rignot, French long-distance aviators, whose record of 3415 miles from Paris to Djask, Persia, was broken by Capt. Charles Lindbergh, started today on a two-lap air journey to Tokio.

When they hopped off this morning they were bidden farewell by Capt. Lindbergh at Le Bourget, where the American flyer wished them good luck.

The French flyers planned to make their first hop to Chita, Siberia, which they hoped to reach in less than 40 hours, and then, after taking on fuel at Chita, to go on to Tokio.

Bertaud on Mail Plane.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, June 4.—Lloyd W. Bertaud, who had hoped to be the companion of Chamberlin in the "Columbia" over the Atlantic tonight, was awaiting better weather at Hadley Field, N. J., before taking off with his regular load of air mail for Cleveland. He arrived at Hadley Field from Cleveland this afternoon.

COMMANDER BYRD EXPECTS CHAMBERLIN TO SUCCEED

"No Reason Why He Cannot Equal Lindbergh's Achievement," Polar Flyer Says.

By the Associated Press.

ROOSEVELT FIELD, N. Y. June 4.—Commander Richard E. Byrd, who flew over the North Pole and who also expects to hop off for France in his giant Fokker plane America, said Chamberlin has "an excellent chance for making his goal." "Chamberlin is an excellent flyer," he said, "and there is no reason why he cannot equal Lindbergh's achievement."

By Wireless to the Associated Press.

U. S. CRUISER MEMPHIS, June 4.—"I do hope he makes it," said Capt. Lindbergh when informed that the Bellanca plane Columbia, had started from New York on its trans-atlantic flight.

Admiral Burrage communicated with all the ships in his jurisdiction, instructing them to keep the sharpest lookout for the Columbia.

BUDAPEST, June 4.—The Hungarian Government has taken steps to provide landing facilities for Clarence Chamberlin and to give him a welcoming reception if his plane lands here.

TRAIN KILLS CHURCH TEACHER ON PICNIC

Sidney Stokes Sr. Struck on Rock Island Tracks When Auto Stalls.

While his Sunday school class, which he had taken to St. Louis County for an outing, awaited his return yesterday afternoon, Sidney Stokes Sr., 59 years old, of 6117 Adeline avenue, was killed in his automobile at 4 o'clock by a Rock Island freight train at a grade crossing near Maryland Heights, six miles northwest of Clayton.

Stokes, a buildign contractor, had left 15 or 20 members of a class of International Bible students on an errand and had just started up a grade to the Rock Island tracks when he saw the westbound freight train bearing down on him.

Witnesses said he put on his brakes and killed the engine as his car started across the tracks. The locomotive, in charge of Engineer V. H. Roussin of Eldon, Mo., dragged Stokes and the machine, a touring car, a quarter of a mile before the train could be stopped.

The accident occurred at the crossing of a newly constructed road and deputies reported to Coroner Bopp that it was unguarded by warning signals.

Funeral services for Stokes will be held Tuesday at 9 a. m. from the Bopp undertaking establishment in Kirkwood. His widow and a son, Sidney Jr., an architect, survive him.

LINDBERGH SAILS FOR HOME ABOARD CRUISER MEMPHIS

Cherbourg Bids Him Good-by With Cries of "When Are You Coming Back?" as Ship Heads Out to Sea.

AMERICAN FLAGS DECK ROADWAYS

He Flies From Paris to Lessay, Then Goes to Sailing Port, 40 Miles Away, by Auto.

By Wireless to the Associated Press.

U. S. S. MEMPHIS, June 4.—"It was a glorious send-off," Capt. Charles A. Lindbergh remarked as the Memphis steamed away from Cherbourg at 4:30 o'clock this afternoon.

The farewell receptions were highly gratifying, but his actual start for home, as the Memphis headed for Hampton Roads at 23 knots was the best part of the adventure.

After formalities aboard the crusier, Lindbergh, escorted by Commander Bagley, went to his quarters. There were flowers heaped in every corner. An invitation from President Coolidge asking Lindbergh and his mother to stay as guests of the temporary White House was handed to the aviator as soon as he reached his quarters.

A squadron of seaplanes accompanied the Memphis for nearly an hour, and the last glimpse he had of the tricolor was as the planes dipped picturesquely in final good by.

A Chance to Rest.

The pilot of the monoplane, "Spirit of St. Louis," aboard the Memphis, was able for the first time since he glided down on Le Bourget field to go to bed without thinking of what ceremony awaited him on the morrow. Also for the first time in a fortnight he was removed from the dangerous temptation to take chances with strange aircraft.

The aviator occupies the quarters of Commander David W. Bagley, chief of staff to Vice-Admiral Guy Burrage, commander in chief of American naval forces in European waters whose flagship is the Memphis.

They include a stateroom, shower bath and cabin on the starboard side of the main deck. Lindbergh will take his meals at Admiral Burrage's table.

Flies From Paris to Lessay.

Lindbergh after a brief parting with Ambassador Herrick and others took off from le Bourget field at 9:22 a. m. in a French Brequet plane with Sergt. Maurice Charpentier as his flying companion. An escort of 20 planes rose with him, two of which followed him to Cherbourg. He landed at Lessay field 40 miles from Cherbourg, to which he proceeded by automobile.

The reception in the ancient square in front of Cherbourg's town hall was vociferous. The fourteenth century houses, sandwiched between the more modern structures, recalling the engravings of olden times. In every window there were as many heads as could be crowded in. Here and there in the throng were ancient head dresses.

The homage of the little hamlet of Lessay, where he landed from his Paris flight this morning impressed him by its touching simplicity. He was so much pleased by the greeting he received there that he remained to lunch with the Mayor. The five firemen the tiny village boasts turned out to a man in his honor.

All along the 40 mile road from Lessay to Cherbourg he passed through villages flying the Stars and Stripes; he was cheered by the peasants and kisses were thrown to him by the children. So it went on to Cherbourg town hall, then to the maritime station, where he was asked to dedicate a plaque to commemorate his flight over Normandy on his way to Le Bourget.

A Touching Good-By.

The channel basin, when Lindbergh looked on it from the deck of the steamer Seine, from which he descended to the launch of the Memphis was a blaze of color in his honor. The steamers at the docks, the motor boats in the channel and in the offing were gay with bunting. There was not a craft afloat that was not utilized for sight-seeing purposes when Lindbergh finally climbed down from the Seine in the flying togs he wore on his transatlantic trip to the launch. Every whistle in the harbor saluted him.

Then the crowd set up almost in unison the kindest of all parting cries: "When are you coming back, Lindbergh? When are you coming back?"

Lindbergh obtained permission from Washington to have B. F. Mahoney, president of the company which built the "Spirit of St. Louis" accompany him on his trip on the Memphis.

out to sea at Cape Race, N. F., while Lindbergh went on to St. John's to get his bearings because of dense fog at Cape Race.

Lindbergh's Experience.

Lindbergh's running time till then was 11 hours and 23 minutes. Nothing more was heard of Lindbergh until a German steamer sighted him off the coast of Ireland when he had almost completed the 1900-mile water jump from Newfoundland.

Ireland Should Sight the "Columbia" About 1 P. M. Today

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, June 4.—The Bellanca monoplane "Columbia" is over the north Atlantic ocean tonight, headed east and with the farthest European point it can reach the objective in an effort to wrest the world record for long distance flying from Charles Lindbergh. Rome, Berlin, Constantinople and Leningrad were mentioned as possible landing places.

Tail winds were helping the plane's early success and promised to assist all the way across the ocean.

$5000 if Flight Is a Success.

Ralph Jonas, president of the Brooklyn Chamber of Commerce, announced tonight that he would give Chamberlin $5000 if the flight is successful.

The Brooklyn Chamber of Commerce offered a prize of $15,000 late in April, but the 30-day limit set on that offer canceled it before Chamberlin took off.

It is understood that $25,000 will be paid Mrs. Chamberlin in case of accident to her husband.

At the controls of the "Columbia" is Chamberlin, of Denison, Ia., 32-year-old former cowboy, army aviator, and holder with Bert Acosta of the world endurance record of 51 hours, 11 minutes and 20 seconds, which was made in this very plane.

Beside him in the cabin is Charles A. Levine, his financial backer, 30 years old, who began life as a stable boy, then became wealthy as a junk dealer. He is an amateur flyer, but whether he he could be of practical assistance to Chamberlin is a matter of speculation.

Reports of Progress.

Two hours after leaving Roosevelt Field the "Columbia" was sighter over Massachusetts heading out to sea. At noon she was seen above Yarmouth, N. S., and from there her progress was reported at frequent intervals.

The first part of the journey was made against head winds and to Yarmouth, N. S., the average speed of the "Columbia" was only 68 miles an hour. At that time Chamberlin was more than an hour and a half behind the flying time of Lindbergh.

When Nova Scotia was reached, however, speed jumped up to 100 miles an hour and it was reported that the flyers had picked up a 20-mile tail wind.

Arrival Hour Reckoned.

If the 100-mile rate should be maintained throughout the rest of the journey the Columbia would reach the Irish coast about 3 p. m. Eastern daylight saving time tomorrow afternoon (1 p. m. St. Louis time).

If the destination is Paris, that city would be reached on the 100-mile an hour schedule about 8 p. m. Eastern daylight saving time tomorrow (6 p. m. St. Louis time), which would be 1 a. m. Monday, French time. If it then continued to Rome, the plane should arrive seven hours later. If the course were laid from Ireland straight to Berlin the flyers should arrive there tomorrow midnight, Eastern daylight saving time (10 p. m. St. Louis time).

Going Slower Than Lindbergh.

The reason Chamberlin is making slower time than Lindbergh was ascribed by John Carisi, who replaced B. M. Bellanca with the Wright Aeronautical Co., to Chamberlin's desire to avoid spurts and high flying speed for the sake of economy on the gasoline supply.

"Chamberlin is holding the pace down," said Carisi, "in order to get distance, not speed. He told me before he left that he wanted to make the gas hold out to the last drop."

Chamberlin's flight aroused special interest because of the element of mystery that enshrouded it until the very last moment it was not known that Levine, who is managing director of the company which owns the "Columbia," was going along. Absolute secrecy had been maintained as to the man who would accompany Chamberlin and even Levine's own wife did not know of his intention.

When the plane was ready Levine hopped into the cockpit beside Chamberlin. Somebody said something about his taking a little test flight. Mrs. Levine showed some concern, but was reassured by friends. Mrs. Chamberlin was not at the field, having said goodbye to her husband at a Garden City hotel.

The plane started down the runway. Someone cried "They're off." There was excitement, confusion, people ran here and there and called unintelligible messages. The plane slowed and stopped, was hauled back to the runway's top. Levine was still in the cabin. Again the plane roared down the runway.

This time it lifted gently into the air, climbed steadily for altitude and then headed off toward Massachusetts.

Mrs. Levine became hysterical and was led sobbing to an automobile which drove rapidly away. The "Columbia" diminished in the distance and disappeared.

Mrs. Chamberlin, in her suite in the Hotel Pennsylvania, where she plans to wait for a cable message informing her where the Columbia has landed, said she would sail to join her husband as soon as word was received.

Mrs. Levine, at her home at Rockaway Beach, said she would embark on the first ship available when her husband cabled.

Chicken and Oranges.

Mrs. Chamberlin provided 10 chicken sandwiches on toasted rye bread, half a dozen oranges, of which her husband is especially fond; two thermos flasks containing hot chicken soup, the other hot coffee as the aviators' food supply.

Letters from Col. Theodore Roosevelt identifying the flyers to European bankers and a letter of introduction to John Drake of the Travelers' Club, Paris were taken by the flyers.

Wireless messages have been sent to all ships at sea by the Radio Corporation and the United States Government to report to the nearest station the sighting of the plane.

The North German Lloyd, the Hamburg-American and Stinnes lines also have instructed their east and west bound steamships to be on the lookout for the Columbia.

It was just two weeks ago this evening that Capt. Charles A. Lindbrgh dropped down on Le Bourget Field at Paris, the first man ever to fly there from New York.

BERLIN PREPARING BIG WELCOME IF AMERICANS LAND

German Capital Goes on Assumption Flyers Will Arrive There Late Sunday Night.

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, June 4.—If Clarence D. Chamberlin, pilot of the Bellanca plane Columbia, has any destination other than Berlin in mind, Government and municipal officials and officers of the Aero Club do not appear to be aware of it.

Throughout the day police headquarters was the scene of feverish preparation for the American aviators' reception which now is regarded here as likely at a late hour Sunday night.

If the American should arrive in Berlin, a boisterous welcome will await them as the Central Government and the municipality of Berlin have instructed all their departmental chiefs to go the limit in planning a reception.

U. S. Ambassador Makes Plans.

American Ambassador Jacob G. Schurman has been in active consultation with German officials and has informed them he will take care of the American airmen into his care immediately should they set feet on German soil.

Whatever Chamberlin's destination may be, officials of Luftlansa, the German Aerial League, hoped he will at least reach Berlin as landing conditions west of the German capital are not especially adapted for night flying.

Points such as Cologne, Emden, Bremen, Hamburg and Hanover, merely have ordinary harbor lighting facilities with rather weak searchlights and they are not connected with one another by a regular pathway of lights such as obtains in Berlin and Moscow.

The American flyers would of course have the benefit of coast lights in addition to the skyrockets and fires which Lufthansa is preparing, but all this must needs be comparatively primitive when compared with the ideal night flying conditions prevailing to the east as far as Moscow.

Police Prepare for Landing.

Tempelhofer Field, where it is hoped that the Columbia will land should it come to Berlin, measures 4500 feet by 3600 feet, while Staaken, Berlin's second airdrome, has a field 3333 feet by 3300 feet.

To insure safe landing conditions at Tempelhofer, the police plan to form a cordon five men deep around the area necessary for a landing. Beyond this will be room for a welcoming committee, consisting of representatives of the Government, and municipality, Lufthansa, the Aero Club and the press.

Should the Columbia continue eastward in the direction of Moscow, as has been suggested in some dispatches from the United States, the best flying route would be by way of Danzig and Koenigsberg. There is a revolving searchlight every mile and three quarters and a stationary light ever three miles. This makes night flying so safe that Lufthansa starts a plane to Moscow every night.

Moscow is equipped with night lighting, but the stretch from Koenigsberg by way of Smolensk to Moscow does not have a lighting system such as from Berlin to Koenigsberg. It also is possible to fly from Berlin to Moscow by way of Warsaw, but here, too, there is night lighting only at the Warsaw flying field and not on the way. Should the plane go southeast of Berlin it will find good airdomes with night lighting at Prague and Vienna, but no light paths en route.

Berlin Without Definite Word.

The possibility that the flight may have Berlin as its goal has caused great enthusiasm and municipal and governmental authorities are vying with civic and sporting societies in an effort to give a worthy reception to the Americans.

Notwithstanding that German officials up to late tonight were still without definite word respecting Chamberlin's actual intentions, his coming here is considered as a foregone conclusion.

Air Trip to Europe Levine's Life Ambition

Chamberlin's Backer, Who Started as Stable Boy and Then Became Junk Dealer, Is Veteran Aviation Enthusiast.

By Leased Wire From New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, June 4.—Charles A. Levine, wealthy backer of Clarence D. Chamberlin, today started on his life ambition when he accompanied Chamberlin in the Bellanca Monoplane Columbia on a non-stop flight to Europe.

Levine always wanted to make an air trip to Europe. A veteran aviation enthusiast for years, Levine has tried several times to ally himself with a transatlantic air expedition.

Levine, 30 years old, made himself a financial power eight years ago, by opportunities created by the war.

All his life the man has been taking chances, big chances. His first employment was as stable boy at the race tracks. When he got too big and heavy for that, he turned to buying metal junk.

Dealt in Munitions Material.

Levine was a comparatively rich man when the United States entered the war. The Government appreciated his ability to furnish munitions materials and made tremendous contracts with him. He still is in controversy with the Government over some of them.

More than a year ago Levine contracted for a plane which he believed could make the New York-Paris flight, but it did not come up to specifications. His intimate friends knew he offered Rene Fonak $25,000 for the privilege of stowing away in the tail of the Sikorsky plane which crashed at the start of its Paris flight last year and burned up, ending the lives of the two men in the cabin, back of which Levine wanted to hide himself.

Promoted Commercial Flying Firm.

Levine has been the promoter and executive of several commercial flying companies. He was the actual head of the North American Airways of Cleveland, which was organized to take air mail contracts; its bids were rejected by Postmaster-General New.

The Columbia Aircraft Corporation was organized for the purpose of making a New York-Paris flight. When the Bellanca plane proved its fitness for transatlantic flight by staying in the air over 51 hours this spring he discarded Bert Acosta, one of the two pilots who drove it through the test, and hired Lloyd Bertaud, on the ground that there must be at least one "experienced pilot" in the plane over the Atlantic. He quarreled with Bertaud over every possible point of difference that could come between them and the quarrels got into the courts.

Took Lessons in Flying.

Meantime he started a long series of test flights which were really lessons in flying given to him by Chamberlin, in whom he had especial confidence after the skillful manner in which Chamberlin landed the crippled Bellanca plane at Mineola May 21, after taking up Levine's 9-year-old daughter, Eloyse, and the 9-year-old daughter of Ralph Jonas, chairman of the Brooklyn Chamber of Commerce.

Levine revealed to friends before his departure that Capt. Lindbergh at one time tried to buy the Columbia, but his offer was refused.

When Levine, hatless and in ordinary business clothes, stepped suddenly into the monoplane and hopped off with Chamberlin, he left behind a letter to his young wife, begging her forgiveness and explaining that to make such a flight had been the crowning ambition of his life.

Didn't Know Husband Was Going.

Mrs. Levine had no idea that her husband was to go on the flight and when she saw him step into the cockpit and fly away she fainted. When she was revived she was handed a letter from her husband by former State Senator Charles G. Lockwood.

She was reached by telephone at her summer home by the Associated Press shortly after noon and told that the Columbia had been seen passing safely over Yarmouth. She expressed delight and supreme confidence in her husband and Chamberlin.

She said she could not tell about the letter because of its personal nature, but from other sources it was learned the letter was principally a plea for forgiveness for having caused her anxiety. It also expressed a confidence in the flight, which Levine wrote would mean to him the realization of a life long dream.

Levine Leaves His Will.

Levine made his will and "took every other step a man ordinarily takes before going on an ocean voyage," his attorney, Samuel Hartman, said.

In a letter left with Hartman, the attorney was told to "get ready to meet me on the other side."

"This will no doubt surprise you," the letter said, "but we will make the flight. When we get to Italy I'll cable you the first thing and we will dine with Mussolini."

The letter gave Hartman final instructions as how to conduct his affairs in Levine's absence, Hartman said. Some of the instructions were of a personal nature, but, according to Hartman, the flight backer "did not forget a number of charities to which he has contributed thousands of dollars."

"My instructions," the attorney said, "were to continue them irrespective of the outcome of the flight."

The attorney added Levine had been quietly going about making preparations for the flight, particularly since the arrangements affecting Mrs. Chamberlin fell through. An earlier plan was for Mrs. Chamberlin to accompany her husband as a relief pilot, but this was canceled owing to the illness of Mrs. Chamberlin's mother.

AERO LEAGUE EXPERTS SAY ROUTE INDICATES THAT ROME IS 'COLUMBIA'S' OBJECTIVE

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, June 4.

THE Transatlantic Flights Committee of the Aero League of America in a statement tonight made the guess that Clarence Chamberlin would head the Bellanca Monoplane Columbia for Rome. The opinion was based on the progress between New York and New Foundland, and statements made to Col. A. A. Anderson, a member of the committee, by Chamberlin yesterday.

Col. Anderson, wealthy artist, painted the head of Columbia on the plane. The committee, meeting tonight, plotted the probable course which its information indicates would be followed, and found that the plane would be likely to reach the French coast south of Brest.

The great circle route from New York to Berlin is 3939 miles and the modified great circle route 40 miles farther. Rome, by the great circle route, is 4240 miles from New York.

If the Bellanca plane heads for Berlin it was figured by the hydrographers that it probably would come within sight of Ireland at London-Derry then pass over Newcastle, England and Bremerhaven, Germany.

The great circle route to Rome probably would take the plane across the French coast between St. Nazaire and La Rochelle, thence over Monte Carlo and to the Italian coast near Leghorn.

$35,000 FOR PACIFIC FLIGHT POSTED BY HONOLULU MAN

By the Associated Press.

HONOLULU, June 4.—The $35,000 offered as prizes for the first two aviators to make nonstop flights from the American mainland to Hawaii was posted today. James D. Dole, pineapple magnate, handed his certified check to the local chapter of the National Aeronautical Association, which will act as trustee.

The aid of Theodore Ching of Honolulu, an aviator in the Chinese Nationalist army in the days of Sun Yat-sen, was sought today in a move to raise $12,000 locally to support the Burdett triplane entry. Ching agreed to aid provided he was taken as assistant pilot. The three-winged, two-motored plane is to be piloted by Harold Spear, another Honolulu flyer.

Search for Lost Child in Vain.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, June 4.—Belief that 2-year-old Dickie Morrison, missing Joliet child, was kidnaped and not downed was strengthened today when the "death hole" stone quarry near Joliet still had revealed no body. The baby vanished three days ago. Mr. and Mrs. Peter Morrison, the parents, are convinced their child was kidnaped. The boy vanished while playing in the yard with his two dogs.

BELLANCA PIONEER IN PLANE BUILDING

Designer of Chamberlin's Machine Won First Big Race in St. Louis.

By Leased Wire from the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, June 4.—Giuseppe Bario Bellanca, designer of the monoplane Columbia, was born in Sicily on March 19, 1886. He became interested in flying while he was a science student at the Royal Institute in Milan and assisted by other students built an experimental biplane, which flew successfully but was wrecked on an early trial flight.

Bellanca was one of the first designers to build a tractor airplane, that is, a plane with the propeller in front. In 1910 he and his brother, August, having come to America, built one of the first parasol monoplanes, a type in which the body is suspended under the wing.

He designed the prototype of the Columbia in 1920 and in the following year his plane won its first recognition, four first prizes in a minor flying meet at Monmouth, Ill. Other prizes followed and the aeronautical world began to take notice of the designer's work.

In 1923 he tore down this ship and remodeled it more directly along the lines of the Columbia and at the National Air Races in St. Louis that year the plane made a phenomenal showing in winning the Aviation Town and Country Club of Detroit trophy race—an event that Bellanca has had taken practically every year since.

Three planes then were built by him for the Government mail service, each flying 160,000 miles before one was sacrificed in a destruction test to prove the soundness and strength of its design. The others still are in reserve service.

In 1923 he came East and joined the Wright Aeronautical Corporation of Paterson, N. J., where a sister ship of the Columbia was built for the endurance record. Chamberlin was instrumental in effecting the affiliation, but when the monoplane was ready for her first great weight carrying test, Chamberlin's dream was blasted by the selection of another pilot, Fred Becker, for the flight. Bellanca was fearful of the results, and his fears seemed confirmed when Becker took the plane off from Curtiss Field in a high wind, tried to land after turning and "washed out" the plane, seriously injuring himself.

Planes in Advance.

In the line was every type of fighting craft, from mine sweepers and destroyers, up to superdreadnaughts. It was Mr. Coolidge's first view of the fleet.

Wearing the commander-in-chief's hat, the President was on the bridge of the Mayflower, as she chored about 2½ miles northwest of Cape Henry, when the double and single column formation of battle array hove into sight under the protection of a fleet of planes, slightly in advance.

Mr. Coolidge, reared in the hills of Vermont, was plainly impressed by his first close-up view of the Navy in its greatest display of combined power since the fleet sailed from here in 1907 for a trip around the world.

Mrs. Coolidge who leaned over a rail from start to finish with binoculars in hand, a white tam protecting her head from the sun. Close beside here were Mrs. Wilbur and Mrs. Eberle.

Flagship Heads Procession.

The Seattle, bearing Admiral Charles F. Hughes, Commander-in-Chief of the combined scouting and battle fleets, headed the procession from Hampton Roads, where the Navy and scores of other high points in naval history. As it drew alongside, the President lowered his binoculars and came to a salute.

The flagship, when 500 yards from the Mayflower let loose her guns, the presidential salute, from her three pounders. Passing the President at 12:30 p. m. on the dot, her sailors, manning the rail, stood at salute, each with his right hand to head and left arm extended to his neighbor's shoulder.

The Mayflower acknowledged the courtesy with the "Star-Spangled Banner," played by its band. The President again came to salute.

Fully equipped, the fleet at 16 knots steamed out as if to meet an enemy off the eastern horizon, the low, slender submarines preceding the heavier warcraft in the fighting line.

Ships of All Types.

Four mine sweepers trailed the 16 submarines and then came the destroyers of the scouting fleet. Five battleships, some of which carried the midshipmen of the Naval Academy, completed this section of the armada. Next were the advance scouts of the main battle fleet, the destroyer squadron, and finally the huge battleships, led by the California, their mighty guns projecting from the turrets, fore and aft with two planes snuggled in the stern.

The armada eased quietly to sea, scattering, even within sight of the President, to its distant home posts and to protect America's widely scattered citizens and property.

FLEET, IN 15-MILE LINE, REVIEWED BY PRESIDENT

Ninety-Seven War Vessels, Ranging From Mine Sweepers to Battleships, Pass Before Mayflower.

PARADE LASTS ONE HOUR, 40 MINUTES

"Well Done," Is Signal Flashed From Coolidge's Yacht as Last Dreadnaught Passes.

By the Associated Press.

U. S. S. MAYFLOWER, off Cape Henry, Va., June 4.—The United States fleet today proudly paraded before President Coolidge, its commander in chief, to take up its far-flung posts in the seven seas of the world.

For an hour and 40 minutes the gray war machines plowed their way by the presidential yacht, Mayflower, under the eyes of the President, Secretary Wilbur and Admiral Eberle, chief of naval operations, and as the huge battleships bringing up the rear came abreast of the reviewing yacht, Mr. Coolidge ordered the signal, "Well done," to be flashed.

The signal traditional last word of praise in Navy lingo, was flashed with the three flags symbolizing these words as the California, first of the battleship division, was passing. Wireless carried it on. The hospital ship Relief, an added starter for the review, brought up the rear of the line.

Clear weather brought the fleet into bold view as the flagship, the armored cruiser Seattle, in the lead, turned its nose into Hampton Roads shortly after noon for the parade between the twin capes of Virginia—Henry and Charles—out into the rolling Atlantic.

The 97 ships, constituting the greatest concentration of America's sea forces here since the war, stretched out more than 15 miles and included every form of fighting and auxiliary craft.

Men's Derby Attire Vies With Women's Apparel

Startling Checks and Stripes Provide Colorful Setting as Society Gathers for Classic Race at Fairmount Track.

By FAY PROFILET.

Among the 25,000 spectators who cheered Buddy Bauer down the home stretch at the annual Derby at Fairmount Park yesterday were many distinguished persons and many of social prominence. A colorful throng crowded the club house or strolled about the lawn and a large number entertained preceding and during the races.

The gathering was a most "dressed up" one. In fact many of the men appeared in snappy looking outfits of hues almost as bright as those worn by the women—startling checks and stripes and swagger top coats. The styles worn yesterday by the feminine contingent were diversified and of brilliant colors. Knitted and pastel tinted flannel suits worn with closely fitted felt hats vied with flowered chiffon gowns and drooping garden hats. Many sports outfits were interpreted in black and white, and fancy colored shoes were worn with every kind of costume.

Many Informal Gatherings.

The day was an occasion of much entertaining and for hours before the races the club house veranda was dotted with breakfast and luncheon parties. The Fairmount club house gay in its decorations of green and white, the colors of the Fairmount Jockey Club, made an attractive background for many informal gatherings.

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred H. Murphy entertained in their box during the afternoon and had as their guests Mrs. Charles E. Bascom and Mr. and Mrs. George R. Wendling. Mrs. Harry B. Hawes and her daughters, Miss Eppes Hawes and Miss Peyton Hawes, Mrs. David R. Francis, Jr., Mrs. Ellie Koehler Lemp, Miss Catherine Corlis and Richard Shipley were entertained by Willard Cox in his box. Mr. and Mrs. Thomas H. BUDDY BAUER, 27 TO 1 SHOT, WINS FAIRMOUNT DERBY

ing in dense formation in front of the grandstand and north to the paddock, broke across the track after the horses had gone to the post, and at some risk to life and limb and to the morale of the horses, lined the infield rail.

Close finishes in two of the earlier races helped to develop the necessary feeling of tenseness for the main event. Hearty cheering greeted the parade of the seven derby contenders, E. B. McLean's "Jock" leading the procession, and Buddy Bauer, with Jockey Alfred Johnson, being the rear guard.

In the green infield, on either side of the judges' stand, low mounds showed the grass-wrought design words, "Haste, 1926," recording the victory of last yea'r Widener entry. In view of the crowd and of the jockeys was the silver trophy awaiting the winner, together with the purse of $24,400.

After an extended introduction to the cheering crowd, the horses ambled back to the post. What happened thereafter not only took the gathering by surprise, but, as related elsewhere, it surprised Jockey Johnson, who suddenly found himself riding a potential winner. After that, making him an actual winner was the task for Johnson, who was the rider of last year's Kentucky Derby winner, Bubbling Over.

As the barrier rose, Jock was seen to be in the lead. Osmand and Rolled Stocking were close upon the McLean horse. The cautious Sande was holding Osmand back, it appeared, but Jock's desperate early pace kept things from being easy for Osmand and his rider. Three-quarters of the way around, Osmand took the lead.

Here was the fractional moment of triumph for the many backers of the promising Eastern horse. Every man was on tiptoe, and women's hats were bobbing in the air as they hopped up for flashing glimpses of the oncoming favorite.

Buddy Bauer Gains Lead.

But this delirium died as the horses approached the stretch. In the stretch turn, Buddy Bauer, which had been held back hitherto, took the lead from Osmand, and before another post Whiskery also had passed him. The advantage which Buddy took was not relinquished. Jock was now distanced and Rolled Stocking had had his run, while Handy Mandy and Black Panther had hardly figured as contenders.

Whips were plied freely as the close-pressing Whiskery and the tiring Osmand strove to regain the lead. It did not appear, as the leaders shot across the line, that a greater distance to travel would have changed their order.

A difference of eight pounds in weight, between Whiskery and his hitherto less distinguished rivals, may not account entirely for the result, but there were those who held that a reversal of the handicap might have altered the final order conclusively.

Winning Jockey Acclaimed.

The cheering was loud, but not long. It was the first excitement of the finish which spoke in the crowd's shouts. The personal enthusiasm which marks the victory of a favorite could not be expected. Too many tickets marking hopeful and well studied "contributions" had to be simply torn up. But the plainly dressed Jockey Johnson got a generous acclaim as he rode back, enwreathed, to receive the big silver cup, handed to him by L. L. Emmerson, secretary of State of Illinois.

It was a great afternoon for Illinois State officials and Republican workers. Lieut. Gov. Sterling, National Committeeman Moore, Director Stanard of the Department of Agriculture, and a group of State Senators, bureau heads and institution trustees, were in the clubhouse.

Names of leading St. Louisans were on the boxes of the clubhouse balcony. W. Frank Carter, member of the board of governors of the Fairmount Jockey Club, was in the clubhouse receiving line with Lyman T. Hay, president, and C. Bruce Head, manager. Mrs. Katherine Halterman, secretary of the Missouri Democratic State Committee, was accompanied by Miss Madeline Kelly of St. Louis.

JEWELRY WORTH $100,000 STOLEN BY BURGLARS

Long Island Home of New York Banker Looted of Pearl Necklace, Two Diamond Rings.

By Leased Wire From New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, June 4.—Jewelry valued at more than $100,000 was stolen from the home of Carl J. Schmidlapp on Forrest Mill road, Millneck, Oyster Bay, L. I., between 11 a. m. and 7 a. m. today, according to Capt. Harold R. King of the Nassau County police.

The police believe that the robbery was committed by two men who entered the home through the window of a dressing room on the second floor of the home while Mr. and Mrs. Schmidlapp slept in an adjacent room. The second floor of the house is comparatively low, the window sills being but a dozen feet above the ground. Footprints were found under the window this morning.

The Schmidlapps were at a dinner party last night, returning home shortly after midnight and retiring half an hour later. Mrs. Schmidlapp told the police that she had worn a pearl necklace and two diamond rings valued at more than $100,000. Before retiring she said she laid them in the bath room adjoining their bedroom and this morning they were gone.

A window in the dressing room which connects the bedroom with the bathroom was open this morning and the still bore slight traces of the intruders. Under the window were footprints sunk deep in the soft earth. The police believe that one man was helped through the window by another, who stood on the ground outside and kept watch. No trace of a ladder was found.

Operatives of the Federal Insurance Co. are working with the police in the investigation. The Federal company issued the insurance on the jewelry.

Schmidlapp formerly was a director of the Chase National Bank. His town home is at 820 Fifth avenue, New York City.

SENATOR JONES PREDICTS COOLIDGE'S RENOMINATION

In Formal Statement, He Says People Apparently Attach No Importance to Third Term Issue.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, June 4.—A prediction that President Coolidge will be renominated next year with "practical unanimity," was made today by Senator Jones, Republican, Washington, in a formal statement.

To suggest that a third term would "lead to monarchy and despotism," Senator Jones said, "is a baseless reflection upon the intelligence of the people." Senator Jones declared that the issue over the third term never had been clearly drawn, adding that the nearest the people ever came to passing upon this question, was in regard to Roosevelt and they "pretty clearly indicated that they attached no importance to it."

The house was erected by the late George Scarborough, early-day Atchison County resident, on one of the highest points overlooking the Missouri River in Atchison County, commanding a wonderful view of the Missouri Valley.

Howe is living in Atchison. Atchison will fete Howe June 16, with a big dinner in his honor.

$1300 DAMAGE TO HOME BY FIRE AND EXPLOSION

Ether-Soaked Mattress Found in House at 5853 Plymouth Av. — Tenant Questioned by Police.

An explosion and fire of undetermined origin caused damage of about $1300 to a large frame residence at 5853 Plymouth avenue shortly after 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon.

The blaze was discovered immediately after an explosion which shattered windows of the place. Flames leaped from the broken windows as if fed by some highly inflammable substance, and firemen later found on the second floor a mattress and pillows soaked with ether. The fire was extinguished after about 20 minutes.

While police were investigating the fire, James Ford, 36 years old, a painter, who lives there, appeared on the scene, accompanied by Richard Rossen, 24, a mechanic, of 6563 Melrose avenue, Pine Lawn. Questioned at the Page Boulevard Station, Ford said he was away all day and could not account for the fire.

Nobody was at home at the time of the fire. Two small dogs were rescued from the house by firemen. Nearly all the personal belongings of the family had been removed. Police found bottles of home-brew on the premises.

Nearby residents said several men were seen carrying small galvanized iron tanks into the house shortly before the explosion occurred.

The house is owned by A. Silverstein, 2248 North Market street.

FIXTURES OF TWO CANTONI RESTAURANTS ARE AUCTIONED

Government Nets $1450 on $21,000 Claim for Excess Profits Taxes.

An auction sale of fixtures in two restaurants of the Standard Catering Co., 208 North Seventh street and 207 North Ninth street, to satisfy a claim for $21,900 in excess profits taxes levied against the concern in 1923, netted the Government $1450 yesterday.

John Cantoni, president of the company, refused to pay the taxes, maintaining they were levied on profits made before he purchased the stock of the company from George Georges in 1923. Accordingly, Collector of Internal Revenue Becker closed the restaurants May 18 under a distraint warrant. At the auction sale the fixtures of the Ninth street place were purchased by the Paul Brown Investment Co. for a client for $775, and the fixtures at the Seventh street place brought $675, bid by the Bensinger Stove and Furniture Co., 1005 Market street.

Cantoni, who changed the operating name of the restaurants from "Standard" to "Cantoni's," has establishments at 3602 Olive street and at the Union Market, which were not affected by the Government claim.

COOLIDGE ASKED TO CALL MEETING ON FLOOD CONTROL

Chicago Conference, in Resolutions, Suggests Gathering of Leaders in Industry and Conservation.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, June 4.—Recommendations for recognition of flood control as a national problem, immediate Federal relief for sufferers in the present Mississippi River flood, and for a conference on flood control will be placed before President Coolidge at his earliest convenience. This was decided today, by the flood control conference which met here at the call of Mayors Thompson of Chicago, Miller of St. Louis and O'Keefe of New Orleans.

The only demands made upon the President in the resolutions adopted was that he call a conference of recognized leaders in the fields of engineering, conservation, geology, finance, agriculture and other interests for the purpose of formulating, in conjunction with governmental agencies, a permanent flood control program.

There was no effort to advise the chief executive as to special session of Congress and his name and administration was mentioned only in connection with praise for him personally and of Secretary of War Davis and Secretary Hoover.

Immediate and effective relief for the flood sufferers through the agencies of existing Federal groups was urged, and the Seventieth Congress was urged to make its business "energetically to undertake and carry to a speedy conclusion comprehensive and efective measures for permanent flood control of the Mississippi River and all its tributaries."

Permanent Organization.

So that its generalized recommendations might be pushed the conference was organized upon a permanent basis, with Mayor Thompson at the head and the other Mayors who co-operated with him as exofficio members of an executive committee including one representative from each of the 31 states in the Mississippi Valley.

The motion which will send Thompson and possibly others of the committee to Washington was made by Mayor Rowlette Paine of Memphis, Tenn., who completed the quartet of Mayors heading the permanent organization.

While the conference or its resolutions committee compiled more than 500 proposals, the resolutions studiously refrained from committing the conferees to any set program.

Three Control Methods.

Three methods—levees, spillways and reservoirs—were stressed.

After adjournment of the conference today the Registration Committee announced that approximately 11,000 persons had signed the roster of delegates.

The delegates were so aroused by the address with which Senator Watson of Indiana presented the resolutions that they shouted for the "question" of adoption without waiting for a second, which, however, finally came above the din from Senator Hawes of Missouri.

"The problem of flood control henceforth is national and not local," said Senator Watson.

"If 31 States pour their floods into the Mississippi River; if 40 per cent of the territory of the United States drains into it; if 600,000 persons are driven from their homes; if a fair proportion of the nation is devastated, does not that of itself make it a national problem?

"State lines exist only in geographies. It is one continuous land under one great Constitution and when disaster strikes one part it strikes all."

Wants Federal Relief.

He said he had been asked why in the proposed resolutions President Coolidge had not been petitioned to appoint a commission now.

"There are two reasons," he explained. "He has no authority without an act of Congress, and it is unlawful for him to do so, and engineers already are at work and we want no cross currents.

"But we do ask the President to call a conference of our prominent men from many phases of life."

He urged appropriation of relief funds by Congress, and for the precedent cited the State appropriations for colleges and the Federal appropriations for pensions.

Praise for Administration.

Only praise, and not one word of criticism, for "anyone in a high place" for what they had done for the victims of the Mississippi flood was a part of the tribute Senator Harrison of Mississippi, paid to President Coolidge and Cabinet members.

"When a great crevasse broke north of Greenville, I immediately went to Washington," he said. "I consulted with the President, and I know that the President's heart is 100 per cent with us.

"I am thankful and my people are thankful to him for sending to us the chief of the army engineers, who understands it; the great Secretary of War, and that splendid American, who has given his time, his energy and his great talents, Herbert Hoover, to the relief of my people."

Each name mentioned brought resounding applause, repeated as Harrison praised Hoover anew for his efforts towards rehabilitation.

"Yesterday in Washington he called in the business men of the country, through the Chambers of Commerce, and they raised $1,750,000 to help us."

With the support of Congress, he predicted a complete "come-back" for the inundated southern districts.

An Illinois Clash.

Congressmen Henry J. Rainey, (Dem.) of Illinois, and Fred A. Britten (Rep.), of Illinois, today provided the only flare-up of partisan politics which marked the conference.

Rainey praised the "Republican President, Republican Secretary of Commerce, Republican Secretary of War, and the Republican Mayor of Chicago, for being "right this time."

Then he turned to Mayor Thompson, the chairman, and upbraided him for polluting the Illinois River, with Chicago's sewage. Thompson is sponsoring a bill pending in the legislature for a $20,000,000 flood control-game preserve project.

Britten defended Chicago's sewage disposal efforts. He said he thought the protection of the health of the city was superior to the preservation of a few fish and pearl producing mussels.

Mayor Thompson of Chicago, who initiated the movement which brought about the conference, was named head of a permanent organization.

Benefactor of Orphans Dies.

E. A. FEEHAN, LAWYER, IS REPORTED MISSING

Visited Office at Night but Friends Haven't Seen Him Since Tuesday.

Police have been asked to assist in a search for Edward A. Feehan, an attorney, who disappeared last Tuesday after telling Charles Ryan, his office associate in the Times Building, that he was going to lunch.

The request was made yesterday when a private search, conducted by Henry Feehan, of Chicago, a brother of the missing man, proved unsuccessful.

Feehan, who is 50 years old, is a widower, and roomed at 4918 Forest Park avenue. He left home Tuesday morning, going to his office, and remaining until noon, when he departed, telling Ryan he was going to lunch and would be back.

Visits During Night.

He has not returned to his rooming house since, or to the office during business hours. From employes of the Times Building it was learned that Feehan has visited the office on several nights during the period.

The brother and friends maintained a vigil at the office Friday night, but Feehan did not appear.

A search of his desk and safe disclosing his watch, a valuable ring and a sum of money in an envelope.. No communication leading to a solution of the disappearance was found, however. Feehan formerly was active in Democratic politics, having served as assistant to former Circuit Attorney McDaniel. He was a candidate for Probate Judge and Public Administrator.

Has Artificial Leg.

Feehan is five feet nine inches tall, weighs 140 pounds and has brown hair, streaked with gray, and blue eyes. He wears an artificial right leg and usually walks with the aid of a cane or umbrella. When last seen he wore a blue serge suit, black fedora hat and high black shoes. His general appearance is described at neat.

Friends can ascribe no business or personal reasons for the disappearance. He received his academic training at St. Louis University and was a graduate of the Washington University law school.

DOUGLAS FAIRBANKS INJURED

Opponents' Saber, in Movie Fight, Falls, Cutting Actor's Leg.

By the Associated Press.

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., June 4.—Chance took some liberties with the scenario of Douglas Fairbanks' new picture in the filming yesterday when the agile screen star, who was disarming an adversary, suffered a cut in the leg when his opponent's saber fell.

The accident occurred as the saber hilt struck the floor, its point flying up and striking Fairbanks. The wound proved to be superficial. The scene will be filmed again to give the hero a better faring in the encounter.

ST. LOUIS TO GIVE $50,000 WELCOME TO LINDBERGH

City Will Be Asked for $10,000 and Organizations and Private Citizens for the Remainder.

The same amount New York appropriated for the welcome of Capt. Lindbergh—$50,000—will be spent in the homecoming ceremonies here following the arrival of the transatlantic flyer in St. Louis on June 17, it was decided yesterday.

The finance section of the Lindbergh Reception Committee, meeting at the Chamber of Commerce, voted to ask the city to appropriate $10,000 as its share and arranged for the immediate preparation of a circular letter to be sent out before tomorrow to civic organizations, business houses and wealthy St. Louisans, who will be asked to donate the remainder of the fund.

W. Frank Carter, chairman of the finance section, announced that contributions would be received by O. O. Wilson, treasurer, at the State National Bank. The committee is anxious to raise the fund by popular subscription and Carter appealed to St. Louisans who could afford to do so to mail their contributions to Wilson, even if they should be overlooked in the mailing of the circular letters.

Knight Returns to St. Louis.

Harry Hall Knight, Lindbergh's chief backer, returned yesterday afternoon from New York and Washington, where he has been in conference with managers of the receptions there. He will outline New York's plans to the Executive Committee when it meets at the Chamber of Commerce at 1:45 o'clock tomorrow afternoon to

ST. LOUIS TO GIVE $50,000 WELCOME TO LINDBERGH

City Will Be Asked for $10,000 and Organizations and Private Citizens for the Remainder.

The same amount New York appropriated for the welcome of t. Lindbergh—$50,000—will be ent in the homecoming ceremo- ies here following the arrival of e transatlantic flyer in St. uis on June 17, it was decided esterday.

The finance section of the ndbergh Reception Committee, eeting at the Chamber of Com- erce, voted to ask the city to ppropriate $10,000 as its share arranged for the immediate reparation of a circular letter to e sent out before tomorrow to ivic organizations, business houses nd wealthy St. Louisans, who will e asked to donate the remainder f the fund.

W. Frank Carter, chairman of he finance section, announced that ontributions would be received by . O. Wilson, treasurer, at the ate National Bank. The commit- e is anxious to raise the fund by opular subscription and Carter ealed to St. Louisans who ould afford to do so to mail their ontributions to Wilson, even if ey should be overlooked in the ailing of the circular letters.

Knight Returns to St. Louis.

Harry Hall Knight, Lindbergh's hief backer, returned yesterday fternoon from New York and Washington, where he has been in onference with managers of the eceptions there. He will outline ew York's plans to the Executive ommittee when it meets at hamber of Commerce at 1:45 clock tomorrow afternoon to make final plans for St. Louis' welcome to the flyer.

Mayor Miller, having already appointed 250 members of the Lindbergh Reception Committee, added 800,000-odd yesterday by announcing he was appointing every man, woman and child in the city.

Pointing out that the original selections had been made by the financial sponsors of the flight, the Mayor said his office had been besieged by thousands seeking this honor, and had been taken to task by city officials and prominent residents who expressed displeasure over absence of their names from the committee list. However, the active work of preparing for the famous flyer's return is in the hands of a few compact committees.

Among the preliminary work of preparation has been the introduction of a proposed ordinance to forbid parking on certain streets between 1 and 7 p. m. from June 13 to 23. The streets affected are:

Lindell cutoff, between Channing avenue and Locust street; Locust street, between Jefferson avenue and Fourth street; Twelfth boulevard, between Locust and Chestnut streets; Chestnut street, between Twelfth boulevard and Broadway; Broadway, between Chestnut and Olive streets; Olive street, between Broadway and Twelfth boulevard; Fourth street, between Locust street and Washington boulevard; Washington boulevard, between Fourth street and Union boulevard.

A campaign for the adoption of a constitutional amendment allowing two or more city, town or common school districts to combine for high school purposes, will be launched Tuesday at a luncheon meeting of the Association for Home Rule in Taxation of St. Louis County, at the American Hotel. Probate Judge Hodgdon, head of the association, will preside.

The State Constitution now provides that two or more school districts may combine and may issue bonds for grade school purposes. The association seeks the extension of this privilege for high school purposes. The campaign has the indorsement of County Superintendent of Schools Russell.

SMALL DENIES HE EVER OWED STATE A CENT

Illinois Governor Issues Statement Regarding Settlement of Suit Against Him for $650,000.

By the Associated Press.

KANKAKEE, Ill., June 4.—Gov. Len Small issued the following statement late todoy relative to the suit of the State of Illinois against him:

"The terms of the settlement made in the Sangamon Circuit Court this morning expressly admit the truth of the contention I have made throughout this suit, that I have fully accounted for and paid into the State Treasury every dollar of principal and interest received by me for or during my term of office as State Treasurer; that I have not at any time received any interest on public funds except that interest which I have heretofore paid into the treasury, and that the sum which I am agreeing to pay is money received for the Grant Park Bank, and not by me.

"When I became State Treasurer in 1917 I and my bondsmen, and no one else, became responsible for all the funds in the State Treasury; the law required that the funds be deposited in banks and that the interest paid to the State Treasurer by the banks belonged to the State. The law at that time recognized private banks. It was a question whether State and national banks could give the State Treasurer specific collateral as security for public money. Private banks could do so.

Forced to Pay.

"I deposited large sums in the Grant Park Bank, of which Senator Curtis was the head, receiving the best collateral, thereby insuring the safety of the State funds. The long accounting which has just recently been completed shows undisputedly that the Grant Park Bank paid the State more than $222,000 in interest money and that all of the principal deposited was returned to the State in full.

"By depositing the State funds in the Grant Park Bank, I as State Treasurer, not only received additional collateral which made the public money absolutely safe against loss, but I secured for the State a higher rate of interest than the largest banks in Illinois would pay.

"After years of litigation the Court held that I was jointly liable with the owners of the Grant Park Bank for all the profits which they made in loaning State funds and the Supreme Court upheld that ruling.

"The stipulation filed today was based upon the findings of the Court on the earnings of the Grant Park Bank. The decisions of the courts in this case have been to the effect that I must pay regardless of whether or not I received any interest.

Never Owed State a Cent.

"Those decisions made necessary this settlement by me. I repeat what I have said so many times—I do not now and never did owe the State of Illinois 1 cent of interest. All of the principal and all of the interest which I collected as State Treasurer has been paid in to the State Treasury, and the State Treasure's office during my term was run for the best interests of the State, strictly according to law.

"Senator Curtis is dead. The Grant Park Bank which loaned the public money, as all other banks loaned it, for the profit of its owners, has gone out of business. The other defendants in this case are unable to pay this judgment. If it is humanly possible, I will pay it.

"Despite this great hardship, I am gratified and I believe that my friends throughout Illinois will be gratified, that in the stipulation it is recognized that I as State Treasuser made a full and complete payment to the State of all interest received by me, and that my liability is based merely upon a technical responsibility for what others received.

"I want on this occasion to assure the people of this State that, notwithstanding this crushing burden which I must bear, I will continue to serve them with all the strength and ability which I possess."

Terms of Settlement.

By terms of an agreement between Attorney-General Carlstrom, for the State, and Werner Schroeder, counsel for Small, approved today in Circuit Court, at Springfield, Small will pay the State $650,000 plus costs. The final decree will be entered July 15, giving the Governor until then to pay.

The agreement stipulated that Small received no profits from use of State funds by the Grant Park Bank, owned and controlled by Verne and Edward C. Curtis. He will pay, said the agreement, only because State funds had been entrusted to him.

Today's settlement ends a suit started during Small's first term as Governor by former Attorney-General Brundage. State Treasurers succeeding Small also were named but only the case against Small, Etha G. Curtis, administratrix of the estate of the late Senator Edward C. Curtis, and Verne Curtis was seriously prosecuted.

That the settlement has judicial approval was assured from the fact that the announcement was made by counsel, after a conference with Circuit Judge F. Burton.

It was charged that Small, while State Treasurer, deposited State money in the Grant Park State Bank of his friend, the late Senator E. C. Curtis, and that Curtis reinvested it in Chicago packers' notes.

The law required that State funds draw at least 2 per cent. This percentage was paid back, but the balance obtained as interest on packers' notes was not. Today's stipulation convicts the late head of the Grant Park State Bank of profiting by the failure to pay.

LONDON TAVERN RECALLS PAST

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, June 4.—The old George Tavern is about the only hotel left in London where a guest is shown to his bedroom by the light of a candle.

The ancient tavern contains many relics of Charles Dickens, and pictures and photographs of London as it appeared in his day. It is in a courtyard reached by turning up a narrow lane out of Borough High Street, near London Bridge. All bedrooms are furnished with huge old-fashioneh fourposter bedsteads. It is the only remaining hostelry in England's capital with an open wooden balcony outside the bedroom windows. Shelves behind its tiny bar are laden with old pewter quart pots, relics of the old coaching days when thirsts were big and capacities unlimited. Hung upon the walls are cumbersome pistols, which were carried by the old night watchmen.

Child on Bridge Lost in Flood.

By the Associated Press.

BRIDGEPORT, O., June 4.—A sudden rise of Wheeling Creek to-7-year-old girl was drowned in a day, following a rainstorm that was described as the heaviest in years. The girl, a daughter of Charles Redlinska of Blaine, six miles from here, was caught on a street car bridge by the flood water and swept downstream to her death. Thousands of dollars' loss was entailed by the storm at Wheeling, where many homes in the residential section were flooded. Streets of Benwood, a suburb of Wheeling, also were flooded.

Auto Fumes Kill Famous Tulips.

PARIS, June 4.—The famous Tuileries tulips have bloomed the last time. They are victims of exhaust of automobiles in the Rue de Rivoli. The bulbs were presented the city of Paris by Dutch growers five years ago, and planted in the Tuileries Gardens, an ideal setting for their masses of gorgeous colors. But each year they dwindled and it was found the prevailing westerly winds blew onto them a low wave of mephitic gas from passing automobiles, affording an additional proof of the deleterious effect of the growing number of automobiles on the atmosphere of Paris.

MOUNT VERNON, MO., YOUTH FOUND DEAD, PERHAPS SLAIN

Body on School Grounds With Part of Money Gone; Woman and Two Men Sought.

MOUNT VERNON, Mo., June 4.—The body of Waymond Connor, 19 years old, was found at 6 o'clock this morning on the high school grounds by Mrs. Will Collins, who lives nearby. He had been dead several hours, a physician said.

Proceeding on a theory that the youth was murdered, with robbery as a possible motive, authorities this morning were seeking three men and a woman, who, they said, were followers of a carnival which has been playing here this week. Prosecutor Ben Holt said he had learned that Connor had an engagement to meet the woman last night. The woman and the men, Holt said he was told, left Mount Vernon at 9 o'clock this morning in a motor car, headed west. An examination of the body by a physician revealed a slight cut over an eye and a bruise over the heart, but the physician said neither would have produced death.

Only $1.05 was found in the boy's pockets, while he is known to have had a much larger sum last night.

INQUIRY INTO REPORT FIFTY NEGROES ARE HELD IN PEONAGE

Department of Justice Begins Investigation of Farm in Georgia.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, June 4. — The statement that about 50 Negroes are held in peonage on a farm in Oglethorpe County, Georgia, and forced to work under armed guards is being investigated by the Department of Justice.

An operative of the Bureau of Investigation yesterday interviewed James Felton, Negro, who claims to have escaped from the farm and who is held by State authorities at Danville, Va., as the first step in the inquiry.

Unmasked Man Robs Herrin Cafe.

HERRIN, Ill., June 4.—An unmasked man held up the Jefferson Cafe here early today and looted the cash register of $59. Police believe he was the same man who held up a Standard Oil filling station here a few nights ago and escaped with $135.

Hello, Lindy!

The following is an excerpt from the official welcome song to Captain Lindbergh—written by Larry Conley and Dave Silverman, and endorsed by President Coolidge and Mayor Miller:

"Hello, Lindy, honest and true,
All America is proud of you."

CONROYS take pardonable pride in stating that a locally-owned piano, designed by a Saint Louisan, was selected presumably in preference to all other instruments to convey by telephone and radio to London, England, the official welcome song, "Hello, Lindy."

In this connection, CONROYS also desire to point out that the CONROY PIANO used on this occasion was not a special instrument, nor were any additional devices used to clarify or amplify the tonal characteristics essential to the success of transmitting in broad daylight from Saint Louis to London the official welcome song of Saint Louis.

The CONROY PIANO selected for this event is on display in our corner window at Eleventh and Olive.

LOWER ST. LOUIS COAL RATE RECOMMENDED

I. C. C., However, Will Finally Rule on Proposed Reduction in Differential.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, June 4.—Recommendation for a decrease in coal rates to St. Louis from nearby Illinois mines and an increase to East St. Louis from the same points was made today to the Interstate Commerce Commission at the end of an examiner's investigation into complaints of St. Louis business interests.

The commission itself will pass upon the case before any rate changes are put into effect.

From the Belleville group of Illinois mines within 71 miles of East St. Louis, the rate to St. Louis is $1.16 a ton and the recommendation is for a rate of $1.13.

From this group of East St. Louis the rates are now 46 and 36 cents below St. Louis rates, and the recommendation is to limit the difference to 30 cents.

LINDBERGH'S FAREWELL PLEASED LARGE CROWD

French Writer Tells How Flyer Gave Parting Salute From Cruiser Memphis.

By the Associated Press.

CHERBOURG, June 4.—Capt. Mathey, the French journalist-aviator who so graphically described Capt. Lindbergh's flight from Paris to Brussels, today gave the following account of Lindbergh's departure from French shores:

"Sailing in splendid weather, such as Cherbourg seldom has, and with vast crowds covering the jetties and lining the harbor, Capt. Lindbergh, splendid as a king, went aboard the U. S. S. Memphis today on the admiral's launch, standing erect with his blond hair lighted by the sunshine and ruffled by the breeze.

"Turning around the destroyer Breck, where he saluted the officers and crew, Capt. Lindbergh went aboard the Memphis arm in arm with one of the ship's officers. The flyer was followed aboard by the whole official committee. According to military rules, the reception lasted the regular five minutes.

Waves From Fighting Top.

"While the ship's band played 'The Star Spangled Banner!' and the 'Marseillaise,' the crew, drawn up on deck, saluted Lindbergh and ships of all forms, sizes and means of locomotion gathered around the Memphis, their passengers standing erect.

"Still arm in arm (with the officer) Lindbergh went for a few minutes into the admiral's cabin where he remained while the crew were preparing to weigh anchor. But the crowds aboard the swarm of boats continued to demand Lindbergh.

"The aviator climbed to the fighting top, waved, and made the salute with his right hand which became so familiar to Paris, whereupon the pandemonium from the boats increased.

"Bands on the special boats struck up American airs, including 'Over There,' in which the people on all sides joined.

"Homeward Bound."

"The maneuver of weighing anchor finished, Lindbergh appeared again in the fighting top. Seven seaplanes circled overhead. Everybody waved their hats and handkerchiefs and shouted. Women and girls blew kisses to the parting guest and asked: 'When are you coming back?'

"Majestically, as if the man of war were aware it was carrying home to his mother a boy like Lindbergh, who had stirred the world's emotions, the Memphis, piloted by a French pilot, drew off into the open sea.

As a final salute from France, a seaplane swooped down and passed between the masts of the cruiser, while the crew of the Breck saluted, the crowds cheered, and whistles renewed their pandemonium.

"The pilot of the 'Spirit of St. Louis' was homeward bound."

RIVER EXPECTED TO REACH 32-FOOT STAGE AT ST. LOUIS

Mississippi Out of Banks in Missouri for Second Time This Year.

Having risen above its flood stage of 30 feet at St. Louis yesterday for the second time this year, the Mississippi River is expected to reach 31 feet today, 32 feet Wednesday and perhaps go higher. It will not go to the height of the April-May flood. It was 30.3 yesterday morning.

For its whole length past Missouri, the Mississippi is out of banks now, and many sections of lowland have been inundated. Many farmers have not attempted to renew crops since the last flood, so that their damage will be slight. From Louisiana, Mo., to Cape Girardeau, the stream will rise until the middle of this week, and the following stages (which may not be crests) are forecast: Grafton, 22 feet Tuesday (20.3 yesterday, flood level 18); Alton, 25 Tuesday (23.9 yesterday, 21 flood level); Chester, Ill., 29.5 Thursday (28.6 yesterday, 27 flood level).

The Missouri River will rise below Lexington, Mo., reaching 20 feet at Boonville Tuesday (17.2 yesterday, 21 flood level); 22 at Hermann Wednesday (20.1 yesterday, 21 flood level), and 28 at St. Charles Wednesday night (25.6 yesterday, 25 flood level).

TWO MEN HELD FOR KILLING TWO ELDERLY RECLUSES

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

DONIPHAN, Mo., June 4.—A preliminary hearing before Justice J. P. Campbell was given J. W. Bennett, Cecil Atchison and George Williamson on charge of poisoning Ernest and Frank Van Patten, a year ago. Bennett and Atchison were held for trial in the Circuit Court and Williamson was discharged.

Bennett and Atchison had made written statements in which they confessed placing rat poison in the food stuff of the Van Pattens, two elderly men who lived alone 10 miles west of Doniphan and who were found dead by neighbors.

In running down a clew in connection with the dynamiting of the home of George Williamson, which occurred about a month ago, Atchison made some remarks that aroused the suspicions of Constable Joe Cochran and he obtained a confession from Atchison and later J. W. Bennett was arrested and he too made a confession of participation in the poisoning of the Van Pattens.

HOW CHIROPRACTORS' LOBBY WORKED

Secretary of State Association Says He "Camped on Heels of Legislators for 52 Days."

A testimonial was delivered in person by Dr. L. William Ray, 5115 Washington boulevard, at last night's session of the Missouri State Chiropractors' Association at the Marquette Hotel. The annual convention began yesterday and will end tomorrow.

"It might at first glance appear a bit amiss for a man like myself, who has been writing prescriptions for 35 years, to be addressing an assemblage of 'drugless healers,' such as this," remarked Dr. Ray, "but I am frank to say that in my practice of medicine I have investigated the new sciences that have come into being, and I also am frank to say that I am not only a student of chiropractic, but a practitioner of the 'science' as well."

He added that "on numerous occasions" he had found what he knew of the "science" to be more effective in practice than what he knew of medicine.

"If the medical practitioner would take up the 'science' of chiropractic," he went on, "I am confident that he would arrive at the same conclusions that I have, and he would find himself far better equipped to treat the sick. I was scoffed at by my brother practitioners when it became known that at times I used chiropractic on my patients, but I paid no heed to this."

The lobby which obtained a Missouri law legalizing chiropractic, following announcement that Health Commissioner Starkloff would cause arrest of unlicensed practitioners, was reported on by Thomas F. Maher of St. Louis, secretary of the State association. He explained that he and two others "camped on the heels of the legislators for 52 days," while "voluminous literature" for the law was mailed to State Senators and Representatives and an "intensive educational campaign" was conducted through the State to persuade that the law "was necessary to safeguard the public from charlatans."

John J. Stephens in the presidential address urged that chiropractors take a hand in elections. "Sooner or later," he exhorted, "we will find it necessary to be represented in our legislative halls, so we might as well start immediately. Not only must we elect our own men to office, but we must defeat those who, for monetary gain or otherwise, are opposed to our 'science.'"

CAPITAL WATCHES NEW FLIGHT AMID LINDBERGH PLANS

Washington Officials Divide Time Between Reception for St. Louisan and Chamberlin's Progress.

CAPTAIN TO ARRIVE NEXT SATURDAY

Welcome by Coolidge and Award of Flying Cross Will Start Two-Day Series of Celebrations.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, June 4.—Official Washington divided its time today between following the course of the dramatic flight of the airplane Columbia from New York to Europe and arranging for the reception here next Saturday of Capt. Lindbergh.

Arriving here at noon next Saturday, Capt. Lindbergh will be welcomed personally and decorated by President Coolidge, will remain here over Sunday and take off from Bolling Field between 6 a. m. and 8 a. m. Monday, June 13, for New York in his monoplane, "The Spirit of St. Louis," in which he made his epochal air voyage.

Arrangements for the reception of the world's flying hero were completed today by the semi-official reception committee, which announced that its members and the District of Columbia commissioners would greet the flyer at the Washington Navy Yard when the Memphis docks.

Capt. Lindbergh will be escorted to the Washington monument grounds by "The President's Own" troop of cavalry and there he will be welcomed by the President and presented with the Distinguished Flying Cross, the highest award of the American air service.

Parade To Be Kept Short.

A military parade will form behind the aviator at Peace Monument, at the west side of the capitol, and follow him to the monument grounds. There will be about 2000 in this line of march, the committee holding the number low on the theory that the thousands who will crowd the national capital that day will want to see Lindbergh and not a parade.

Since Linbergh is an army reserve officer, the army will have the place of prominence in the pageant, the army band and a detachment of infantry following immediately behind Lindbergh's car. The Thirteenth Engineers' band from Fort Humphreys and a detachment of engineers and artillery will be next in line.

Then the navy will have its place, the navy band and the crew of the President's yacht, the Mayflower, and other naval men following the army contingent. The celebrated Marine Band and Marines from Quantico will be next and the District of Columbia National Guard, with its band, will complete the procession.

President Coolidge will await the aviator on a special stand at the foot of the knoll upon which the monument to the Father of His Country towers.

Grouped around this stand will be the Cabinet, the Supreme Court, the diplomatic corps, Senators and Representatives and Government officials.

Nungesser's Brother Invited.

Robert Nungesser, brother of Capt. Charles Nungesser, who, with Capt. Francois Coli, have been missing since their attempt to span the Atlantic Ocean from Paris, will have a place in the President's stand. Robert Nungesser is a resident of Washington, conducting a machine shop here.

Mrs. Evangeline L. Lindbergh, mother of the flyer, also is expected to be in the presidential stand. A special committee of women, headed by Miss Mabel T. Boardman of the American Red Cross, was appointed to welcome Mrs. Lindbergh to Washington and arrange for her program while she and her son are guests of the President and Mrs. Coolidge at the temporary White House.

Besides attending a meeting of the Minnesota Society and a reception by the National Press Club, Lindbergh also may be entertained by the National Aeronautical Association and the Missouri Society of Washington. Representatives of these organizations requested that they be permitted to receive the flying officer, but the committee decided to leave that with the flyer himself.

Arrangements for policing the Potomac River while the Memphis is slowly winding her way from Chesapeake Bay to the Washington navy yard were placed in charge of Rear Admiral Billard, commandant of the Coast Guard. Cutters will be assigned to keep a lane open for the cruiser and her naval escort, which will include two craft sent down the river from the navy yard here. Besides the squadrons of planes which will meet the Memphis at sea and at Hampton Roads, other squadrons will be sent down from the army and navy flying fields here and the marine station at Quantico. Secretary of War Davis today invited army airmen who have distinguished themselves during war and peace to participate in the reception for Lindbergh.

Follow Columbia's Progress.

While giving full attention to all of these preparations, Government officials largely followed the news of the progress of Chamberlin in his monoplane as it winged its way up the Atlantic coast line before starting the flight over the Atlantic.

Immediately after word came that the Columbia was off, the Navy and Coast Guard began laying plans to have its ships at sea report the Columbia's progress. Radio messages were sent to all craft along the line of the flight, including Shipping Board vessels, to co-operate in reporting on the Columbia.

Both army and navy aeronautical experts were anxious to see how the big plane with two men aboard would behave in crossing the ocean after its record-breaking endurance flight several weeks ago, when it remained in the air more than 50 hours.

As was to be expected, the Columbia, with its heavier load, did not make as fast progress up the coast as did Lindbergh's plane, arriving over Nova Scotia about two hours behind the schedule Lindbergh set.

The Weather Bureau described conditions in general as favorable for the flight, with the probabilities of wind behind the plane while it is over the Atlantic.

ALDERMEN GET BILL PROVIDING REGULATION OF SERVICE CARS

Ordinance Would Levy Special License Fee and Require Bonding of Operators.

A bill introduced yesterday in the Board of Aldermen by Alderman Waldman of the Twenty-eighth Ward is designed to regulate the operation of service cars by requiring owners to pay a license fee of $25 in addition to the regular automobile and chauffeur license fees, and would require them to post a $3000 bond with the city to insure their responsibility.

The bill provides that the maximum bond for anyone operating more than five service cars shall be $10,000. The bill was referred to a committee and may be reported Friday. At present there is no legal regulation of service cars, a former ordinance having been declared unconstitutional.

Enthusiastic Praise From Waterloo

Popular Resident of This Illinois Town Tells of the Exceptional Merits of Nature's Famous Herb Extract.

"Never have I used a medicine that would compare with your Herb Extract. I am not in the habit of giving signed statements in behalf of any medicine, but since your remedy has helped me more than any other medicine, I feel that it is my duty to say something about the splendid results I have obtained from its use," said Miss Bertha Zeigelmeyer, 2214 North Tenth street, Waterloo, Ill., in a recent statement to the special representative.

MISS BERTHA ZEIGELMEYER.

In continuing her remarks, given in a recent statement to the representative of the famous Herb Extract (formerly called Herb Juice), Miss Zeigelmeyer said: "It seems that I have had more than my share of headaches, to say nothing of the bilious attacks and dizzy spells, brought on by a disordered system, due to constipation. Other ailments arose; liver was very sluggish, stomach all upset and I suffered dreadfully with gas pains around my heart. I experimented with different kinds of medicines, some would help a little, but none had the desired effect. Through the papers I learned of your wonderful herb remedy. The quick relief and good results which I have derived from it prompts this statement in its behalf for the benefit of others who have not as yet tried it. It had such a wonderful effect in purifying and regulating my system that I am no longer troubled with those awful headaches, those bilious attacks and dizzy spells have ceased to bother me as a result of my system being so well regulated and built up. I have abundant energy and, of course, this makes life once more worth the living. This splendid medicine will always have a permanent place in my medicine chest and I want to take this opportunity to proclaim it the greatest of tonic laxatives and one that will surely help anyone who gives it a fair and impartial trial." For sale in St. Louis at WALGREEN DRUG STORES, headquarters for this great medicine.

The MOST BEAUTIFUL ISLAND-PARK in the WORLD

Sacred cows from India . . . furry Polar bears . . . brilliant pheasants . . . strange fish . . . a paradise of flowers.

Whispering woodlands of wild creatures . . . speedboats flashing through the water . . . gargantuan ore steamers plowing past . . . airplanes droning overhead.

Such is the kaleidoscopic life on Belle Isle, Detroit's famous playground—the center of her out-door activities.

You can reach Belle Isle three different ways—on foot—by automobile over a new bridge, nearly a mile long—and by a fleet of steamers which ply back and forth from the downtown waterfront.

But Belle Isle is only one of a thousand interesting places to go in and about Detroit. See its boulevards, the famous new Art Center—visit mammoth automobile factories—the hundreds of inland lakes. Half a hundred fascinating one-day side trips await you.

And by the way, the National Airplane Reliability Tour starts in Detroit, June 27th and ends there July 11th. A 10 day stop-over is allowed at Detroit on all round-trip tourists' tickets.

Colorado
A New Country

Fossils of sea-creatures are found in mile-high foothills—once ocean bottom. Prehistoric monsters have been excavated here, where once they roamed. Cliff Dwellings—now in ruins—were occupied as homes before 1492. Early explorers reported the country of indescribable magnificence. During the Civil War Colorado was a raw frontier.

AND NOW? Railroads and motor roads pierce the mountain fastnesses. There are rich cities with great modern hotels—vast and picturesque ranches—many delightful resorts. . . .

Yes, Colorado is Old—and New! It is Ageless—Filled with Ageless Wonders! Come up to Cool Colorado for your Vacation.

Mayence Cathedral Repaired.
By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, June 4.—A collapse which threatened to destroy the famous cathedral at Mayence has been averted after two years of strenuous and often dangerous effort. Great cracks had appeared in the walls and supporting pillars of the venerable structure, some of them wide enough to permit a man's arm to be inserted. The work of filling in the gaps with cement seemed so dangerous that the workers refused to start their tasks until the men directing the operations preceded them. Ten thousand cubic metres of cement have been poured into the foundations the last two years. The structure is now regarded as safe.

STORMS ISOLATE TOWNS IN ILLINOIS

Severe Wind and Heavy Rain in Several Sections—Three Railroads Washed Out.

By the Associated Press.

PEORIA, Ill., June 4.—Many small towns to the east of Peoria were isolated today as the result of a severe wind and heavy rain storm late last night. Eureka, El Paso and Roanoke were the largest of the towns hard hit, toll wires to those points being torn down and serious damage resulting. Houses were unroofed at Roanoke and several persons sustained injuries.

The Rock Island tracks were washed out for a distance of 300 feet near Sparland, north of here, due to cloudburst in that section last night. Trains to and from Chicago were routed over the Santa Fe by way of Joliet.

An 8-foot wall of water sweeping down Kickapoo Creek washed out the C., B. & Q. and the Northwestern Railroads at Pottstown, near here, at points where repairs of previous washouts just had been completed.

Communications Cut.

Telephone wires were torn down in all directions from Peoria, points east seemingly having been hardest hit. Trees and wires were blown down here and a heavy rain sent creeks on a new rampage. One house was hit by lightning and another partly wrecked by a falling tree. In East Peoria, where rehabilitation work is proceeding, additional inches of water was added to that which has been unable to drain off.

Houses were unroofed and several persons injured at Ipava in Fulton County.

All roads to Bartonville, a suburb, were under water for several hours and Glasford, a mining community five miles southwest of here, reported houses wrecked and a small cloudburst.

Other Sections Also Suffered.

Other sections of Illinois also suffered damages. A farming section a half mile wide and two miles long, six miles north of Pana, reported losses estimated at $50,000. Buildings were unroofed or wrecked, trees uprooted and crops ruined.

The Rock Island Railroad was cut both east and west of Peru during a cloudburst in which 2.03 inches of rain fell within two hours. Hundreds of automobiles were stalled on streets in Peru and La Salle. The flooded Illinois River went up 14 inches during the night.

Damage From Storm at Hannibal, Mo., Estimated at $100,000.

HANNIBAL, Mo., June 4.—Estimates of $100,000 damages were made today after a survey of losses caused by the wind, rain and hail storm which swept this city late yesterday. Wind velocity attained 50 miles an hour and the rainfall reached proportions of a cloudburst. Trees were uprooted, windows shattered and chimneys toppled.

This morning 1300 telephones were out of order and the city was in darkness last night because of impaired power lines.

Several persons were injured the most seriously being Mrs. M. Bopp, who slipped on a hail stone on her porch and suffered a fracture of a leg, and H. F. Ward, a city lineman, who fell while repairing a power line.

Church Moved 10 Feet by Wind During Storm Near Marshall, Mo.
By the Associated Press.

MARSHALL, Mo., June 4.—A wind storm struck the Wanamaker neighborhood, 12 miles south of Marshall, last night and spread destruction over a small area. No casualties were reported. The Salem Baptist Church was lifted from its foundation and moved 10 feet. Sheds were blown down and trees uprooted or their tops twisted off. Part of the destruction was along Federal highway No. 40.

COOLIDGE HAS MANY CALLERS AS VACATION DATE NEARS

Most Visitors Merely Want to Say Goodby; Secretary Decides on Shutdown.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, June 4.—Announcement of his plans to leave June 13 for the Black Hills of South Dakota has brought a flood of last-minute callers to President Coolidge.

Requests for meetings with the President have become so numerous in the last few days that Everett Sanders, his secretary, decided today that a shutdown would be necessary.

Most of the calls are merely for the purpose of saying goodbye. Many officials are here, although Congress is in recess, and all seem anxious to have a last word with Coolidge.

The President desires to clear up any pending problems prior to his departure and hopes to give as much time as possible to his work. Some appointments are to be decided upon, and he also is busy preparing an address to be delivered at the Budget meeting June 10 and another he will deliver at Hammond, Ind., June 14.

WOLF HUNTING NATIONALIZED

By the Associated Press.

MOSCOW, June 4.—The business of exterminating wolves has been nationalized in Russia.

A recent decree restricts wolf hunting to certain organizations. As a result, it is said, wolves are increasing by 80,000 to 85,000 yearly, and destroyed 40,000 to 50,000 cattle last year. Formerly wolf hunting was left to individuals and bounties were paid for killing them.

BRITISH FINANCIAL AND TRADE REVIEW OF WEEK

Special Wireless to the New York Evening Post.

LONDON, June 4.—Arthur W. Kiddy, editor of Bankers' Magazine and financial editor or the London Morning Post, in financial review, says:

"The British break with Russia and the Egyptian developments inspired greater caution, but no actual anxiety here this week with regard to the international political outlook.

"It is believed that Great Britain and France are entirely in harmony concerning Egypt, while it is impossible to say whether the severance of our relations with Russia will increase the mischief-making power of the soviets or whether, contrary, it may lead to a weakening power of present Russia regime and bring about a more honest administration that would be acceptable to all countries.

"The outlook for stocks apart from monetary considerations remains moderately good, with trade improving and employment figures at the best point for seven years, but still unlikely to inspire sufficient expansion to cause a material rise in money rates.

"Nevertheless, the markets would be sensitive to a higher bank rate, the prospects of which are quite undetermined because both London and New York are aware that the French gold demands are in category by themselves.

Gold Accumulation Basis.

"Unprecedented conditions and tactics have enabled the Bank of France to accumulate huge dollar and sterling credits, while equally extraordinary circumstances apparently have caused the French Bank to effect gold purchases in defiance of the position of exchange. Hitherto, save in cases of war or purely temporary accommodation, international gold movements have been governed by the position of exchange and the consequent profit or loss on gold shipments. The present French gold demands, however, apparently are governed by no such limitations or considerations.

"New York and London apparently both believe that the Bank of France's idea is that dearer money in our centers might check foreign purchases of the franc, which, however, in doubtful so far as London is concerned, because few, if any, of the purchases of French francs have been made on borrowed money.

"While, under the present tactics, the Bank of France's holdings of foreign currencies have increased the indebtedness of the French Government to the bank has diminished, the French Government's liabilities to the public on deposits are enormous and represent a kind of concealed floating debt.

Probably Slow to Raise Rates.

"Our bank probably would be slow to raise the rate, but might be compelled to do so if French gold withdrawals continued. While the investment markets naturally are dependent upon monetary developments, the general speculative markets probably will remain cheerful, although conservative business may be restrained until after the turn of the half year.

"Increased inquiries are coming for rubber on the American account and that market is looking firmer.

"New capital issues here in May totaled £34,500,000 against £22,350,000 in April and £11,000,000 in May last year. Of last month's total £24,000,000 was for home companies, £8,750,000 for British possession and £1,750,000 for foreign countries."

Weekly Butter Review.

CHICAGO, June 4.—Although receipts of butter for the week ended today show some accumulation, buying of long lines for storage purposes has tended to prevent any sharp price decline.

Receivers have been storing part of their high cost arrivals to avoid taking immediate loss, inasmuch as prices for consumptive channels are operating cautiously and are critical as to quality. Dealers generally, however, have followed a free selling policy which was most in evidence at Chicago where prices have declined 1½c since the opening of the week.

Shortage in storage holdings has been quite rapidly reduced. General estimates for June 1 holdings in the entire country range from 22,000,000 to 24,000,000 pounds, showing that a shortage of 14,000,000 pounds on May 1 has since been reduced at least 50 per cent.

Banca Italy Corporation Increases Authorized Capital.

NEW YORK, June 4.—The Banca Italy Corporation increased its authorized capital stock from $100,000,000 to $150,000,000 at a special meeting today. The resolution increasing the capital provided for an increase of shares from 4,000,000 to 6,000,000 at the same par value as heretofore, $25, each.

HOG PRICES DIP TO LOWEST SINCE 1924

	Last Week.	Prev. Week.	Year Ago
Cattle and calves	58,126	24,730	31,991
Hogs	97,543	94,850	73,795
Sheep	14,404	12,053	21,015
Horses and mules	827	391	318
Totals	140,960	132,023	127,119

Combined livestock receipts totaled considerably heavier last week than during the previous period in spite of being curtailed one day by reason of the holiday Monday. Prices ruled uneven, especially in cattle with most classes lower. Better beef steers and veal calves proved the only exceptions. Hogline steady while medium and Western steers, bulls and stocker and feeder cattle declined 25c, mixed steers and heifers 25c to 50c and cow stuff 50c to $1.00. Bulk of beef steers from native territory sold at $9.25 to $11.00, top $11.50 in both yearling and matured grades. Approximately 100 cars of Texas cattle comprised the season's largest run of this class so far. Sales varied from $6.10 for quarantine to $9.00 on best natives. Top heifers made $10.75 with mixed offerings topping at $10.25. Among the outstanding sales was that of three cars of sprayed Texas heifers at $8.50. Bulk of all sales in the butcher yearling division was taking $8.50 to $10.50. Beef cows, although reaching tops of $8.25 and $9.00, sold mostly at $5.75 to $8.00, while cutters made $4.75 to $5.50, a popular spread. Canners realized $3.75 to $4.50. Veal calfline was usual for this season and was caused largely by the influx of Western stock. Bulls declined 25c after opening the week on a steady basis while declines of 25c were claimed on most stocker and feeder cattle. Good veal calves closed the week steady at $11.50 for good and choice, other kinds in proportion.

Hogs Lowest Since 1924.

Hog prices here the current week dipped to the lowest level since 1924, with the bulk of lightweights on the order bringing $9. Two high marks for receipts in the past several years were recorded during the session. Tuesday's run following the holiday Monday, was 31,952 head, the largest for any one day since Feb. 1, 1915, and the second largest ever recorded here. Saturday's supply at 10,000 head, estimated, was also heavy; in fact, the largest for a week-end session since May, 1924. Total arrivals for the week were 95,753, against 94,850 the previous week and 73,795 a year ago. Advices did not carry any large number of hogs on the weights and a feature of the trade was the narrow spread between medium and heavy swine. The mixed grade ranged downward three cents on opening sessions and rallied Thursday, only to again rule off in the closing periods. The bulk of desirable light hogs Saturday, 160 to 190 pounds, brought $9.35, against $9.75 a week ago. Offerings 200 to 220 were down to $9.25@9.40, against $9.50@9.70, and 220 to 250 made $9.10@9.25, compared with $9.25@9.40. Weights swine at the close of the week were off to $9 with an odd lot at $8.90. Sows closed at $7.90 largely against $8 to $8.10 the previous Saturday. Pigs suffered a sharp break coincident to the drop in corn values. Descriptions 130 to 135 pounds Saturday earned only $8 to $8.75, whereas such kinds brought upward to $9@9.50 at the close of the previous week. Lights Saturday were noted as low as $7. The week's hog top was $9.65 per cwt., paid Tuesday and Thursday. Closing top was pushed down to $9.35.

Lambs Strong to Higher.

Lambs proved strong to 25c higher in the week's trading and sheep about steady. Receipts were moderate locally at about 14,000 head for the five days' run. All market centers combined showed a substantial decrease in arrivals from both a week ago and a year ago. Native spring lambs made up most of the run here and quality averaged fair. Although some shows were cleared at $16.50 per cwt., this sale was no criterion of the market, and the practical top rested at $16, although it was announced by the trade that choice offerings, had they been available, would have probably brought $16.25. As it was, buyers sorted comparatively light and, in fact, one string of lambs brought $16 straight. The bulk of native spring lambs for the week was $15.75 to $16, with some Tennessee and Kentucky offerings included at the $16 mark. A few cars of Southwest Missouri lambs moved at $15.50, and as low as $15, although virtually all of the good and choice assortments obtained $15.75 and better. Culls brought $11 and throwouts culls $9 to $10. Clipped lambs carrying some quality were noted at $13 to $13.50, no choice on hand. Aged sheep registered no change. Fat ewes eligible to $9.50@10 to $6.50, according to weight and quality, while choppers and bucks made $5.50 to $6 and canners $4.50 to $5.

Quotations—Slaughter Stock: Clipped lambs: good to choice handyweights, $13.25@13.75; medium to good, $12.75 to $13.25; plain to medium, $12 to $12.75; cull and common, $10 to $11.50; skips, $8 to $9. Fat goats, $3 to $4; thin to fair kinds, $1.50 to $3; fair to good kids, $4 to $7.

Horses and Mules.

Trading was active on the few horses and mules offered for sale here the past week and prices maintained a fully steady basis on both classes. Demand was especially good for big, harness-marked mules of good ages, while farm horses and mares also enjoyed a popular inquiry. By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, June 4.—The Evening Post in its copyrighted weekly financial review, says:

"While the approach of summer has brought no perceptible change in business, certain signs usually unmistakable, have come of topheaviness in the stock market. What looked like a strong advance early this week lost its force very soon when liquidation set in. Those on the constructive side the market main train their faith in future of industry, and even reckon on that stock prices will be held on a high level, but the fear is spreading that efforts to develope a rampant bull market now are destined to make trouble. It is not so surprising in the circumstances that for the first time in a long while the volume of transactions has begun to increase on market setbacks. This means that for the moment speculators are somewhat more concerned over the possibility of a general downward adjustment in prices than they have been for weeks. In some quarters it is thought that a severe decline is in prospect, but most speculators look for nothing more than moderate correction to the recent flurries. On the proposition that the stock market will undergo a downward adjustment sometime this year, most authorities agree, but on the extent of the change in prospect they heartily disagree.

Money Condition Factor.

Certainly the spectacular performance of the stock market during the last few weeks has been based upon faith in the continuance of a comfortable money position than in prospect for increased corporate profits. It nevertheless must be admitted that industry has been maintained at a higher rate of activity than generally was contemplated. Even the automobile industry, ditch the authorities confidently believed would fall substantially behind its 1926 record could that record this year if Henry Ford's plans result in greatly increased production. Perhaps the outstanding change now in process is that within the agricultural industry where commodity values are turning gently from lower to higher levels. Cotton, wheat and corn prices have led in the most substantial rise for farm prices witnessed in the last year, and in some respects the most significant advance of recent years. The significance of this improvement lies not alone in the extent of the advance, which has been substantial, but in its appearance just at this time, following the long agitation in Congress for artificial aid in raising farm prices.

"It at least inspires hope that the maladjustment in agricultural prices may be corrected in the normal course of events. Meanwhile progress is being made in various important agricultural districts through the introduction of more efficient methods in farm production. How significant this improvement in the agricultural price situation may be is a matter not possible now to determine. In a peculiar sense agricultural prices are subject to the vagaries of the weather, and for that reason no definite conclusions on the 1927 outcome can be drawn at this time.

Treasury Offering Reception.

"Just as the improvement in the agricultural outlook has been the recent outstanding development in industry, the huge Treasury operation has been the most conspicuous event in the financial world. While the new issue of 3½ per cent Government bonds was heavily over subscribed it is somewhat early to say how large an immediate retail distribution was made. The short-term issue brought out by the Government in March likewise was heavily over subscribed by the banks, but the institutional subscribers did not find it so easy as they had anticipated to pass these bonds on to investors. The difference between that issue and this lies, of course, in the fact that the new 3½s may be the last Government obligations of a distant maturity to be offered for public subscription in the present refunding program.

Rally at Week-End.

"Conflicting forces resumed their struggle for control of the market in active trading today on the Stock Exchange. While profit-taking and distribution continued on a broad scale and selling for the decline was evident in many parts of the list, buying of recently active specialties went ahead without interruption. Trapped shorts paid dearly in some of the issues in which the floating supply is reputed to be small. Receipts of $1,000,000 in gold from Holland, believed to be for French account, proved a stimulating factor as did a general belief credit conditions would be more favorable next week. Moreover, the market's technical position apparently was strengthened by yesterday's decline.

Steadier Tone Develops.

"Speculators for the decline, striving to press the advantage gained in yesterday's reaction, continued to flood the market with selling orders at the opening, but after another setback at the start a steadier tone developed and prices rallied before the end of the first hour, when considerable covering made itself apparent. Moreover, operators sponsoring specialties went ahead confidently in bidding up their favorites to new peaks. Several recently active public utilities were taken in hand and advanced briskly, among them being American Water Works, Standard Gas and Electric, Commonwealth Power and Public Service of New Jersey. In the specialty group new tops were reached by Houston Oil, Pittsburg Coal, National Distillers, Westinghouse Air Brake and others. Standard industrials and railroads moved irregularly in narrower limits. General Motors, Steel and Baldwin showed a tendency to recede at the start, but supporting order checked the decline.

Weekly Clearing House Statement.

"An explanation of the continued firmness in money rates was provided by the weekly statement of the clearing house banks, which revealed a deficit in reserves of $3,511,080, eliminating last week's huge excess reserve in a decrease in surplus of $73,915,120. Loans, discounts, etc., increased $51,894,000."

Lira Tone Firmer.

"In the foreign exchange market trading was at a standstill. Sterling eased again a trifle, while Spanish rates drifted lower. Lire showed a firmer tone.

BONDS RULE QUIET IN SHORT SESSION

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, June 4.—Except for brisk buying of Treasury certificates, which gave the Government list a firm undertone the bond market was extremely quiet in today's short session. More than $500,000 in Treasury 3¾s changed hands at slightly improved prices.

Activity in the rail section was again confined largely to convertible liens, with the Erie "D" 4s once more setting the pace. Baltimore & Ohio first 5s gained a point, but otherwise easing tendencies prevailed. Contrasting movements occurred in the public utility group. Brooklyn Union Gas debenture 5½s sold as high as 101, but Manhattan Railway second 4s broke 3 points to 59, the lowest of the year. Granby 7s advanced a point on a small turnover and American Writing Paper 6s attracted a considerable volume of buying. Little attention was given to foreign obligations, which displayed no definite trend.

Financial and Industrial Briefs

NEW YORK, June 4.

The Southern Railway ought to earn about $15 a share on the common stock this year, with net not much under $2,000,000 below last year, Walter Case, a director of the company, was quoted saying, on his departure for Europe.

Directors of the General American Tank Car Co. voted to retire 3500 shares of preferred stock. Max Epstein, president, said other changes in connection with dividends on the common stock were discussed, but final action was postponed until the September meeting. The regular semiannual dividend of $1.50 a share on the common and the irregular quarterly of $1.75 on the preferred were declared.

Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey has advanced navy gasoline in cases for export one-half cent a gallon, to 24.90 cents.

Amalgamated Silk reports net loss of $271,544 for the six months ended April 30. In 1926 the report covered four months ended April 30 and showed net loss of $141,499.

Sales of McCrory Stores for the five months this year rose to $14,088,000 from $11,820,474 in the same period of 1926. May sales increased 14.4 per cent over May last year.

Motor production of members of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce in June is exceeded last year by 10.5 per cent, it is indicated in reports of shipments, said Roy D. Chapin, chairman of Hudson Motor and president of the chamber, talking for Europe.

Abolishment of $1,000,000 in gold from Holland has been received by the American Exchange Irving Trust Co.

Wall street hears negotiations are underway for acquisition of Advance Bag and Paper Co. of Detroit by Union Bag and Paper Co. Advance Bag and Paper owns pulp and paper plants in Maine and Ohio as well as sewer pipe plants. Capitalization consists of about $3,700,000 in stock and $1,350,000 of funded debt.

W. R. Tracy, vice president of Oakland Motor, reports that June production of Oakland-Pontiac sixes broke all previous records, enabling the company to deliver 24,000 cars to dealers, setting up a new record 20 per cent higher than last year. May was the biggest month in the company's history.

HOUSTON OIL STOCK TO NEW HIGH, 159

NEW YORK, June 4.—Houston Oil was the individual feature on the stock market today, soaring 9¾ points to a new high record of 159, as against a low of 60¼ earlier in the year.

In one quarter today there was suggestion of trapped shorts being large factor in autumn.

STRONG TONE LATE IN DAY ON CURB

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, June 4.—Further weakness in a few higher-priced securities and a wavering tendency in the public utility division were offset by counter movements in other sections on the Curb today. Trading was less active than that of recent openings, due to the subsiding of selling pressure in the market leaders.

The sharp decline of 13 points in Celanese Co. of America had no apparent influence in view of the rapid advance in that issue during the week. Declines in the public utilities were mostly confined within a point range. Oil shares held steady.

Support that appeared on the reactions imparted a strong tone in the last hour's dealings. New high record was made in the late buying movement in Cellulold Co.

Foreign Exchange

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, June 4.—The Evening Post, in its weekly foreign exchange review, says:

"Business in foreign exchange all week was of a desultory character, but several leading exchanges developed heaviness in the last few days, chiefly because of the easier money conditions in London. Sterling, which showed a firm tone at the start, yielded later to $4.85¾ for demand, the selling of exchange on London being on a large scale, especially on Thursday. French was steadily held close to 3.91¾ for cables, although some transactions wer. made slightly below that level. Italian exchange traveled over a wide range, first advancing from 5.49 to 5.65 and then losing over half that gain. Dealings on both the advance and reaction were small in volume, the movements being more a variation in quotations to conform with prices prevailing on the other side than a reflection of actual business here. Little activity marked Scandinavian exchange. Danish rose 3 points and made a new high for the year at 26.71 for checks. Norwegian had an advance of 10 points, bringing crown checks up to 26 cents, but reacted from that level. Portuguese exchange was adjusted to the London cables, the escudo being quoted at 5 cents.

"Japanese showed a weak tone, yen checks falling to 46.05, a loss of more than 30 points for the week. Silver exchanges were firmer, with most interest attached to an advance of ⅝c on Shanghai.

"Canadian exchange developed weakness, falling 1-16, to 100.01. Mexican was heavy and yielded 10 points to 46.65 for the gold peso. Hungarian exchange was in increased demand and moved up 10 points, to 17.10.

"There was little feature in South American rates, except in exchange on Peru, which rose 10 cents to 3.75. Colombian was firm for a time, making an advance of about ½, to 42.44.

"In the foreign exchange market Saturday trading was at a standstill. Sterling eased again a trifle, while Spanish rates drifted lower. Lire showed a firmer tone."

COTTON CLOSES LOWER ON PROSPECTS FOR SHOWERS

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, June 4.—Moderate rallies were followed by declines in the cotton market today under selling promoted by prospects for showers in the southeast part of West Texas. October sold off from 17.03c t o16.77c and closed at 16.86c. The general market closed steady at net declines of 9 to 10 points.

The opening was steady at a decline of 5 to 10 points on overnight selling orders, probably inspired by the easier ruling of prices here yesterday. There was nothing in the earlier weather news to suggest immediate relief from the West Texas drouth, however, while New Orleans was a considerable buyer here at the start, and prices soon rallied.

July sold up to 16.64c and December to 17.27c, net advances of about 5 to 8 points, but the New Orleans buying, which was supposed to be mostly against sales there, tapered off with the readjustment of the differences between the two markets, and prices here weakened.

A private review of crop progress during the last half of May said present prospects pointed to a reduction of about 10 per cent in acreage, which was slightly below the average of recent private reports, but was not mentioned prominently as a market influence.

The amount of cotton on shipboard awaiting clearance at the end of the week was estimated at 124,000 bales, against 57,000 at the same time last year.

Owing to the Whitsuntide holidays there were no sales from Liverpool. The English market will also be closed on Monday.

New York Cotton

NEW YORK, June 4.—A fdrecast of showers in parts of West Texas led to renewed liquidation in the cotton market here today and an early advance was followed by declines which carried prices off to 16.77c for October. There was partial rally, however, in the late trading, and October closed at 16.86c, with general market closing 8 to 10 points net lower. Spot cotton declined 10 points to 16.75.

CHAMPIONS END VANCE'S STRING OF VICTORIES

Singles by Frisch and Bottomley and Sacrifice Fly by Jim Account for Three Scores Against Dazzy.

By J. Roy Stockton.

Charles Flint Rhem held the Brooklyn Dodgers to three hits yesterday afternoon, beating the great Dazzy Vance in a pitching duel, and the 4 to 0 victory with which the Cardinals celebrated "O'Farrell day" enabled the world champions to move into second place, half a game ahead of the New York Giants, who took one on the chin in Cincinnati.

Rhem never was a better pitcher than he was in this duel with the great Vance. His control was perfect, not a Dodger drawing a base on balls, and his curves broke sharply. His speed was the speed that enabled him to win 11 of his first 12 games last season, and finish the campaign with 20 victories.

Passes Off Vance Help.

Vance was trying to prolong a winning streak, which had reached six, but he ran into a snag in them and the productive bats of the world champions. He held his own with the strong-armed youth from South Carolina for only two innings. In the third he lost his control, put two men on the bases with passes and then Frankie Frisch and Jim Bottomley came through with singles, driving in two runs, one more than was necessary to give Rhem his triumph. Schulte and Douthit drew in the third inning passes and scored the runs driven in by Frisch and Bottomley.

O'Farrell's men added two more runs, one in the sixth on Hafey's single, Chick's stolen base and Southworth's single, and one in the eighth on a pass to Douthit, Frisch's second single and Bottomley's sacrifice fly. But the runs were not needed. They merely added to Rhem's margin of victory.

One Hit Off Rhem a Scratch.

One of the three hits off Rhem was a scratch. Vance hit to left center to start the sixth inning, and Hafey reached the ball, without too much effort. But the ball popped out of Chick's hand, and because it was a bit of a run for Hafey, Dazzy was given a two-base hit in the box score. The other hits were a double by Hendrick, with two out in the first inning, a line drive down the right

CHAMPIONS END VANCE'S STRING OF VICTORIES

Singles by Frisch and Bottomley and Sacrifice Fly by Jim Account for Three Scores Against Dazzy.

By J. Roy Stockton.

Charles Flint Rhem held the Brooklyn Dodgers to three hits yesterday afternoon, beating the great Dazzy Vance in a pitching duel, and the 4 to 0 victory with which the Cardinals celebrated "O'Farrell Day" enabled the world champions to move into second place, half a game ahead of the New York Giants, who took one on the chin in Cincinnati.

Rhem never was a better pitcher than he was in this duel with the great Vance. His control was perfect, not a Dodger drawing a base on balls, and his curves broke sharply. His speed was the speed that enabled him to win 11 of his last 12 games last season, and finish the campaign with 20 victories.

Passes Off Vance Help.

Vance was trying to prolong a winning streak, which had reached six, but he ran into a snag in Rhem and the productive bats of the world champions. He held his own with the strong-armed youth from South Carolina for only two innings. In the third he lost his control, put two men on the bases with passes and then Frankie Frisch and Jim Bottomley came through with singles, driving in two runs, one more than was necessary to give Rhem his triumph. Schulte and Douthit drew in third inning passes and scored the runs driven in by Frisch and Bottomley.

O'Farrell's men added two more runs, one in the sixth on Hafey's single, Chick's stolen base and Southworth's single, and one in the ninth on a pass to Douthit, Frisch's second single and Bottomley's sacrifice fly. But the runs were not needed. They merely added to Rhem's margin of victory.

One Hit Off Rhem a Scratch.

One of the three hits off Rhem was a scratch. Vance hit to left center to start the sixth inning, and Hafey reached the ball, without too much effort. But the ball slipped out of Chick's hand, and because it was a bit of a run for Hafey, Dazzy was given a two-base hit in the box score. The other hits were a double by Hendrick, with two out in the first inning, a line drive down the right

Buddy Bauer's Jockey Tells How His Mount Won Fairmount Derby

Alfred Johnson Says He Realized Bradley's Horse Had a Chance as He Passed Judges' Stand the First Time—Did Not Have a Cent Wagered on Victor.

By Jack Alexander

Alfred Johnson, who stunned 25,000 racing spectators in riding Buddy Bauer to victory yesterday in the $25,000 Fairmount Derby at Fairmount Park, was fairly well stunned himself.

Johnson, who is 26, slight in the manner of his profession, quick mannered, was glowing with justifiable pride as, fresh from his shower, he received the congratulations of his rivals in the Derby, Earl Sande, the king of jockeys, Willie Pool and others.

"I must say I was rather surprised to win myself," he said with a grin, as stooping before a mirror he slipped his tie under his collar and brushed stray drops of water from his pompadour. "I didn't even have a bet on him, not a nickel."

"Buddy Bauer, you know, is not supposed to be such a great horse. Last year Mr. Bradley, the owner, had some wonderful 3-year-olds in Boot to Boot, Baggenbaggage and Bubbling Over, but this year's crop was not so good. That is why I am surprised and happier than I can say to have been able to win for Mr. Bradley.

First Ray of Hope.

"As soon as we passed the judges' stand the first time I began to realize that I had a chance to bring Buddy in first. He had got off well and I eased him up a bit on the first turn and lost a little ground, confident that I could make it up when the time came.

"Between the half mile and five-eighths post, as I recall it, I pulled up close to Sande on Osmand, and by the time we came into the stretch we were just about on even terms. From then on it was just a case of Buddy having more left in reserve, and I gave him a taste of the crop. We won, I believe, by about a length.

"I never feared Osmand much in all my early figuring. Whiskery and Jock were the doubtful ones with me. I knew I had to beat them."

The downfall of Osmand was almost pathetic because of certainty of his followers in the infallibility of the "figgers." Osmand was so heavily backed that, had he won,

STANFORD WINS PACIFIC COAST TRACK CROWN

Victory, by Two Points, Is Third of Year Over Southern California — Three Meet Marks Fall.

By the Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, June 4.—Leland Stanford University won the Pacific Coast intercollegiate athletic championship here today by a margin of two points over Southern California.

The victory of Stanford was the third this year over Southern California. Stanford wrested the national title from the Trojans in the Intercollegiate A. A. A. championships at Philadelphia last Saturday.

The Cardinals exhibited their greatest strength in the field and nosed out their rivals when Huffman captured the final event, the discus. Stanford's score was 55½.

Three Records Fall.

Three Pacific Coast intercollegiate records toppled before the Southern Californians but the points gained in these events were not enough to check that potent arm of Stanford's aggregation—the field.

Borah Sets New Mark.

Alex Graham, Southern California hurdler, set a new Pacific Coast intercollegiate record when he cleared the 220-yard low barriers in 24 seconds. The former time was 24 2-5 seconds, established by Monty Wells, Stanford, in 1920.

Charley Borah, Southern California's sprint sensation, flashed down the cinder path to a new mark of 21 seconds flat in the 220-yard dash, victor over Dean Anderson, Washington ace, by two yards. The former record, 21 3-5 seconds, was established in 1920 by Morris Kirksey of Stanford.

CROWD SWARMS ONTO TRACK

Jockeys Have Difficult Time Avoiding Serious Accidents—Grandstand So Crowded Patrons Can't Get to Certificate Betting Windows.

After having remained under restraint all afternoon, the crowd broke across the track and swarmed into the infield, just as the horses were going to the post. The jockeys had a difficult time picking their way through the crowd which swarmed over the track. Happily no accident resulted from the wild scramble.

"Beautiful weather, a grand crowd and a thrilling race," said C. Bruce Head, general manager of the Fairmount Jockey Club, when asked what he thought of the Derby day turnout. "Magnificent," said Lyman T. Hay, president of the club.

"I asked Jockey Alfred Johnson, Friday night what he thought of his chances," said Hay, "and he answered: 'I'm not greedy. If we finish third we'll be doing well enough.' So, I guess Johnson was a bit surprised."

The closing odds, before the start of the big race were as follows: Jock, 8-1; Black Panther, 10-1; Whiskery, 4-1; Osmand, 9-10; Handy Mandy, 20-1; Rolled stocking, 11-2, and Buddy Bauer, last on the board, 20 to 1.

It is conservatively estimated that 4500 grand stand patrons placed no bets during the entire program. It was physically impossible to get through the aisles, the crowd was so dense.

Handy Mandy, the only filly in the Derby, was scheduled to carry only 109 pounds, but Jockey W. Lilley could not get under 111 pounds and thus the filly carried two more pounds than the handicappers demanded.

A lot of astonishing things happened at Fairmount yesterday but none more surprising than the manner in which the running track dried out after the succession of cloudbursts it has been subjected to in the past month. It was dusty dry on the surface although a bit soft underneath.

Tom Kearney, local betting commissioner, reported last night that he had received almost no play whatever on Buddy Bauer in the advance "book."

Close finishes in the second, third and fourth races aroused the spectators to a state of high excitement before the Derby had even started.

Those who could do so visited the paddock to get a glimpse of horse flesh from close range, but the crowd there became so dense that comparatively few got near enough to see more than the tip of a thoroughbred's ears as he was walked around the enclosure for public inspection.

The track restaurant was so constantly filled with those who left St. Louis before lunch that scores of hungry individuals resorted to a fist full of hot dog and a seat on the grass.

The supporters of Buddy Bauer in the betting were few and those who won delayed cashing their tickets long enough to show them proudly to their friends. One of these fortunate bettors was J. G. Taylor Spink, who held twenty $2 tickets on the winner. They brought him $1104.

Although not so large as the throng of last year, the crowd filled Fairmount Park to its capacity. Perfect policing of the grounds prevented the mass from overflowing into the infield. Although the absence of summer weather tended to bring out dark-colored clothes, the crowd was anything but sombre.

William Cain, purchased Gay Hallie from J. McNamara, and she ran in the colors of her new owner in the first race.

F. C. Trevis arrived at the track with Chocolate Soldier, Mon's Meg and Cuban Flag. D. Sullivan brought Sunny Gal and R. Lucas arrived with Maddenstown.

L. Pichon led the jockeys in the week's earnings with $444, exceeding R. Jones' record of last year by $24. L. McClair earned $183 and W. Curran $177.

Buddy Bauer, superbly handled and kept prominently in pursuit of leaders during early stages, was hustled into lead at stretch turn and under spring held Whiskery safe during final drive. Whiskery was well up in the early running, but was taken back several times and suffered some interference when Osmand began tiring. Osmand raced well, but tired fast when urged hard during last furlong. Jock showed good speed after breaking faultily, but was done after going a mile and was ridden hard near end. Rolled Stocking was done after three-quarters. Black Panther tired badly.

By Dent McSkimming.

Buddy Bauer's chances of winning the Fairmount Derby were so little thought of that E. R. Bradley, his owner and an astute judge of horse flesh, did not take the trouble to journey to St. Louis from Louisville to see the race.

Buddy Bauer was so little thought of as a probable winner that Bradley did not even send his first-string trainer to Fairmount with the horse. Instead he sent a third-string handler, a Negro assistant trainer.

Buddy Bauer's name created so little enthusiasm among the stable hands and riders that his jockey, Alfred Johnson, did not have a nickel bet on him.

Buddy Bauer, in the opinion of the 25,000 spectators at the race-track yesterday afternoon, was just one of seven starters. "He finished sixth at Louisville in the Kentucky Derby a few weeks ago, running against the same field. He hasn't got a chance," said the students of racing form and past performances.

His owner didn't like him, his rider didn't like him, rival jockeys disregarded him as a possible winner, the crowd ignored him.

And then Buddy Bauer won the race.

The mass of sentiment in favor of Osmand, ridden by Earl Sande, and Whiskery, winner of the Kentucky Derby, combined with the disregard of Buddy Bauer resulted in a huge mutuel price against the Bradley colt. He was quoted at 20 to 1 against in the pre-race betting and still there were few who would risk their money.

At the finish a $2 ticket on Buddy Bauer paid $55.20.

Since everyone was so certain Buddy Bauer could not win, one might ask why the owner started him in the race. For several reasons, one of which is that E. R. Bradley likes to gamble. Another is that the Fairmount running track has a soft top dressing, particularly suited to horses that like the mud. Buddy Bauer is rated a "mudder." Another is that Bradley wanted conclusive evidence regarding the ability of his horse. Now, he has that proof.

That Buddy Bauer did win was due to a series of circumstances and largely to the skill of Jockey Alfred Johnson.

All Buddy Bauer in Stretch.

The Bradley colt was not prominent at any stage of the mile and a quarter race until Johnson asked him to show what he could do at the head of the stretch. He was running fourth when Johnson started his move. From that point on it was all Buddy Bauer, for the others were worn out from their effort in dueling for the lead.

Jock, the early pace-setter, dropped out of the competition in that last furious drive through the stretch and finished fourth.

Seven started, there having been no withdrawals before the race.

The track was dry and fast, but probably not so good as it was last year, when Haste won the Derby in the remarkable time of 2:03 2-5. Buddy Bauer's time for the mile and a quarter was 2:05 2-5.

This triumph for the Bradley stable compensates in some measure for the failure of western horses in the recent Kentucky Derby and the conquest of Haste at Fairmount last season.

The crowd which witnessed the victory of Buddy Bauer and the overthrow of the Kentucky Derby winner was estimated at 25,000. Although it showed evidence of being stunned by the victory of Bradley's horse, it was none the less enthusiastic in its spontaneous cheering of the winner. It was grievously disappointed at the failure of Earl Sande to bring home Osmand in front, for the mutuel reports showed that Osmand was an odds-on favorite. In other words, he was an overwhelming choice of the bettors.

Credit Due Johnson for Holding Buddy Bauer Back From the Pace

To Alfred Johnson should go much of the credit for the victory for it was his perfect racing judgment, his wisdom in restraining his horse in the first half mile, when Jock, Osmand and then Whiskery took turns at setting the pace, that ultimately enabled Buddy Bauer to outlast Whiskery in the stretch. Johnson, whether not sure of the endurance of his horse or through keen racing judgment, kept Buddy Bauer running easily in fourth place, just back of the cavalcade of leaders which at times were running three abreast.

At the stretch turn, where Osmand weakened, Buddy Bauer started to move up. The pace and the distance appeared to be much to his liking, for he kept coming on and on while the others slowed up. Osmand he passed a furlong from home and then his nose was at Whiskery's saddle cloth. The Whitney horse was on the rail, having assumed that favorable position after disposing of Osmand. Johnson made no effort to cut too close to Whiskery, but held his mount's head straight and true up the track. Whiskery is no quitter. The pace was terrific and jockeys were bringing into play every art and device they knew to stimulate their mounts to greater effort.

Whiskery finally weakened when almost in the shadow of the judges' stand and Buddy Bauer shot through to victory, pulling away from Whiskery at every stride. Osmand finished third.

It is possible that the eight pounds advantage which Whiskery conceded Buddy Bauer had its greatest influence on the race in this last 70 yards, when the Whitney colt weakened and Buddy Bauer continued strong to the end. Bradley received $24,000 and a silver trophy through his colt's victory.

VANGILDER OUTPITCHES JOHNSON AND BROWNS WIN, 5 TO 3

Senators Make Only Seven Hits; Schulte Knocks a Home Run

Gerber, Vangilder and Adams Connect for Extra-Base Blows in Four-Run Rally in Third—Errors Pave Way For All Washington Scores.

By A Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, June 4.—Pounding Walter Johnson for nine hits totaling 16 bases, the Browns this afternoon chalked up their second straight victory over the Senators, 5 to 3. Elam Vangilder was in fine form and but for errors by Gerber and O'Rourke would have registered a shutout.

Every member of the Howley brigade except Bing Miller broke into the hit column and Sisler was credited with a pair, but honors for the longest blow of the afternoon went to Fred Schulte, who gave an illustration of the propensities he developed in Milwaukee last season by whaling a ball high up into the left field stand for a home run in the fourth inning.

The business of hitting for extra bases was begun in the third inning when the Browns collected a quartet of tallies that proved sufficient to obtain the verdict.

Schang was cheated out of one at the beginning of the frame when West traveled out and back for Wally's stiff drive. Then the fun began.

The Big Inning.

Gerber connected for a liner that Goslin misjudged. The Goose belatedly backed up and leaped for the ball but it passed over his upstretched fingers and netted three bases. Vangilder promptly shunted a safety over third base that was good for a brace of hassocks, scoring Gerber. O'Rourke convinced Umpire Dinneen that an inside delivery had grazed his shirt and took a stroll to first. Adams belted a blow past Speaker that gave him two bases and scored Vangilder, and when Sisler singled to center, O'Rourke and Adams reached the counting block.

Thereafter Johnson balked the efforts of Howley's outfit, although they got one or more athletes on the runways in all but one of the final five frames.

The Senators failed to benefit from a pair of bingles they collected in the initial frame, and were handed a wholly unearned tally in the third. O'Rourke paved the way by making a three-base wild throw of Bluege's smash, and the runner scored while Gerber was tossing out Speaker.

Another Error, Two Scores.

Tris was robbed of what would have been a productive single in the sixth, with Senators on third and second as a result of a pass and Goslin's double, when Adams went back of second to make a sparkling play on Speaker's whack, but faulty fielding back of Vangilder led to a pair of runs being charged against him in the seventh.

Sam Rice singled for a starter and with the next two men disposed of, Ruel lined a single off O'Rourke's glove. Gerber retrieved the ball and if his throw to Adams had been good, a force-out would have resulted. The ball carried into right field, however, putting Senators on third and second, and Johnson scored them with a single to left.

Speaker tried to start something in the eighth with a single, but it was unsupported, and a pair of Senatorial pinch hitters in the ninth failed to penetrate Vangilder's armor.

Mertz to Defend Championship in St. Clair Event

Qualifying Round of Southern Illinois Tourney Will Be Played Tuesday.

Pairings for the sixth annual Southern Illinois Amateur Golf Championship tournament, which begins Tuesday over the St. Clair Country Club course, between Belleville and East St. Louis, Ill., were announced yesterday by the Tournament Committee of which A. C. Hall is chairman. Contestants who are entered from the 20 country clubs throughout Southern Illinois make up the association, will tee off in the qualifying round.

Billy Mertz, St. Clair Country Club star, who has won the amateur title of Southern Illinois five successive years, is again entered in the present tournament. Chief competition for Mertz this year is expected to come from his brother, Harvey, and George Reeder and John L. Rainey, both of the latter from Mount Vernon. Reeder has thrice been runner-up to Mertz and Rainey, a veteran of more than 60 years, took the St. Clair ace to the thirty-fourth green before their finals match ended in last year's tournament at Centralia.

St. Clair Country Club's course, a par 72, is in fair condition for the tournament. Many of the fairways are heavy from the rains of this spring, but greens generally are fast.

Tilden and Hunter Are Eliminated From Doubles Of French Net Tourney

Borotra and Lacoste Win Mat ch Marked by Many Errors a Purported Ill Feeling— "Big Bill" Fooled Many Times by Sh ots of Foes.

By the Associated Press.

ST. CLOUD, France, June 4.—William T. Tilden and Francis Hunter were eliminated today from the doubles of the International hard court tennis tournament. The American pair went down in defeat before Jean Borotra and Rene Lacoste of France, 4—6, 6—2, 3—6, 6—2, in a hard battle which was marked by many errors on both sides.

The players showed such keen desire to win that they made mistakes through over-anxiety. On the other hand, they also put over some almost incredible shots.

Tilden Fooled Many Times.

Hunter played magnificent tennis, while Tilden made many errors in daring attempts at difficult strokes. The redeeming feature of "Big Bill's" play was his service, which was lost only once. But he was fooled many times by shots at his feet and also was passed cleverly by both Borotra and Lacoste, who centered their attack upon Tilden and who displayed better teamwork than the Americans.

Rumors of ill-feeling between the two teams were circulated among the spectators. It was stated that the Frenchmen resented Tilden's refusal to resume the match at the point where it was left off Thursday. (Rain stopped play after the match had been started Thursday and Borotra and Lacoste were leading 4-3 in the first set.)

Some even insisted that Borotra had called Tilden a "poor sport." Both Tilden and Borotra denied this, but the behavior of the players on the courts was taken to confirm the reports that feeling existed.

Tilden to Meet Lacoste.

No harsh words were heard during the match. The behavior of the players was correct throughout—some even remarked that there was an excess of politeness.

The final of the men's double Monday will be an all-French affair. Borotra and Lacoste will meet their countrymen, Henri Cochet and Jacques Brugnon, who eliminated Louis Raymond and Vincent Condon of South Africa, 6-2, 1-6, 4-6, 6-2, 6-3, in today's other semi-final. Cochet and Brugnon won the Wimbledon championship last year.

Tomorrow afternoon Tilden will play Lacoste in the final of the men's singles. Tilden defeated Lacoste, 6-4, 7-5, in their last meeting, May 30.

Miss Bouman of Holland will meet Mrs. Peacock of South Africa tomorrow in the final of the women's singles.

Rhem Victor Over Vance In Brilliant Pitching Due

field line, and a single by Partridge, a drive to center.

Partridge's hit started the fourth inning, but Rhem was so good that he turned back Hendrick, Herman and Felix, three good hitters, and Partridge was left stranded on second base.

Only one man advanced as far as third for the Dodgers. That was Vance, who moved to third in the sixth on Carey's grounder which Frisch fumbled. That put runners on first and third with nobody out, but still the Dodgers could not break through Rhem's pitching.

Hafey Gets Vance at Plate.

This was the only inning, in fact, in which the Cardinals had to do any great fielding. Douthit raced in for a good catch of Partridge's line drive and threw so quickly to the plate that Vance did not even start home. Hendricks, the next batter, sent a fly to Hafey. Vance "committed suicide" by starting for home after the catch and Hafey, whose muff had given Vance his double, atoned for it by shooting a perfect throw to the plate and Vance was out by a ten-foot margin.

In addition to breaking the winning streak of Vance, the Cards also stopped a victorious march of the Dodgers, who had won five straight prior to their appearance here.

Moreover, the Cardinals gained half a game on the Pirates, who were stopped by rain, and now are only four games behind the leaders.

ALEXANDER AND HAINES TO PITCH TODAY'S TWIN BILL

Grover Cleveland Alexander, who looks 10 years younger since his attack of measles a month ago, will pitch one game of the double-header with the Dodgers this afternoon. Jess Haines will work in the other, and Jess Petty and Bill Doak are due to appear on the slab for Brooklyn.

Two bases on balls gave the Cardinals a chance to draw first blood in the pitching duel between Vance and Rhem. Schulte drew the first one, leading off in the third inning. Thevenow filed to Felix and Rhem struck out, but Douthit coaxed another pass and Frisch singled to right, scoring Schulte and sending Douthit to third. Bottomley then lived up to his reputation as a pinch hitter by shooting a single to center, scoring Douthit and sending Frisch to third. The double steal was ordered, but Deberry's throw to third nailed Frisch.

Hendricks doubled in the first, but two were down and Bell threw out Herman to end the inning.

Rhem Invincible.

Rhem turned back the enemy in order in the second and third, and in the fourth, after Partridge had led off with a single to center, Flint disposed of Hendrick, Herman and Felix.

Two bad plays put Rhem in the hole in the sixth, but Hafey, aided by a stupid play by Vance, pulled Flint out of trouble. Hafey dropped Vance's drive after getting both hands on the ball, but he had to make a long run for it, and Vance was given a double. Frisch fumbled Carey's grounder, Vance moving to third. Douthit then ran in for a clever catch of Partridge's liner and Hafey took Hendrick's fly, and Vance, trying to score after the catch, was still 10 feet away when Schulte caught Hafey's perfect throw.

The Cardinals added one in their half of the sixth. Hafey singled over second, with two down, stole second and scored on Southworth's single to center.

Vance's Streak Broken.

Vance, prior to this game, had won six in a row after losing his first three starts. His last victory was the 101st of his major league career, against 55 defeats. Vance entered the majors in 1922.

Two recruits joined the Dodgers yesterday—Troy Stallings, a lefthanded pitcher from Rice University, and Heine Baumgartner, an outfielder from Texas University.

When Thevenow made a poor throw of Deberry's grounder in the eighth with one out, Rhem was sent in to run for the catcher and Meusel batted for Vance, but Frisch ran into center field for the pinch hitter's short fly and Carey ended the inning with a fly to Hafey.

Ehrhardt pitched the eighth inning and the Cards added their fourth run. Douthit drew a pass to start it, Frisch singled to right, sending Taylor to third and Bottomley then hit a sacrifice fly to Hendrick.

Reds Turn Back Giants, 5-1, and End Losing Streak

Rixey Scores First Victory in Tenth Start, Allowing Five Hits.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CINCINNATI, June 4.—Eppa Rixey's first victory of the season came today in his tenth start on the hill when the Reds beat the Giants, 5 to 1, by hammering Bill Clarkson for 16 hits while Rixey was yielding only five. This ended a Red slump of six straight losses and made the Cincinnati record for the year eight victories in 10 games on Saturdays. It was the first game the Reds have won from New York this year.

Singles by Ford, Wanninger, Rixey and Dressen, all hit after there were two out with the bases empty, gave the Reds a winning margin in the fourth round.

Rixey pitched steady ball after the first in which he got into trouble but escaped unscarred.

WRAY'S COLUMN

Jack Be Nimble.

WILLIAM HARRISON DEMPSEY has been doing preliminary training for one month. How earnest this training has been reports do not fully disclose.

Photographs just received at this office, show him brown as a berry boxing, wood chopping, road running and otherwise working hard at Soper's ranch, in the Ventura Mountains, California.

Only a slight trace of surplus weight is visible about his hipline; so little as to be scarcely noticeable. Outwardly, Dempsey appears the rugged and powerful power plant of old.

But looks mean little. Willie Meehan, chunk of blubber, could put up a rattling good fight, despite his wretched-looking exterior.

On the other hand, we remember James J. Jeffries' appearance following his long training for his comeback with Johnson. Experts were amazed at Jeffries' "wonderful physical condition;", many were fooled by it.

But Jeff wasn't there. Despite his good appearance, he wasn't back with his fighting skill, his morale or his youthful ambition.

Chances Against Jack.

IT is going far to say that Dempsey CAN'T come back. But it is not overstating it to say that Dempsey cannot come back except in the same manner by which he first rose to the top—that is by fighting.

What defeats comeback efforts is NOT failure to regain health and strength, but failure to regain boxing skill and fighting spirit.

Plenty of road work, a few real fights with fair opponents, and a genuine desire to fight his way to the top again can put Dempsey back where he was.

Dempsey, however, will probably go into the ring against Sharkey without having fulfilled all of these requirements. It will not be well with him unless he does.

Our Champions.

FIGHT fans who are partial to the meat ax and mayhem biffers, as opposed to the jab and getaway style, are finding scant comfort in the returns from the front line.

Recent developments in the various championship divisions have revealed no fighters in any class able to dent a robin's egg.

Friday, Joe Dundee shoved Pete Latzo out of the spotlight. But in climbing into the picture the new welter title-holder caused no excitement at all—scarcely a thrill. He won by a decision. Since Dempsey passed on, there remains today on the throne not one king of the ring who was able to win his title by a knockout.

Not One Kayo King.

READ this and weep, all ye who think a heavy fist is worth more than ring science:

FLYWEIGHT—Fidel LaBarba, won his title from Frankie Genaro, 10 rounds, decision.

BANTAMWEIGHT — Buddy Taylor won his title by default.

FEATHERWEIGHT—Open.

LIGHTWEIGHT — Sammy Mandell won a hairline decision from Rocky Kansas, 10 rounds.

WELTERWEIGHT — Joe Dundee beat Pete Latzo, decision, 15 rounds.

MIDDLEWEIGHT — Mickey Walker, undeserved decision over Tiger Flowers, 10 rounds.

LIGHT HEAVYWEIGHT — Jack Delaney, 15-round decision over Berlenbach.

HEAVYWEIGHT — Gene Tunney, 10-round decision over Dempsey.

Not a convincing champion among the lot, say the hard-boiled boys who like to see their favorites mince the enemy.

Only a short time ago the whole trend of the ring world was toward the knock-em-dead stylists. Today, apparently, the type is as extinct as the Dodo Bird.

Call the Ambulance.

PLANS to match Jack Dempsey and Johnny Risko, however, are being watched by the members of the Order of the Wallop. Memories of the Firpo hog-killing will be revived if these two mingle in combat at Detroit.

Risko is a big husky who can hit and take it; but he is as short of science as he is long on willingness. The power of Dempsey's punch could be definitely settled in this fight. Dempsey, slow as he now is, could hardly miss this target.

Friends of Dempsey hope he takes this bout—and as many more as time permits, before he again puts his fortune to the touch in a big bout. He will need all the tuning up he can get ere taking on either Sharkey or Tunney.

Jinx of the "Most Valuable."

BOB O'Farrell's most valuable player" award having been duly received and celebrated, perhaps the jinx that has followed the honor in both leagues will ease up on his custom of riding the so-called "lucky player."

Here's what happened to the men who in the past have been honored in the two major leagues with the most valuable player trophy:

AMERICAN LEAGUE.

1922—George Sisler, out the entire season following with double vision.

1923—Babe Ruth, in trouble with his manager, suspended and fined, sick and had very bad year for Babe.

1924—Walter Johnson, out this year with broken ankle until recent date.

1925 — Roger Peckinpaugh, broke world's record for errors in world's series, following the award; also let go by Washington team.

1926—George Burns, he's safe so far.

HONORARY—Ty Cobb and Tris Speaker, forced out of management of their respective clubs and involved in scandal charges. Eddie Collins, released as manager of the White Sox and victim of leg injury.

NATIONAL LEAGUE.

1924 — Dazzy Vance, broke down completely the next season.

1925—Rogers Hornsby, had a poor year, injured his spine, and wound up by getting in hot water through gambling and wrangles with his club.

1926—Bob O'Farrell, suffered injury to his arm which has kept him out of the game practically all season.

According to this schedule $1600 is a poor reward for the winning an honor that carries such a jinx with it.

O'Farrell Honored As Most Valuable Player in League

$1000 in Gold and Medallion Presented St. Louis Club's Manager.

Bob O'Farrell, manager of the World Champion Cardinals, was honored yesterday afternoon as the National League's "Most Valuable Player to his Team" during the season of 1926. Bob received $1,000 in gold pieces from John Heydler, President of the League, and a medallion emblematic of the honor which was conferred on him by a committee of newspaper men, one from each city in the circuit.

The medallion was handed to Bob by Martin J. Haley, St. Louis representative of the Baseball Writers' Association of America.

Before the game with the Dodgers there was a parade around the field, with public school and neighborhood fife and drum corps furnishing music. Members of both teams then gathered at home plate and the presentations were made. President Sam Breadon, of the Cardinals, and Cullen Cain, publicity director of the league also participated in the parade and ceremonies.

O'Farrell was an outstanding choice for the honor of being the league's most valuable player. Traded by the Cubs to the Cardinals in 1925, O'Farrell immediately became the regular backstop of the St. Louis team. He had been riding the bench in Chicago because his team mate, Gabby Hartnett, was in a home run hitting mood and it took a month or two for Bob to hit his best stride. Then he began to hit and he was an important factor in the Cardinal pennant winning campaign of 1926.

Without O'Farrell the Cardinals could not have won. He caught most of the games and his bat won many a game. He was recognized throughout the baseball world as the best catcher in the business and it was only a matter of form for the baseball writers forming the committee to cast the votes which gave Bob the honor.

It was unfortunate that O'Farrell day coincided with Derby day at Fairmount. Despite fair weather only 9,000 persons paid at the gate. However the Knot-Hole gang was entertained and 5000 youngsters cheered for Bob and the Cardinals and implored in their quaint staccato way that the umpires, one and all be discharged.

Hakoah Defeats All-Irish Team

Victory Is the Fifth Success of the Second Trip of Austrian Eleven.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, June 4.—The Hakoah Sport Club of Vienna won the fifth victory of its second American invasion by outkicking a selected eleven of All-Irish players, representing the New York Footballers Protective Association, this afternoon at Dexter Park, Brooklyn by the score of 4 goals to 2.

Although preparations had been made to handle a crowd of 15,000 spectators, rain which started to fall shortly before kick-off time kept the attendance down to 1500.

Today's victory gives the foreign aggregation a record of five wins, four draws and three defeats, one of which was suffered prior to four former Hakoah stars, now members of the New York Giants, joining up with the team. Tomorrow the all-Jewish eleven will engage the all-Maryland team at Baltimore and close the tour of Wednesday evening against Bethlehem at the Polo Grounds in New York.

They had only one-half of one point for the singles play when Duncan, standing all even with Joe Turnesa at the 36th hole, slammed a dashing putt against the back of the cup for a birdie three, giving him the victory.

The other British scoring today was a half, registered by Charles A. Whitcombe with Gene Sarazen, the former American champion, getting careless on the last hole and using up three putts, an abandon not justified by his score at the moment.

Mehlhorn Wins.

It was a great day for "Wild Bill" Mehlhorn. It was announced last night that Mehlhorn, who, with Leo Diegel, lost the only foursome dropped by the Americans, would not play today. The British, however, suggested that the rules required the wild Westerner, having started, to finish, and Al Espinosa, in a receptive mood for two days, remained a prospective substitute to the close. The glory of winning the match that decided the possession of the cup fell to Mehlhorn, for his defeat of Archie Compston gave the Americans the seventh point of a possible 12.

Johnny Farrell, showing himself a putter that has made him one of the most feared men on the greens in the game, had putted his way to a five and four victory over Aubrey Boomer after they had finished the morning round all square.

Just behind Farrell's triumph John Golden removed Herbert Jolly from the picture seven up and six to play and Leo Diegel recovered from a putting slump

Bill Mehlhorn Clinches Victory When He Downs Archie Compston by a Score of 1 Up—Duncan Only English Victor Yesterday.

WORCESTER, Mass., June 4.—America's professional golf team today won the Samuel Ryder Cup, emblematic of supremacy of professional golfers in the United States and Great Britain, 9½ to 2½, because they knew what to do with the ball after it reached the green.

Starting the final day's play of singles with a lead of two points, gained in three victories to one defeat in the two ball foursomes yesterday, the Americans won six matches, lost one and halved one. Although putting won the day for the home team, it was an able putt from the club of George Duncan, the veteran Wentworth pro, that saved the visitors from a rout. They had only one-half of one point for the singles play when Duncan, standing all even with Joe Turnesa at the 36th hole, slammed a dashing putt against the back of the cup for a birdie three, giving him the victory.

The other British scoring today was a half, registered by Charles A. Whitcombe with Gene Sarazen, the former American champion, getting careless on the last hole and using up three putts, an abandon not justified by his score at the moment.

Mehlhorn Wins.

It was a great day for "Wild Bill" Mehlhorn. It was announced last night that Mehlhorn, who, with Leo Diegel, lost the only foursome dropped by the Americans, would not play today. The British, however, suggested that the rules required the wild Westerner, having started, to finish, and Al Espinosa, in a receptive mood for two days, remained a prospective substitute to the close. The glory of winning the match that decided the possession of the cup fell to Mehlhorn, for his defeat of Archie Compston gave the Americans the seventh point of a possible 12.

Johnny Farrell, showing himself a putter that has made him one of the most feared men on the greens in the game, had putted his way to a five and four victory over Aubrey Boomer after they had finished the morning round all square.

Just behind Farrell's triumph John Golden removed Herbert Jolly from the picture seven up and six to play and Leo Diegel, recovered from a putting slump and very much himself again, had turned Capt. Ted Ray back seven and five. With the three points carried over from yesterday, the Americans needed only a half to win and with "Wild Bill" at the time going to the seventeenth green all even with Archie Compston, who can be just as wild as Mehlhorn, the contest was regarded as all over but the shouting at the home hole over a half which would have been enough.

Bill Surprises Gallery.

Mehlhorn, however, who glories in crossing up the gallery, won the seventeenth with a four to Compston's five and made his last drive one up. The drive was not so good, landing in the rough, while Compston was straight. Mehlhorn then went into a trap guarding the green, leaving an opening which Compston passed up when he placed his approach 40 feet beyond the pin. The British giant came back six feet beyond the pin, while Mehlhorn brought a lot of sand and the ball out and up to within seven feet of the cup, but uphill with a bad slope to combat. Mehlhorn got the putt home and the golden trophy was domiciled in the United States for a year.

Hagen Defeats Havers.

The rest of the matches came along in due course, adding to the American score, but furnishing something of an anticlimax. Capt. Walter Hagen won from Arthur Havers, 2 and 1, and Al Watrous stopped Fred Robeson 3 and 2, and George Duncan made his last minute rally giving the British a point soon after Whitcombe had contributed half a point, at the expense of Gene Sarazen.

Last year's informal matches in England resulted in a victory for the British by a score of 13½ to 1½, five foursomes and 10 singles being played. Golf history was repeated today with the ocean and a year between for Bill Mehlhorn then and there won the only American victory, defeating Archie Compston, 1 up, just as he did in the cup winning match today.

Defeats Elizabeth Ryan in Final Match in Straight Sets, 6-2, 6-2.

By the Associated Press.

SAMFORDHILL, England, June 4.—Helen Wills today won the North London championship by defeating Miss Elizabeth Ryan of California in the finals of the women's singles. The score was 6—2, 6—2.

Miss Ryan had all her work cut out to win as many games as she did, for Miss Wills generally was dictating her opponent's next stroke. Miss Ryan, in addition to serving many double faults, was unable to bring her celebrated chopstroke into play, while Miss Wills drove beautifully on backhand, seldom going to the net.

Braves Triumph Over Cubs, 10-8

Wilson, Welch and Webb Collect Homers—17,000 Present.

CHICAGO, June 4.—The Braves made it two straight from the Cubs when they won today's game, 10 to 8. It was a free hitting contest on both sides. Root started pitching for the Cubs, but was ineffective.

Home runs were made by Wilson, Welch and Webb. Clyde Beck had a pass, one single, two doubles and a triple. As was the case the day previous, it was necessary to call on George Mogridge to get the side out in the ninth inning, a feat which he accomplished with great success. A crowd of about 17,000 saw the game.

Buddy Bauer's Spurt in Stretch Wins Derby

they left the back stretch. Geving, on Queen of Allah, made a worthy effort to catch the leader at the stretch turn and cut down the advantage materially in the last 70 yards, but finished second. Juicy prices rewarded the backers of Poland and Queen of Allah, the winner paying $21.40 for $2 and the Queen returning $21.70 for a place ticket.

Jockey L. Pichon's alertness in picking a hole on the rail settled the issue in the second race. There was little to the first four furlongs except Cleora, but at the stretch turn Homewood moved forward to bid for the lead. While Jockey Cheatham, on Cleora and McClair, on Homewood, were engaged in a thrilling duel, they inadvertantly were drawn away from the rail. That gave Pichon his hoped-for opening at the sixteenth pole and he sent Frank Fullen through to victory, winning by the shortest kind of a nose from Homewood, while Cleora was only a head behind.

Close Finish in Third.

There are times when the question of post position wins or loses the race and that face was never better illustrated than in the running of the third event on yesterday's card, wherein Gloria Quayle was beaten only a whisker by Sweep Net. The latter hustled off to the lead in the first 50 yards, clung to the rail with unfailing tenacity all the way through the mile journey, while Jockey Philpot made unsuccessful efforts to race Gloria Quayle around the leader. Gloria started from the extreme outside, post position No. 8, and was never able to overcome the disadvantage of the width of the track.

The Harned Brothers' Reputation all but won a race in the fourth, at one mile, setting a dizzy pace from the start until the turn into the stretch. Mallard's Memory, keeping close on Reputation's flank, took all the speed out of the Harned Brothers' horse and then, when Pichon sent Hornsby up at the stretch turn, neither of the leaders could stand the pace. Sea Rocket, an outsider, came late and almost upset the whole show, finishing second. Almadel made a brave effort to get through on the far turn but met with a lot of interference and dropped out of it.

Louisville and Nashville won his fourth straight race and he scored his fourth victory within a week when he finished first in the seventh event on the program.

Buddy Bauer Was Bradley's Future Book "Best Bet"

THE comeback of Buddy Bauer in the Fairmount Derby was not surprising to the inside few who knew his story. While Boo was winning the Louisiana Derby, Buddy Bauer was being quietly groomed for a Kentucky Derby killing. Large sums were bet in St. Louis future books on his chances. He was considered the "ace" of the Bradley stable despite the showing of Boo, at New Orleans.

He trained off, however, as the Derby approached, and ran a wretched race in the Preakness Stakes. Nobody gave him serious consideration in the Kentucky Derby, but he showed improvement when he finished sixth. The three weeks of recent added training and the soft track made Fairmount just right for him.

Considering the soft condition of the track the time was very good. The race was the tenth in Buddy's record and was his first victory since early in his 2-year-old career. It was the third time Buddy finished first, he having run second twice, third once and four times out of the money.

St. Louis Country Club Polo Easily Beats Memphis, 9 to 3

Mahlon Wallace Is Outstanding Star, Scoring Five Goals—Second Match to Be Played Today.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., June 4.—The St. Louis Country Club polo team showed a decided advantage in every department of the game to defeat the four of the Memphis Hunt and Polo Club, 9 goals to 3, today. A second match will be played this afternoon.

The St. Louisans seemed to have by far the better horses and their stroking and team work was much superior to that of the Memphians.

The contest was reduced to six chukkers, but the St. Louis four needed only a couple to show its true ability.

Wallace Big Scorer.

Mahlon Wallace, playing No. 2 for St. Louis, and riding a magnificent string of ponies, was the outstanding star of the day. He scored five goals and two of the five were almost by his individual effort. His teammate, Fred Gardner at No. 1, scored thrice and Heyward Neidringhaus, back, counted the other St. Louis goal. Only Edward Simmons, the left-handed mallet-wielder, failed to break into the counting column for the invading riders.

Although Memphis was rather badly beaten, the local four didn't play such a bad game. In the alst half they held their hard-riding opponents even in scores and just about on the square in playing. Memphis clearly outplayed St. Louis in the final chukker, counting twice while holding their opponents scoreless and they were progressing on the way to another goal when the whistle blew to end the game. Goals by Sam Rembert and Capt. Burr Chapman in the final period and one by Lytle McKee in the first chukker were the scores for Memphis.

St. Louis Leads Early.

St. Louis piled up seven goals in the first three chukkers, holding Memphis to a single goal. In the third chukker, St. Louis rode wild, counting four times. Wallace making three of the goals. In the fourth chukker the Memphis lineup was changed, Curtis King taking Lytle McKee's place at No. 1 and Sam Rembert going in for Hugh Fontaine at No. 2. The shift seemed to help the local four, for they played a good deal better, particularly in the last chukker.

The damage had been done before that part, however.

Lineup and summary:

Memphis (3)	Pos.	St. Louis (9)
McKee—	King No. 1	Gardner
Font.—Rem.	No. 2	Wallace
Wardle	No. 3	Simmons
Chapman (c)	Back	Neidring.

Score by chukkers:

Memphis	100	002	—3
St. Louis	214	110	—9

Scoring — Memphis: McKee, Rembert and Chapman.

St. Louis—Gardner 3, Wallace 5, Niedringhaus.

Referee—Capt. Elliott, Primm. Scorer and timer—W. H. Day. Time of periods—7½ minutes.

COMMITTEE NAMED TO ARRANGE A DAY FOR ROGERS HORNSBY

Rogers Hornsby will be welcomed on his return to St. Louis June 15. A committee of baseball fans has been organized to honor the man who piloted the Cardinals to the first pennant and World Championship that St. Louis baseball has ever known.

Jack Grosse, is acting chairman of the committee. It is first planned to hold a parade through the streets of downtown St. Louis and thence out to the park with Rogers Hornsby, now second baseman and captain of the Giants, John McGraw, the invading New York team, the Cardinals and representatives of various civic organizations participating.

At Sportsman's Park, before the game there will be a speech of welcome and the presentation of gifts expressing St. Louis' appreciation of what Hornsby did for the city.

Sam Breadon has expressed his eagerness to cooperate in every way, as have various civic organizations all of which expect to participate in the celebration.

A general committee meeting has been called for 12:15 o'clock Tuesday noon at the Statler Hotel, at which time plans for the celebration on June 15 will be perfected.

BUDDY BAUER'S JOCKEY TELLS HOW HIS MOUNT WON FAIRMOUNT DERBY

his backers would have received only 80 cents on the dollar.

Good Ride By Sande.

Earl Sande, the peer of the turf, gave him a splendid ride, putting him in a commanding position from the start and giving him every chance in the world. At the head of the stretch he looked like the sure winner with the others thundering close at his flank but he finished third.

Alfred, Not Albert.

"No excuses," was Sande's grinning comment. "He doesn't like the distance and prefers firmer footing. He just wasn't there when the time came."

The first name of Jockey A. Johnson, rider of Buddy Bauer in the Derby, is Alfred, not Albert is he is usually designated. Johnson explained, after his victorious ride, that the confusion arose from an aversion to the name with which he was christened which caused him, as a boy, to go under other names.

"I used to tell some people it was Albert and others that it was Arthur," he txplained. "I used other names, too, that began with the letter A and many of them have stuck."

G. Johnson, or Goldie Johnson, another well-known jockey, is not related to Alfred, although both, at present, ride for the same stable. Goldie got a real tough break in the matter of first names.

SPORT SALAD

by H. C. Evans

Lyrics by Limerick Luke.

AN anthem of praise we will carol
For Manager Robert O'Farrell;
As the best in the land,
He was voted a "grand,"
And of honors we gave him a barrel.

"CAP" Lindbergh is crossing the ocean
In a manner opposed to his notion;
For the speed of the boat
Gets the flying man's goat—
It reminds him so much of "slow motion."

OUR "Slim" as the guest of the Nation,
Will receive a tremendous ovation;
And the best of it is
That the head of the wiz
Hasn't shown any signs of inflation.

THE Derby at Fairmount is in clover.
The winners of course are clover.
As for us we soon found
We had bet on a hound
Whose stable name must have been Rovér.

TOUGH LUCK.

The opening of the dog race track at Ramona last week was a flivver. Owing to a short circuit or something, the electric rabbit wouldn't run a straight-away track.

These electric rabbits are temperamental. You can push them just so far and then they'll blow out a fuse on you and quit cold.

Better luck next time. There is a crying need for a dog track on this side of the river. When one goes to the dogs one wants to go by the shortest route.

Trudy advised Slim to get it while the getting is good. Demonstrating that Trudy knows her axle grease.

However, swimming the English Channel is not on a plane with flying the Atlantic Ocean. Not a bit like it.

Another plane has hopped off for Europe, destination unknown. But we take it Ambassador Herrick would just as leave have Brer Chamberlin pick some other landing place than Paris. Myron T., isn't as young as he used to be.

But he is much better known than he was before Slim dropped in on him for an informal visit.

By the way wonder if Slim ever found those birds to whom he had the letters of introduction.

CONSIDERATE.

See where a horse fell dead in the paddock at Belmont after being saddled. They usually die in the stretch.

Bill Tilden is having quite an enjoyable time over in France licking the boys who licked him last year. Incidentally showing up the old axiom that champions never come back.

Judging by flood of poetry that Lindbergh's flight inspired one would think that Slim flew over Paris on the back of Pegasus.

"Lindbergh First To Return In Cruiser."

We knew those cruisers would come in handy some time.

Roosevelt Ties For League Lead By Winning, 6-2

Central Gets Only Three Hits—Playoff Next Week on Neutral Field.

Roosevelt High School regained a tie for first place with Cleveland by defeating Central High in the final game on the league schedule yesterday afternoon at Roosevelt Field. The score was 6 to 2. Roosevelt's victory necessitates a replay of a first-round no-decision game in which the Rough Riders and Cleveland played 11 innings to a standstill.

The coaches of the two leading South Side teams have not as yet agreed on a playing field, but it is quite likely that the championship game will be played on a neutral diamond sometime during next week.

Ted Groepper, Roosevelt pitcher, managed to keep the situation well in hand yesterday in letting the Central team down with four safeties. Paul, his one-armed opponent, was a little off form and although fanning seven men, allowed 13 scattered hits.

Consecutive two-base hits by Haverstock, Roosevelt shortstop, in the first and third innings, drove in two runs on each occasions. Haverstock figured in the next tally when he hit safely to advance Heltz, who had opened the fifth inning with a drive to left field. Heltz scored on Robert's infield hit. Haverstock finished off the total by crossing the plate with the Rough Riders' final run in the seventh inning on Jarrett's sacrifice.

Central's two runs came as a result of Roosevelt errors in the seventh and eighth innings.

Chicago Wins From Boston, 6-4

Lundgren's Wildness in Ninth With Jacobson's Error Prove Fatal.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

BOSTON, June 4.—Lundgren's wildness in the ninth filled the bases with White Sox and then, when two were out, Jacobson in left dropped Kamm's liner and two runs scored, enough to break the tie and give the visitors a 6 to 4 win, their third straight victory here over the Red Sox. Only three of the Chicago eight hits entered into the making of their six runs. There were 10 doubles, of which Barret made three.

CRUSADER REPEATS 1926 VICTORY IN SUBURBAN HANDICAP

CHANCE PLAY, CHOICE, IS UNPLACED

Black Maria Is Second, 8 Lengths Behind Winner, and Macaw Third—30,000 See Race.

By G. F. T. Ryall,
Of the New York World Sport Staff.

NEW YORK, June 4.—Crusader, champion three-year-old of 1926 won the forty-first running of the classic Suburban Handicap at one mile and a quarter in the rain before a crowd of close to 30,000 at Belmont Park this afternoon. The Son of Man O' War won by eight lengths, about the same margin of his victory a year ago—from Black Maria, winner of the Metropolitan handicap on Memorial Day. H. P. Whitney's Macaw, was third and Chance Play, the favorite unplaced. The time was 2:02 2-5, one of the fastest run races in the long and Brilliant history of the classic.

Crusader carried top weight of 127 pounds, but he won so easily he seemed to make the official handicapper's figures look foolish. It was a most impressive victory and the colt seems to have come into his own again.

Mars Declines Issue.

Mars, another son of Man O' War was the only one of the nine named over night to decline the issue, and he was scratched because a suitable rider could not be found.

There was only a short delay at the post, occasioned by the bad manners of Display. When the barrier went up Macaw and Black Maria went to the front with Marylander in closest pursuit. Chance Play and Crusader next and Display last. While Macaw and Black Maria were running head and head stepping the first quarter in :23 and the half in 0.46 4-5 Marylander found the pace too hot and dropped back. Chance Play moved up a little, but he did not seem to have the free smooth action that marked the running of Crusader.

Half way up the back stretch, the pace began to tell on Chance Play while Kummer was just swinging the Son of Man O'War behind the leaders. Black Maria had gone to the front now as they went to the six furlongs in 1:11, men who were timing the race felt certain it would kill them both and Crusader would roll home a winner.

Black Maria Loses Lead.

Black Maria had taken the lead as they turned off the back stretch but Macaw, which made the running to the head of the stretch in the race a year ago, still hung on, though they turned the mile in 1:37 1-5. As they rounded the stretch, Kummer brought Crusader up on the outside and it was all over but the cheering.

Black Maria drew away from Macaw, though the brother of Prudery still fought on gamely, and made the place easily, while Display, closing fast as he usually does when it is too late, was fourth.

Chance Play tired badly in the last quarter of a mile and was not persevered with.

The Suburban, one of the richest of the events for older horses was worth $11,875 to the winner.

After Distraction won the five furlongs event down the Widener course, the official time of :56 was hung out. This was two and three-fifths seconds faster than the best time for the distance made by Chance Shot a year ago. Distraction beat Dicing and Groucher but the clockers timed the race in :58 1-5.

Aleader Captures Feature Event At Homewood

Favorite Takes Lead in Stretch, Beating Out African Daisy.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, June 3.—J. H. Manheimer's good filly Aleader won the Debutante Stakes—$5000 added, the principal event of today's Washington Park racing program at Homewood. The Neveda Stock Farm's African Daisy was second place award, while L. M. Severson's Dreana Lee wound up in third place.

Aleader displayed good speed from the start and taking the lead from American Thunder after rounding the far turn, began to draw away and came to the finish four lengths in advance of African Daisy. African Daisy was in close pursuit all the way and though bested by the winner, beat out the remainder and landed a length before Dreana Lee for the place.

American Thunder, the early leader after being passed by Aleader at the stretch head, bolted to the outside, and acted greenly. She was making her second start.

The net value to the winning owner amounted to $6110. Aleader was the favorite.

Sweep Net, away well and hard hustled in addition to saving much ground, held on gamely in stretch and just lasted. DETROIT HIGH SCHOOL WINS TRACK MEET AT CHICAGO

TWO WORLD'S RECORDS ARE SHATTERED

New Interscholastic Pole Vault and Javelin Marks Set; Three Negroes, One White Youth on Winning Team.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, June 4.—The flying ebony feet of three Negro boys, aided by a white companion, carried Northeast High School of Detroit into the interscholastic track championship of America today.

This quartette, matching speed and brawn with 1000 other boys from 182 high schools in 33 states, won the twenty-third national interscholastic meet, held under the auspices of the University of Chicago on Soldiers' Field by scoring 23 points.

Two world's interscholastic records were broken, another tied, and several meet marks went into the discard in the finals of the track and field championships.

Sample Ties for Tenth Place.

Buddy Sample of Webster Groves tied for tenth place taking second in the shot put and fourth in the javelin, the latter especially being noteworthy because of the winner's record breaking performance. Buddy's shot was better than 185 feet.

In the shot put Sample had a nice battle with another one-man team, Hall of Masonic Home High, Fort Worth, Tex. Hall won, and also took first in the discus for high point honors for himself. He tossed the shot 50 and a half feet his first try. Sample out-distanced him by two inches. On the next try Hall made his best shot of 51 and a half feet. The best the Webster Groves lad could do was 51 feet even, which gave it to the Lone Star entry.

Probst Unplaced in 440.

Probst of Clayton couldn't make the speed necessary in the 440-yard race and didn't place.

Wentworth Academy of Lexington, Mo., took fourth place in the academy division, getting 20 points against Mercersburg (Pa.) Academy's 41.

De Mers, of Sand Point, Idaho, hung up a new standard in the javelin when he hurled the spear 205 feet, 1¼ inches, to beat the previous mark of 199 feet, 5 inches made by Graydon of Little Rock, Ark., in 1926. Graydon managed to take second place this year, Moncas, Tumcumcari, N. M. was third and Sample, Webster Groves, Mo., was fourth.

The pole vault standard was lowered by Warne, Kokomo, Ind., who cleared the bar at 12 feet, 10½ inches. The old record was 12 feet, 7½ inches.

The interscholastic world's record for the 100-yard dash was equaled by Tolan of Cass High School, Detroit. He ran the distance in 9 4-5 seconds, beating Scully, Noblesville, Ind., and Snowden, Northeastern High, Detroit.

100-YARD DASH—Won by Tolan, Cass High, Detroit; Scully, Noblesville, Ind., second; Snowden, Northeastern High, Detroit, third; Odom, Kokomo, fourth; Davis Carroll, Ia., fifth. Time, 9 4-5s (ties world'se record).

K. O. Frisbie Rescues a Princess

And Learns About Heart Balm and Husbands

No. 9—A Prize Fighter's Letters to His Manager

Will Fight Bronxville Butcher Boy if Manager Can Get Him Down to the Gym.

Prospective Foe, However, Has Never Won Bout and There's No Telling What Will Happen.

By Walter Davenport.

Dear Patsy O'Brien, Mgr.:

Just a few words to let you know that as far as I see we are on one sweet jam. I would not like to be you when the public begins to want to know how a old experienced manager like you ever let a promising boy who cannot help being champion get into such a sweet jam which might make a nervous wreck out of him.

How was I to know that this Miss Kitty Dill of Billie Losh's Paris Pretties with Moe Musser was not a princess of Europe with a couple of million dollars' worth of real estates and jewelry coming to her like she told me, but the wife of a big crook named Mr. Paul.

Didn't I tell you that she would not give me any rest until I give her a thousand dollars to get back to Europe on so as to get back her rights from a mob of reds she met one night in a big night club in Europe thinking they were gentlemen. Any promising boy would have fell for that because she said I would get a fifty-fifty out of her rights for taking a chance.

Did you give me a lot of good advice then? No, you did not. So as I say, we are in a fine jam because she is a phony and her husband is a crooked acrobat named Mr. Paul and it has got me all nervous.

Frisbie Gets Indignant.

I TOLD the big crook that I do not want his wife's affections but want my thousand bucks back and if I do not get it something is liable to happen. I was very indignant.

"There are two or three people I do not care for at all," I said to Mr. Paul, who looks as if somebody had put Jess Willard and Looie Firpo together. "One of them is you and another is your wife."

"Listen," he said; "you look pretty bright, so get this. There are about a hundred things I do not care anything about, too, and you are all of them. What do you think about that?

"Yes," said Mr. Paul's lawyer, who is cross-eyed as well. "What my client here says is true. You have been getting gay with the very foundations of this grand republic's cornerstone by being guilty of making a bum of my client's happy home which all juries believe is a big American institution."

"Shut up," said Mr. Paul, pushing his lawyer onto the bed. "You make me sick. What I want is a settlement on account of my wife's affections."

"You will have to talk to my manager," I said.

"Listen, Frisbie," said Mr. Paul, "I got a headache already. What I come here for is to find out are you going to come across or not with the price of my wife's affections?"

"Oh," I said. "is that what you want to know?"

"Yes, it is," he said.

"Well," I said to him, "you could of called me up on the phone for a nickel and saved a lot of time. No."

"Come, Mr. Paul," said the lawyer. "There is no use of our wasting our good time on this big Romeo any more. We will file our suit at once and ask a jury of peers to tell us whether this man the pure affections of an honest man's hearthstone."

Hubby Sore, Too.

THIS seemed to make Mr. Paul here can play fast in loose with very sore because he took his lawyer to the window by the arm and made him look out.

"Listen," he said to his lawyer, "if I have to hear any more talk like that I am going to see for myself how far a shyster will bounce. What I want is dough and I am asking for the last time do I get any."

"How much dough do you want?" I said. "Not that you will get it."

"I will take ten thousand dollars," he said.

"Listen," I said. "I give your wife a thousand bucks and now you want ten thousand bucks. That makes eleven thousand bucks it would cost me to make the acquaintance of you and your wife. I would not give eleven dollars even to see the Statue of Liberty swim across the ocean so you can see from that what chance you got of getting eleven thousand dollars out of me. I ain't got your wife and I dont' want your wife. You can have her if you can find her not that I would put any eyes on the bum looking either, if I was her husband."

Mr. Paul became quite sore when I said he could have his wife.

"Who is saying anything about my wife," he said. "I am not coming here asking for my wife back. What I want is heart balm."

"Yes, heart balm," said the lawyer who give one look at Mr. Paul as he said it and ran out of the room.

"Listen, Mr. Paul," I said, "I would not give you heart balm enough to grease a hinge on a cigar box. You will have to excuse me now as I have to go to the gim to train for a fight with a boy named Mixer Mateer, the Bronxville Butcher Boy."

So you can see for yourself what a sweet jam you have got us into.

Yours truly,
K. O. FRISBIE.

DEAR Frisbie:

Come on out from under the bed. Do not be afraid to come down to the gym any time now because your fifty-fifty romance is all over and Mr. Paul, the big acrobat husband of Princess Kitty Dill gives me his word that he would not pay any more attention to you than he would a rumor about the Democrats.

Don't sprain your nut about it, but do you remember a silky gent named James J. Baker, who sold you the idea of backing the Princess for a thousand bucks so she could get back to Europe and get the family honor out of hock and split it half way with you.

Well, anyway, this Mr. Baker is the home buster Mr. Paul is looking for, not you. Mr. Baker sold the same idea to about 20 of you bright young fellows. Why don't you boys get together and start a club or something. Anyway you ought to get together every now and then, and while I do not want any part of it I would suggest that you boys hire a theater or a big hall to get together in and all sit on the stage and charge the public a dollar or so a head to come in and look. I would go for one and I have seen so much that personally I don't know of anything else I would pay to get into.

Of course you are out just 1000 bucks and Mr. Baker and the Princess are loose with 20,000, but you boys who went into the deal so unselfishly can get a lot of satisfaction out of knowing that anyway you are honest boys and not like Mr. Baker and Kitty Dill.

After 10 Years It's Tough.

I WISH you were here when Mr. Paul, the poor deceived acrobat, was here telling me about it. You could have had a good cry together.

"What would you do about such a woman as my wife?" said Mr. Paul to me.

"Well," I said, "I don't know your wife, but maybe she is off somewheres now pining for her true husband. Maybe you better forgive her."

"No," said Mr. Paul. "I can see you don't know her and also you don't know me. I could never forgive her for pulling a swift one like that on me."

"Well, I guess it must be pretty tough to try to forgive a dame who ankles off with a man like Mr. Baker," I said.

"Oh that is all right as far as that goes," said the big acrobat, wiping his eyes. "But what do you think of a man's wife who will take a stranger into a sweet graft like that when her own husband who has stood her for 10 years could use the dough. I say it shows a mean streak in her somewheres."

So come on down to the gym and get ready to see what you can do to Mixer Mateer, the Bronxville Butcher Boy, who you are to fight at the Dorgan Club Saturday night. You won't have much trouble with the Mixer because he don't train either. All he does is to watch the other boy train. He says that is the only way to do because after you have watched the other boy for a while you know exactly what to do when you get him into the ring because you know where he is weakest.

Of course, the Mixer has never won a fight yet, but there is no telling what will happen when you two big boys meet because you haven't trained for him and he won't have any plan to work on.

Events Recited in Previous Letters

Harvey (K. O.) Frisbie is a young chauffeur, 18 years old, who writes Patsy O'Brien, a hard boiled but human prize fight manager, in an effort to enter the famed O'Brien fighting stable. The latter looks over Frisbie and finally lets him in. Aside from his ring proclivities, Frisbie is the self-appointed successor to Rudy Valentino as the world's leading sheik. O'Brien is slightly alarmed at his charge's being a fighting wolf in sheik's clothing and attempts to discourage the boy from high stepping, with no very effective results. Right now K. O. Frisbie is quite sure he can bowl over Paolino, Sharkey, Maloney, or Tunney. He craves action with a head-liner. After polishing off a number of tough second raters, Frisbie becomes interested in a Miss Kitty Dill, supposed to be a European Princess who lost all her money through the Reds during the war. Kitty tells Frisbie that all she needs is $1000 to help her regain her lost fortune. The fighter is strangely interested in the proposition, much to the alarm of O'Brien, who attempts to discourage him. A mysterious stranger claiming to be a former European friend of Kitty, approaches Harvey with the news that her assets are worth two millions instead of a million. The stranger makes a proposition to regain her wealth. Being suspicious, Frisbie stalls the stranger and rushes to Kitty with a thousand of his own money.

LONDOS AND PESEK TO TAPER OFF TRAINING FOR THURSDAY'S MATCH

Jimmy Londos, Greek heavyweight wrestling champion, and 'Tiger John' Pesek of Ravenna, Neb., who meet Thursday night in a finish match billed as the main event of Promoter Tom Packs' outdor mat inaugural at the St. Louis University Athletic Field, are preparing to taper off three weeks of training with a series of daily practice bouts at the National Gymnasium.

George Calza, Italian heavyweight titleholder, and Dick Daviscourt, the California headlock specialist, will meet in a one-fall attraction billed as the semifinal of Thursday night's card. A time limit of one hour has been set on this event.

John Maxos, a young Greek heavyweight, is slated to appear in the curtain-raiser, but Promoter Packs has not succeeded to date in signing a wrestler to meet him. Packs plans to bring on either Joe Zigmund or Jim Browning to oppose Maxos.

SLUGGERS HAVE FIELD DAY IN MUNICIPAL LEAGUE PLAY

GIDDINGS BATTERS GET 24 SAFETIES

Rock Island Nine Garners 17 Hits and Retail Bakers 16 — Skinner Pitches a Three-Hit Game.

Hurlers as a rule had a disagreeable day in the Municipal League baseball games yesterday, sluggers greeting the warmer weather with a barrage of hits. Contests where teams were held to fewer than seven blows were scarce, most of the nines getting around 10 to 15 safeties and some even higher.

In the Sunday School League, the Giddings Presbyterian team ran up a total of 24 hits and beat Grace Episcopal, 24 to 1. Wagner Place M. E., playing in the same circuit, knocked out 18 safeties against the Lafayette Baptists to win, 19 to 8.

Batters on the Rock Island nine in the Manufacturers' League also ran wild, getting 17 bingles for the same number of runs against the Currans. The Retail Bakers of the Commercial League batted out 16 hits for a triumph over the American C. L's. Several other teams made 14 or more hits.

Some hurlers managed to escape the wrath of the willow swingers. Among these was Skinner, of the Friscos in the Manufacturers League. He held the Butler Bros. team to three hits, the Friscos winning, 9 to 3. Lindhorst, pitching for Broadway in the International Shoe League, stopped the Cherokees with four hits to triumph, 5 to 3.

Delaney's Choice In Opponents Shows Judgment

Will Defend Title Against McTigue, Whom He Previously Kayoed.

By Sparrow McGann.

(Copyright, 1927.)

NEW YORK, June 4.—Jack Delaney will defend his light-heavyweight title against Mike McTigue in July. The contract calls for a 15-round bout to be held in New York City.

This was decided upon this week when the New York Boxing Commission ordered Delaney to stay in his own class instead of competing among the heavyweights. Jack was offered the choice of three men: Mike McTigue, Tommy Loughran and Jimmy Slattery. Mike was the champion's selection.

Delaney Kayoed McTigue.

Delaney has had one pleasant experience with McTigue. He hit Mike on the chin in the fourth round and the venerable man turned over and went to sleep for the count of 10. No doubt this had a lot to do with Delaney's selection. He figures he can repeat the stunt.

In the closing months of last year a questionnaire was sent out to sports writers throughout the country asking them to rate fighters in fighting ability and box office value. Jack Delaney led the field. Fifty points lower was the name of Tommy Loughran. McTigue trailed 100 points further down the list. This would indicate that an unbiased opinion of sports critics and commentators ranked Loughran as the more deserving of a titular fight.

McTigue has a four-round knockout over Paul Berlenbach, but Paul was then but a shell of his former rip-tearing self.

Johnston Still Talking.

Recalling the terrible decision in the McTigue-Tiger Flowers scrap, and other instances in which Mike seemed to be the favored one when lucrative matches were handed out, it would appear that Mike and his manager Jimmy Johnston, are blessed with an unusual amount of good luck.

Loughran was offered a match with Mike last fall. He quickly accepted. Johnston said he would take the fight, but would have to talk it over with McTigue. They have not signed to this day. They must be still talking it over.

U. S. Players Need New Strategy On British Golf Courses, Jones Says

Bobby Explains Why Americans Seldom Make Good Showing in Initial Matches on English Links

Takes Brains to Combat Difference That Cannot Be Conquered by Mechanical Talent Alone.

By Robt. T. Jones, Jr.

National Open, British Open and Southern Open Champion.

American players have been uniformly unsuccessful in the matter of championships on their first trips to Great Britain. Indeed, George Von Elm stands out in my experience as the only American golfer who has played well on the initial visit across the sea. Hagen, Travers, Evans, Ouimet, Sweetser and I all failed lamentably on our first venture; and I think there is a better explanation for these failures than mere change of climate, diet, over-anxiety or the long trip. It appears to me that the real reason must be found in the fact that British golf on British courses was a quite new experience for all of us, and in making this statement I leave out of all consideration the much discussed seaside gales, for I think the American boys suffer no more in the wind than do the British players.

The difference between the golf courses of America and of Great Britain can best be expressed by the two words "artificial" and "natural;" and that means a whole lot more than the mere presence or absence of the fabrication of man. The difference begins at the front of the tee and extends to the very back edge of the green, and it is a difference which a player can not conquer by mechanical proficiency alone. To combat it requires judgment, experience, and, as O. B. Keeler would express it, "something between the ears."

Mechanical Shot Maker.

To begin with, let us play a round upon the average first-class American course. American architecture allows practically no option as to where the drive shall go. To the expert, there is always the evident desirability of placing the ball on one side or the other of the fairway, but, as a rule, he is much more concerned with avoiding bunkers and long grass along the sides. There is only one safe place for the ball, and it must be put there. The shot is prescribed by the design of the hole—it must be in exactly a certain direction, and usually as long as possible. Suppose, then, that we have got off a good drive and our ball is lying nicely in the fairway. From this situation one of two shots is required, either a long wallop with a brassie with the hope of getting close to the green, or an iron or pitch shot designed to reach the green itself. The brassie shot, being simply an occasion for the application of a strong back, may be dismissed.

The iron shot, like the drive, leaves the player little choice. The green is usually well defined and sloped up toward the rear. Further, it is almost always well watered, so that any shot with fair height will not go over if it pitches onto the green. The problem is to hit the green, and if that is done, it matters little what spin the ball may have. The soggy green takes the place of the perfect stroke.

Now, let me ask what manner of golfer will be developed by courses of this nature? The answer is—a mechanical shot-producer with little initiative and less judgment, and ability only to play the shot as prescribed.

Strategy Required.

Take this man and put him down for the first time on a British seaside links, and watch the result. There the fairways are wide, and the greens are watered only from the sides. The greens are quite unartificial, usually flat or even sloping away from the shot. Bunkers do not surround the green defining the target. In a word, there is no prescription. It is left entirely to the judgment and conscience of the player as to what route he will choose. If the greens are soft, the flag still offers a target, and our shot-making machine will not fare badly. But let there be dry weather for the real show! I shall never forget how I cursed Hoylake in 1921, and St. Andrews. At that time I regarded a failure to keep the fireen sodded as an unpardonable crime, and considered a blind hole an outrage. I wanted everything just right to pitch my iron shots up to the hole. It was the only game I knew, so I blamed the course because I could not play it.

Later, I came to like this seaside golf just as any lover of the game must come to like anything which adds zest to the play. Variable conditions afford ample opportunity for the display of any strategic talent we may possess, and preserve in the most human of games that fascinating personal element which is its chief attraction.

Thought Needed.

On an American course we play—indeed, we are forced to play—one stroke at a time. If we played the same hole twice a day for months, we should be always striving to play it in the same manner, usually straight away from tee to cup. We should never change tactics because of wind, rain or dry ground. We should rarely have a choice, an opportunity to think. Now, British seaside golf cannot be played without thinking. There is always some little favor of wind or terrain waiting for the man who has judgment enough to use it, and there is a little feeling of triumph, a thrill that comes with the knowledge of having done a thing well, when a puzzling hole has been conquered by something more than mechanical skill.

And let me say again that our American courses do not require or foster that type of golfing skill. Our men have to learn it in England or Scotland, and that is the big reason they can not play there without experience.

The Ramona Park Kennel Club announced yesterday that the new greyhound race track in St. Louis County will resume tomorrow night, with practically the same racing program that was scheduled for last Thursday night when the opening was called off after the first race because of trouble with the mechanical rabbit.

This trouble has been repaired and a new contact rail put in. In fact, two new contact rails have been put in, and according to C. R. Fitzgerald, manager of the track, current is supplied through each of the rails so that in case of a break or any kind of trouble in one, current will be supplied from the other with no interruption in the race.

The only material change in the program for Monday night from that scheduled for last Thursday will be the first race which starts at 8:15. New entries make up this race. The fifth event on the program will be the Inaugural race, the main feature with the Chase Hotel cup as the principal premium. There will be eight races, the last of which will be a hurdle.

Ramona Park is located on Carson road, north of Natural Bridge road and can be reached over either Natural Bridge or the St. Charles rock roads to Carson road. The Kirkwood-Ferguson car line runs directly to the south entrance of the park.

The Call of the Outdoors

By ALEC MERMOD

THE much postponed tournament of the St. Louis Fly and Bait Casting Club was held last Sunday, but because of unfavorable weather, the entry was small, though there were many spectators.

The contest was held for the benefit of beginners, consequently it was a handicap affair. Joseph Schuster was in good form and casting from scratch made an average of 98.7, but William Dunn with 20 points added, easily won the ½-oz. bait casting event for accuracy, while R. B. Dumbell won the ⅝-oz. event. Dunn also won the fly casting event for accuracy.

While in some ways the club's new location is not as satisfactory as the old, it attracts the attention of the passing motorist, and many stop off to see what is going on.

Fishing Good on Big Piney.

WORD has reached here that the water in Big Piney at Hazelton is clear and that the bass are striking, so the chances for a full creel are good.

If any one expects to have good fishing in any of the nearby streams, it is advisable to start pretty well up, for the fish have all gone up near the head waters of all he streams to spawn and most of them are still there. Besides the water is in much better shape higher up.

A question which comes up frequently among fly fishermen is that pertaining to the size of the hook. The sizes most commonly used for bass flies, are number 1, 1-0 and 2-0. The real argument comes up over the proper size hook for the trout fly. I have known good fishermen who will use nothing smaller than a No. 6, contending that the smaller trout will not be able to take this size very readily, and if a big one is caught he will not be apt to straighten out the hook as sometimes happens. Trout flies tied on a No. 10 hook are most popular, though in parts of the West No. 12 has the call, and many use a No. 14.

Though it has only been a few years since there has been trout fishing in Missouri, it will only be a few years before 25 or 30 streams will be stocked with both rainbow and brown trout.

At last the Game and Fish Department has succeeded in getting a conviction against three dynamiters at Lesterville, Reynolds County, and a fine of $100 was chalked up against each one. A few more convictions will about eliminate this style of fishing.

1-0 and 2-0. The real argument comes up over the proper size hook for the trout fly. I have known good fishermen who will use nothing smaller than a No. 6, contending that the smaller trout will not be able to take this size very readily, and if a big one is caught he will not be apt to straighten out the hook as sometimes happens. Trout flies tied on a No. 10 hook are most popular, though in parts of the West No. 12 has the call, and many use a No. 14.

Though it has only been a few years since there has been trout fishing in Missouri, it will only be a few years before 25 or 30 streams will be stocked with both rainbow and brown trout.

Robin Hood Starts Ninth Season

Numerous Changes in Physical Aspect of Municipal Theater

MUNICIPAL OPERA opens its ninth annual season Monday night on the Municipal Theater stage with the presentation of Reginald De Koven's "Robin Hood", under what is declared to be the most auspicious conditions in the history of the Municipal Theater Association.

"Robin Hood," which is revived after having had successes in 1919 and 1920, the latter production having been staged by Charles Sinclair, is probably DeKoven's most outstanding work. First presented June 9, 1890 in Chicago by the Bostonians, who sang the opera on 4000 occasions, it has been frequently revived.

At the beginning of the opera, a merrymaking is in progress at the market place in Nottingham. The three outlaws, Little John, Will Scarlet, and Friar Tuck, enter and sing of their free life in the Forest of Sherwood, and finally the handsome Robin Hood appears, declaring he is the Earl of Huntington and demanding that the Sheriff so proclaim him.

THE Sheriff, however, protests that the youth has been disinherited by his own father, who before the birth of Robin Hood was secretly married to a peasant girl, who died when her child was an infant. The child is Sir Guy Gisborne, the rightful heir to the earldom and the Sheriff's ward whom he is planning to marry to Lady Marian, ward of the crown.

However, the young girl and Robin Hood are already deep in love and exchange vows of eternal faith, much to the indignation of Sir Guy. Lady Marian protests against her marriage to Sir Guy, hoping that on the return of the King from the Crusades she will be released, while Robin Hood plans, with the help of the King to prove his right to the earldom.

The outlaws sympathize with the pair and invite Robin Hood to join them, promising he shall be their King and rule them under the Greenwood tree to which proposal Robin Hood at length agrees. In the last act the dashing king of the outlaws brings the message which saves Maid Marian from the hated marriage with Sir Guy, and the opera ends amid general rejoicings at the triumph of Robin Hood and the gentle Marian over the plotting Sheriff and his ward.

PERHAPS the outstanding musical moment occurs in the first act with the soaring love melody, "Oh Promise Me." De Koven's entire score, however, is replete with musical gems, "Hey, For the Merry Greenwood," "Brown October Ale," "Come Dream So Bright," "Tinkers' Chorus," "Come Away to the Woods," "Ho, Ho, Then, for Jollity," "Ye Birds in Azure Winging," "Armorer's Song," "A Hunting We Will Go," "Ah, I Do Love You," "Sweetheart, My Own Sweetheart," and "Love, Now We Never More Will Part," being among the most striking.

The cast for "Robin Hood" is:

Robert of Huntington (Afterward Robin Hood) ..... Allan Rogers
The Sheriff of Nottingham ..... Robert Pitkin
Sir Guy of Gisborne (His Ward)— ..... John Cherry
Outlaws—
Little John ..... Paul Kleman
Will Scarlet ..... John Dunsmure
Friar Tuck ..... William McCarthy
Allan A' Dale ..... Miss Anne Yago
Lady Marian Fitzwalter ..... Miss Myrtle Schaaf
(A ward of the crown, afterwards Maid Marian)
Dame Durden (a widow)— ..... Mme. Sara Andrada
Annabel (her daughter)— ..... Miss Dorothy Seegar
Chorus of villagers, milkmaids, outlaws, kings, foresters, archers, peddlers, etc.

NUMEROUS changes in the physical aspect of the Municipal Theater will confront opera devotees this summer as a result of the association's policy of diverting all profits to the improvement of the Forest Park amphitheater. The seating capacity has been enlarged by the addition of 450 box seats to care for the demand for season reservations; a new entrance has been provided by extending the pergola on the west across the River des Peres to McKinley Road; the new and old entrances have been connected with a pergola running along the road; a new ticket office has been constructed and new flood lights installed.

With the expenditures of $35,000 this last year more than $200,000 has been spent on making the Municipal Theater the finest in the world. A sound amplifier costing $12,500; a $25,000 comfort station, and the erection of dressing rooms and studios being among the other improvements.

In spite of these numerous improvements and the constantly increasing cost of production that have gone up from $12,000 weekly in 1919 to $30,000 weekly in 1926, the scale of admission to Municipal Opera remains unchanged.

The box seats are $2; the first 13 rows, $1.50; the next 11 rows, $1; the next 23 rows, 50 cents; the remainder of the reserved seats 25 cents, while there are 1600 for which no admission is charged. The sound amplifying system used at the theater makes the rear locations most desirable.

The Municipal Theater may be reached by street car from any point in the city by transferring to Olive-University, Union, Market and Taylor car lines and thence by busses of the People's Bus Co.; by busses of the People's Motorbus lines running direct to the entrance, on all lines at frequent intervals; or by automobile, signs on the roadways directing the motorist to the theater.

THE season's repertory ranges from the special production that will be made of the grand opera, "Tales of Hoffman," to the last word in syncopated opera in the form of "Rose Marie" and "The Song of the Flame."

The complete repertory for the season follows:

"As You Like It," Ideal Open Air Drama, Ready For Tuesday's Premier

Garden Theater Season Starts With Shakspeare's Brilliant Comedy With Cast Including Whitford Kane and Iden Payne.

THE Garden Theater, 7200 Olive Street road, opens its season with "As You Like It" Tuesday, June 7. This play has been declared the finest play written for performance in the open air. It is the one work by Shakspeare which suffers most from enclosure under roof.

This play is thoroughly familiar to St. Louis audiences. It was presented here during the Shakspeare Tercentenary with Margaret Anglin as Rosalind and with Thomas Wood Stevens as director.

Doubtless the high vote the play received during the recent ballot for plays to be presented at the Garden Theater is largely due to that memorable performance. In fact, the production was so successful at the time that it is responsible in a large measure for St. Louis' out-door theater tradition.

At the Garden Theater the Goodman Players of Chicago will be seen to fine advantage under the personal direction of Thomas Wood Stevens. Special music will be heard under the baton of William A. Parson, music director of Garden Theater.

The play itself of course is one of the most pleasing of comedies. Those who have seen the manner and method of presenting comedy last year by the Goodman Players know that there is both artistic and entertaining treat in store. It is a play which sends away its audiences in the finest of spirits. Rehearsals have been in progress all this week.

The complete cast includes Whitford Kane and Iden Payne. It is as follows:

The Banished Duke	Thomas R. Ireland
Duke Frederick	Will Geer
Amiens	Richard Steele
Jaques	Iden Payne
First Lord	Russell Spindler
Monsieur Le Beau	Neal Caldwell
Charles the Wrestler	Josef Lazarovici

Sir Oliver Martext	Ross Matthews

Playgoing in New York Gets More Precarious As Theaters Increase

By ALEXANDER WOOLLCOTT.

NEW YORK, June 4.

ON Sunday night of this week, they rang down the curtain at the Neighborhood for good and all, for the subvention which made that valiant outlying theater possible has been withdrawn. The farewell performance was attended by as many devotees as could pack themselves into the small auditorium, and for a long time past there had been such an anticipatory demand for seats that when, through the absence of some subscriber in Europe, a pair would be turned back, nothing less public than pitching pennies in the lobby was considered an adequate means of deciding to whom they should be allotted. The finale, besides being a pageant of the most familiar puppets that have flitted across that stage in the past dozen seasons, included for this last performance the very doorman who took the tickets, the man who stoked the furnace, and the girls who used to explain over the telephone that there were no more seats to be had.

ON Tuesday night, the troupe moved their current "Grand Street Follies" up to the Little Theater, the tiny, pretty playhouse in Forty-fourth street, which now looks like an abashed woodshed behind the Babylonian towers of the new Paramount Theater—thus trying their somewhat delicate wares on the more haphazard audience which drifts into any theater that stands at the crossroads of the world. It was the whole point of the remote Neighborhood that it was miles from any other theater, so far east of Broadway in Grand street that the critics never recovered from their periodic surprise at finding themselves actually there. The joke about there being only one taxi driver who knew where the theater was wore pretty thin through the years and in the last will and testament of the theater, solemnly read aloud in the current "Follies," that joke was gravely bequeathed to Alan Dale as the one who had used it most, with the further clause that if he had no further use for it, he was at liberty to bestow it wherever he liked.

But there is this to be said in behalf of an out-of-the-way theater. The play there ensconced may not be sure any audience is coming at all, but at least it has the comfort of knowing that those who do come are presumably eager for the entertainment offered. The Neighborhood, originally built as a wing of the Henry Street Settlement, long since gave up pretending to serve only that part of town and drew its patrons from the four corners of the city. Not long ago that sprightly gazette, The New Yorker, published a cartoon of one of its audiences, all fearfully elegant and wearing

Hollywood Bowl Opens Symphony Season on July 5

LOS ANGELES, Cal., June 4.—America's famous home of symphony music, the outdoor Hollywood Bowl, that seats 20,000 persons, is to launch its sixth and greatest season July 5 next. It will continue with four concerts a wek until August 27. In addition to symphonies given by the most famous conductors of the entire world, it will have famous soloists and an oratorio with a chorus of 500 voices.

Five of the conductors for the summer season are coming from Europe especially for the Bowl concerts. The fame of the Bowl has been built to such a point that they now feel it the highest honor in music to conduct there.

The conductors for the season are: Alfred Hertz, originally from Frankfort, Germany, later conductor of the San Francisco symphony orchestra.

Bruno Walter, Berlin, conductor of the Berlin Municipal and the Berlin Philharmonic, has conducted at the Metropolitan in New York.

Pierre Monteux, Paris, called the greatest living French conductor, five years conductor of the Boston symphony, is to conduct this season with the Royal Philharmonic of London and also at Monte Carlo.

Vladimir Shavitch, Russian, conductor of the Syracuse Philharmonic and now conducting in Spain, France and Great Britain.

Ossip Gabrilowitsch, conductor of the Detroit symphony.

Modest Altschuler, Los Angeles, former conductor of the New York Russian Symphony.

Pietro Cimini, Italian, resident of Los Angeles.

Adolph Tandler, conductor of Los Angeles Little Symphony.

Ruth St. Denis and Ted Shawn are among the most famous who will appear in numbers other than symphonic music.

The concerts are given Tuesday, Thursday, Friday and Saturday of each week. Tuesday is to be novelty night, Thursday symphony night, Friday soloist night and Saturday popular night.

BEHIND THE SCREENS Out in Hollywood

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., June 4.—A "bad" horse and an actor who scoffed at discretion as the better part of valor provided the setting for an impromptu rodeo and some unscheduled thrills during the filming of Norma Talmadge's first United Artists picture, "The Dove."

Eddie Borden, who plays a comedy role in the Roland West production, was questioned by the director as to his ability to leap from a wall onto the back of a mustang, the popular mode of transportation in the mythical country of Costa Roja, where the story of "The Dove" is laid.

"Hold the critter till I get on deck and I'll ride him," said Borden.

Noah Beery, Gilbert Roland, "Black Jack" Ward and other expert riders on the Talmadge set advised Borden to choose a less fractious steed, but the comedian reiterated his confidence, so Director West told him to make the attempt.

When Borden jumped from a hacienda wall to the back of the mustang, he stayed on about one second and then described a neat parabola in the air. Although shaken up, he escaped unhurt. A second attempt ended just as disastrously. "Too wild for me," finally admitted Borden, and the scene was filmed with a well-broken horse.

Clara Bow

In "Rough-House Rosie" at the Ambassador.

The popularity attained by Dolores Costello during the past year has prompted Warner Bros. to make her an extended run star. This means that beginning with the 1927-1928 season Miss Costello will be seen exclusively in big special productions.

The star's greatest successes have been the two specials in which she has already appeared, "The Sea Beast" and "When a Man Loves." Next year she will have the star role in three extended run productions of equal magnitude. The first, "Old San Francisco," is already completed and two more are being prepared.

When the big battle scenes for "The Patent Leather Kid," and Alfred Santell production starring Richard Barthelmess, were made at Camp Lewis, Washington, much of the fighting centered around a country church, which was erected for the purpose by the First National technicians.

The battle ended with the blowing up of the church, as Barthelmess clung to a part of the roof.

By the doorway of the church a small figure of The Christ hung, and a short distance away was a shrine, with a figure of the Madonna.

When Director Santell gave the word for the dynamite shots which brought the tower of the building crashing to the ground, these sacred figures were not removed. Santell figured on getting a close-up of them after the explosion, to add a symbolic touch to accentuate the horrors of war when the smoke of battle had cleared away.

The shots were fired at the proper time. With a crash that could be heard for blocks, the 60-foot tower thundered to the ground, debris flying in all directions.

Slowly the dust settled, with the cameras still grinding. Scarcely a square foot of building material in the church remained intact. But the figure of The Christ clung to its position on the wrecked wall, hanging by a slender thread. The Madonna was intact, although the wall of the shrine was gone.

And so the close-up was made.

Buster Keaton has been graduated from college. In other words the frozen-faced comedian has completed camera work on his United Artists picture, "College," which had been in production for more than four months at the Keaton studios and on the campuses and athletic fields of leading California educational institutions.

Buster and his staff will now spend several weeks editing and cutting more than 150,000 feet of film to exhibition length. As an innovation, the comedy star will assemble "College" at his new Beverly Hills home, where a complete projection room and laboratory is one of the features.

Authentic college atmosphere, with world famous varsity athletes and thousands of students in the supporting cast, has been stressed throughout the production, according to Harry Brand, general manager of the Keaton organization.

"Finis" will shortly be written to the "Wedding March," latest work of Erich von Stroheim and on which that director has been working for over a year and a half. The picture is now in the final stages of cutting and will be ready to be previewed within the next few weeks.

Von Stroheim is the star as well as author and director of "The Wedding March" and in it he is surrounded by Fay Wray, ZaSu Pitts, Maude George, Dale Fuller, George Fawcett, George Nichols, Mathew Betz, Cesare Gravina and Hughie Mack.

A military preview of "Wings," Paramount's aviation picture, an interpretation of John Monk Saunders' story of exploits of the American air force in France, was held last week at San Antonio, Tex., with three Cabinet officers, the Governor of Texas and a host of war and other Government officials in attendance.

The picture has been more than a year in the making and is said to have cost more than $2,000,000. William Wellman, 28-year-old director of the film, who during the war was a member of the Lafayette Squadron, was present at the premiere with Paramount officials from the Hollywood studios. He was accorded an impressive ovation.

The performance was in the form of a benefit, the funds of which will go toward the erection of a memorial to the famous second division.

Included in the list of guests were: Gov. Dan Moody of Texas; Secretary of War Davis, Assistant Secretaries of War Hanford Mac Nider and F. Trubee Davison, Brigadier-General G. A. L. Dumont, military attache from France; Maj. Angel M. Zuleaga, military attache from Argentine; Brigadier-General A. Villa and Commander T. G. Hetherington, military attache from England; Maj. W. H. S. Alston, also from England, and Capt. S. Isoada from Japan. Brigadier-General J. E. Fechet and a representative staff from Washington also saw the picture.

Officers of the air corps stated that for the first time the life of the American aviator has been faithfully portrayed. Secretary of War Dwight Davis declined to be quoted, but those who sat near him at the premiere stated that he expressed in positive terms his gratification at a motion picture that so accurately presented the spirit of the American forces in the World War.

Ralph Ince, well-known screen star and director, returned from Catalina Island with his company, following three days of filming on the exteriors of his sea picture, "Shanghaied," which he is making for F. B. O.

"Shanghaied," based on a story of the San Francisco water front and life on the Pacific Ocean, is one of the most ambitious productions undertaken at the F. B. O. studios this year and preparations for its filming have been under way on an elaborate scale for several months. Ince, in this production, plays the dual role of star and director. Others in the cast are Patsy Ruth Miller and Tom Santschi.

Marion Davies

In "Tillie the Toiler" at Loew's State.

Norma Shearer

The results of all these "Abie's Irish Rose" marriages on the screen are brought into the pitiless white glare of publicity in "Frisco Sally Levy," a forthcoming comedy release. The results, it seems, are blazoned forth in such names as Colleen Lapidowitz, Michael Abraham Lapidowitz, Isador Xavier Lapidowitz and Rebecca Patricia Lapidowitz. Little Sally O'Neill is Colleen Lapidowitz, the daughter of an Irish Rose who married a Son of Abraham. Kate Price is the Irish mother; Tennen Holtz, the Jewish father. Roy D'Arcy and Charles Delaney are others in the cast. William Beaudine, who made Mary Pickford's "Little Annie Rooney," directed it.

King Vidor, director of "The Big Parade," "La Boheme," "Bardelys, the Magnificent" and other outstanding films, has gone to New York to get authentic "atmosphere shots" for "The Crowd," made as a "Big Parade of Peace." Vidor wrote "The Crowd," which concerns itself with the dramatic undercurrents of everyday life in a big city. The romantic leads are played by Eleanore Boardman (Mrs. Vidor in private life) and James Murray, whom Vidor discovered among the horde of Hollywood extras. Bert Roach, Dorothy Sebastian, Estelle Clarke and Lucy Beaumont also appear in it.

The world's largest electric fan is simulating the Texas "wind country" in Lillian Gish's new starring vehicle, "The Wind," based on Dorothy Scarborough's novel. The fan, a giant airplane propeller worked by an electric motor, has something of cyclonic fervor. But in warm southern California, it is welcome at this season. Picture workers term Montague Love, Edward Earle, William Orlamond and others in Miss Gish's support "lucky" to work on such a "set."

Brooke Johns' Stay At Missouri Is Made Indefinite

The management of the Missouri Theater announced yesterday that the engagement of Brooke Johns, who has acted as the general tactician of the stage show besides playing the banjo at the Grand boulevard house, has been extended indefinitely.

Johns was originally engaged for six weeks, but the rise in the house receipts to the extent of about 35 per cent since his arrival has led to the new contract. Johns will take a vacation in September and return in October.

Gus Edwards Wants Talent.

Gus Edwards, the "Star Maker," whose proteges include such luminaries as Eddie Cantor, Lila Lee, Johnnie Mines, Helen Mencken, Ona Munson, George Jessel, Mae Murray, Duncan Sisters, Louise Groody, Harry Rose and numerous others, who, with his latest song and dance productions, will be the featured attraction at the St. Louis Theater next week, has wired Manager Hays that, while in St. Louis, he would like to interview girls and boys who are ambitious to embark on a theatrical career. All appointments should be made through the manager's office at the St. Louis Theater, and applicants will be given individual tryouts by Mr. Edwards.

PLAYGOING IN NEW YORK GETS MORE PRECARIOUS WITH THEATER INCREASE

dresser-than-thou expressions, the while they recoiled with pained astonishment at the advent of a bewhiskered pushcart vendor from the Grand Street curb. The drawing was entitled "One of the Neighbors Goes to the Neighborhood." This facetious cartoon was only a teasing exaggeration of the truth.

NOW, however, the troupe moves uptown to Broadway, where audiences seep in from the endless glacier of traffic in the cross-streets, going to this play instead of that because the clerk at the cigar stand in the hotel had spoken well of it or, more probably, going to this play instead of that because they could not get seats to that. I do not mean that in the ensuing confusion when Mrs. Fiske plays "Ghosts" in our town she gets an audience made up entirely of people whose spiritual home is the Winter Garden, to which they (and she, I fancy) devoutly wish they had gone instead. Not entirely. But I do mean that, planted in the thick of things, the long-sheltered players from the Neighborhood will sigh more than once for the days when their patrons sought them out instead, as so often, I think, is the case with our Broadway playgoers of being pushed into the theater because there was no more room out on the sidewalk.

DELIBERATE, carefully aimed playgoing is becoming more and more difficult in New York, as, for that matter, mere living is. It is not only that the flaunting broadsides of 60 playhouses make picking and choosing a parlous matter. The very getting from your dinner table to your seat on the aisle is a journey fraught with peril. The great city has flung its towers to the astonished stars. By prodigies of building, it is now possible for thousands of people to dwell, layer on layer, in the same block where only a few score of people lived 20 years ago. But the thousands must somehow use the same lanes and footways which used to serve the mere handful of yesteryear. Wherefore each night now for miles around Times Square sees the streets clogged with such preposterous and self-defeating traffic as one used to encounter only on the day of the Army and Navy game.

IT USED to be a pleasant thing to dine at the Cafe Martin and, afterwards, take a hansom to the Empire to see Maude Adams in "The Little Minister." Nothing so tranquil, nothing so leisurely is possible today. You either crawl through maddening traffic that sometimes takes more than three-quarters of an hour to move a half a mile or you take to your heels and try your luck on the sidewalk, in which case you arrive at the theater door a little sooner but feeling somewhat as if you had been shopping for several hours in a department store the week before Christmas. In either event it is a battered, nerve-wracked playgoer who sinks at last into his seat, just in time for the second act. Then the play unfolds to the incidental music provided free of charge each night by the tooting of the automobile horns and the whistles of the taxi-starters in the street outside. During the matinees this orchestration is interestingly enriched by the interweaving motif of the riveting machines at work next door and across the street on a lot of nice new theaters.

I find myself wondering why the "Grand Street Follies" ever left the dingy peace of distant Grand street or why people go to the theater at all in New York. I write this pastoral letter—the last of the season—with my mind already traveling along a white road that leads to the side of a lake in Vermont. There is an island in that lake which looks as if Maxfield Parrish had drawn it and left it there absent-mindedly. I am headed for that island. No more lunatic snarls of traffic, no more breathing of air that someone else has already breathed several times, no more uproar of taxi horns and riveters. But I wonder what "The Mikado" will be like when Winthrop Ames stages it in the fall and what play will ring up the Theater Guild's curtain in September.

TO BECOME NAVAL FLYERS

Eight young men of the naval reserve aviation unit at St. Louis have been selected to take an intensive course of training this summer, which will lead to commissions for them as naval flyers with the rank of ensign.

They will go to Great Lakes, Ill., for 45 days on June 15, and afterwards to Hampton Roads, Va., for 45 days. They were chosen because they had had college training and because it was believed they were good "officer material."

Lieut. Fred Fisher commands the reserve unit.

Haydn Quartette Scored For Saxophones

John Sauter, flutist of the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra, has made an interesting experiment in instrumentation by transcribing Haydn's string quartette No. 15, Opus 3, No. 3, for four saxophones. The result, says Mr. Sauter, who is a saxophonist as well as a flutist, is a happy one, and he intends to make other transscriptions.

Because of the relatively limited range of a saxophone, compared with the wider range of musical tones possible to the violin, it has been regarded as impracticable for the wind instrument correctly to render and interpret the repertoire of the strings. Sauter, by employing two instruments, an alto and a soprano saxophone, attains a sufficiently wide musical scale, from the lowest to the highest tones of the violin, to permit rendition without compromise, cutting or omission of any part of the original score as conceived by Haydn.

He assigns to another saxophone the part usually played by the second violin, to a third that customarily done by a viola and to the resonant baritone saxophone the score usually played by a cello.

To accomplish this, transcription of the entire score was necessitated. This Sauter has lately completed and has placed the compositon in rehearsal for a suitable public rendition. The rehearsals are being held by a group of business men, all expert musicians, who call themselves the Saxofriends. They have refused numerous offers to tour, because they prefer their business activities, and find relaxation and uplift in music. They have attracted considerable attention to St. Louis in Eastern musical journals by their playing and only recently appeared in a St. Louis church and played the regular church service with saxophones in lieu of a vocal choir.

The members, in addition to Sauter, are: Edward Barroll, a composer; Orville C. Lind, head of the O. C. Lind Co.; J. J. Kessler, an instructor, and Mrs. Mary Jane Barroll, formerly of the faculty of Greenbriar College, who is the accompanist.

Sauter has been so impressed by the tonal beauty and possibilities of the new application of wind instruments to classic music that he anticipates that much if not all the repertoire of string quartettes may be made available for the saxophone.

TOSCANINI ENGAGED FOR FIVE-YEAR PERIOD

NEW YORK, June 4.—Arturo Toscanini has been engaged for a period of five years as conductor of the Philharmonic Orchestra, according to the announcement made by the president of the society, Clarence H. Mackay, this week at the meeting of the directors. The engagement was made public some time ago, but the length of his term was not told.

Mr. Mackay told the directors and the auxiliary board that Toscanini would begin his American engagement in the second half of the coming season. A 25 per cent increase in the demand for seats over this date last year indicated that the Philharmonic would have one of the most successful seasons in its history. Last season the orchestra played to audiences that were 93 per cent of the available seating capacity, whereas five years ago the attendance filled only 71 per cent.

Olga Baklanova, member of the Moscow Art Theater, will play the leading role opposite Emil Jannings in his next motion picture, "Hitting for Heaven," according to word received in the offices of Morris Gest in New York. Contracts to this effect have just been signed in Hollywood.

LORD LANSDOWNE, 82, BRITISH LEADER, DIES

Former Governor General of Canada and Had Held Many High Offices.

By the Associated Press.

CLONMEL, Tipperary Island, June 4.—The Marquis of Lansdowne, former Lord of the British Treasury and Governor-General of Canada from 1883 to 1888, died today at Newton Anner, after an illness of only a few hours.

Henry Charles Keith Petty Fitzmaurice, fifth Marquis of Lansdowne, was one of the few remaining figures in the Victorian line of statesmen, and held many high offices.

He was born Jan. 14, 1845, and succeeded to the title in 1866. In 1869 he married Lady Maud Evelyn Hamilton, daughter of the first Duke of Abercorn. To them were born one son and two daughters.

The Marquis was Lord of the Treasury from 1869 to 1872, under-secretary of War from 1872 to 1874, under-secretary of India in 1880, governor-general of Canada 1883-1888, governor-general of India 1888-93, secretary of War 1895-1900, foreign secretary 1900-05, and Minister without portfolio 1915-16. His heir is the Earl of Kerry.

One of the old nobility of Britain, the Marquis of Lansdowne created a sensation in 1917 by publishing a letter in which he urged the allies to restate their war aims, in an attempt to bring about peace before "the prolongation of the war leads to the ruin of the civilized world."

"What are we fighting for?" he asked. "To beat the Germans; certainly; but that is not an end in itself. We want to inflict a signal defeat upon the Central Powers, not out of mere vindictiveness, but in the hope of saving the world from a recurrence of the calamity which has befallen this generation."

The Marquis, then 72 years of age, was widely denounced as a pacifist, giving encouragement to the enemy. In subsequent speeches he declared peace could be obtained only by negotiation.

NEW STATION TO IMPROVE WIRELESS TELEPHONE SERVICE

British Government Hopes to Invent System to Provide Full Secrecy.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, June 4.—Considerable improvement in the transatlantic wireless telephone service is promised by the construction of a new radio station now being built by the British Government at Cupar, Scotland.

Measurements and tests carried out in 1925 indicated that the north of the British Isles was the ideal situation for transmission and reception of telephonic conversation with the United States, and the Cupar station is nearing completion. This station will supersede the present station at Wroughton, Wilshire, which is about 80 miles from London.

British radio experts consider that, although the present wireless telephone service to America is not secret in the full sense of the word, it is proving of such value that its introduction was fully justified. Complete secrecy, however, is considered desirable, and with the opening of the Cupar station, experiments to this end are to be carried out by the British Post Office Engineering Staff.

FRENCH CLAIM 'AMERICA' AIR

Music Critics Declare Lulli Composed It.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, June 4.—The tune of "My Country, 'Tis of Thee"—the same as "God Save the King" and "Heil Dir Im Siegerkranz" as everyone knows—is now said to have been composed by Lulli, musician in ordinary to King Louis XIV of France, and from him pilfered and handed to George I of England by Haendel, who passed it off as his own. French musical critics claim to have made this discovery.

Musical historians in France contend that Lulli composed his tri-national masterpiece on the occasion of Louis XIV's recovery from an illness. It was sung for the first time by the noble young women of the St. Cyr school, presided over by Mme. de Maintenon, to honor the then aged monarch on his first public appearance after convalescence. The original French words bear a striking resemblance to those of "God Save the King" of today.

Heads West Point Graduates.

By the Associated Press.

WEST POINT, N. Y., June 4.—Hans W. Holmer, of Medford, Ore., will head the West Point class of 1927, which graduates 203 Cadets as Second Lieutenants in the Army on June 14. Cadet Holmer leads the class with a total of 2757.05 points out of a possible 2975.

Lindbergh Cocktail Invented.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, June 4.—Although Capt. Lindbergh is not a drinking man, he found on his arrival in London that Englishmen were drinking a cocktail created in honor of his great transatlantic flight. An American cocktail mixer, employed in one of London's largest hotels, is the inventor of the "Charlie Lindbergh" cocktail. It is compounded of equal parts of Kinnaillet and Plymouth gin, two dashes of orange juice and apricot and lemon peel.

Hollywood Bowl Opens Symphony Season on July 5

LOS ANGELES, Cal., June 4.—America's famous home of symphony music, the outdoor Hollywood Bowl, that seats 20,000 persons, is to launch its sixth and greatest season July 5 next. It will continue with four concerts a wek until August 27. In addition to symphonies given by the most famous conductors of the entire world, it will have famous soloists and an oratorio with a chorus of 500 voices.

Five of the conductors for the summer season are coming from Europe especially for the Bowl concerts. The fame of the Bowl has been built to such a point that they now feel it the highest honor in music to conduct there.

The conductors for the season are: Alfred Hertz, originally from Frankfort, Germany, later conductor of the San Francisco symphony orchestra.

Brooke Johns' Stay At Missouri Is Made Indefinite

The management of the Missouri Theater announced yesterday that the engagement of Brooke Johns, who has acted as the general tactician of the stage show besides playing the banjo at the Grand boulevard house, has been extended indefinitely.

Johns was originally engaged for six weeks, but the rise in the house receipts to the extent of about 35 per cent since his arrival has led to the new contract. Johns will take a vacation in September and return in October.

Gus Edwards Wants Talent.

Gus Edwards, the "Star Maker," whose proteges include such luminaries as Eddie Cantor, Lila Lee, Johnnie Mines, Helen Mencken, Ona Munson, George Jessel, Mae Murray, Duncan Sisters, Louise Groody, Harry Rose and numerous others, who, with his latest song and dance productions, will be the featured attraction at the St. Louis Theater next week, has wired Manager Hays that, while in St. Louis, he would like to interview girls and boys who are ambitious to embark on a theatrical career. All appointments should be made through the manager's office at the St. Louis Theater, and applicants will be given individual tryouts by Mr. Edwards.

Haydn Quartette Scored For Saxophones

John Sauter, flutist of the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra, has made an interesting experiment in instrumentation by transcribing Haydn's string quartette No. 15, Opus 3, No. 3, for four saxophones. The result, says Mr. Sauter, who is a saxophonist as well as a flutist, is a happy one, and he intends to make other transscriptions.

Because of the relatively limited range of a saxophone, compared with the wider range of musical tones possible to the violin, it has been regarded as impracticable for the wind instrument correctly to render and interpret the repertoire of the strings. Sauter, by employing two instruments, an alto and a soprano saxophone, attains a sufficiently wide musical scale, from the lowest to the highest tones of the violin, to permit rendition without compromise, cutting or omission of any part of the original score as conceived by Haydn.

He assigns to another saxophone the part usually played by the second violin, to a third that customarily done by a viola and to the resonant baritone saxophone the score usually played by a cello.

To accomplish this, transcription of the entire score was necessitated. This Sauter has lately completed and has placed the compositon in rehearsal for a suitable public rendition. The rehearsals are being held by a group of business men, all expert musicians, who call themselves the Saxofriends. They have refused numerous offers to tour, because they prefer their business activities, and find relaxation and uplift in music. They have attracted considerable attention to St. Louis in Eastern musical journals by their playing and only recently appeared in a St. Louis church and played the regular church service with saxophones in lieu of a vocal choir.

The members, in addition to Sauter, are: Edward Barroll, a composer; Orville C. Lind, head of the O. C. Lind Co.; J. J. Kessler, an instructor, and Mrs. Mary Jane Barroll, formerly of the faculty of Greenbriar College, who is the accompanist.

Sauter has been so impressed by the tonal beauty and possibilities of the new application of wind instruments to classic music that he anticipates that much if not all the repertoire of string quartettes may be made available for the saxophone.

TOSCANINI ENGAGED FOR FIVE-YEAR PERIOD

NEW YORK, June 4.—Arturo Toscanini has been engaged for a period of five years as conductor of the Philharmonic Orchestra, according to the announcement made by the president of the society, Clarence H. Mackay, this week at the meeting of the directors. The engagement was made public some time ago, but the length of his term was not told.

Mr. Mackay told the directors and the auxiliary board that Toscanini would begin his American engagement in the second half of the coming season. A 25 per cent increase in the demand for seats over this date last year indicates that the Philharmonic would have one of the most successful seasons in its history. Last season the orchestra played to audiences that were 93 per cent of the available seating capacity, whereas five years ago the attendance filled only 71 per cent.

Olga Baklanova, member of the Moscow Art Theater, will play the leading role opposite Emil Jannings in his next motion picture, "Hitting for Heaven," according to word received in the offices of Morris Gest in New York. Contracts to this effect have just been signed in Hollywood.

BEHIND THE SCREENS Out in Hollywood

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., June 4.—A "bad" horse and an actor who scoffed at discretion as the better part of valor provided the setting for an impromptu rodeo and some unscheduled thrills during the filming of Norma Talmadge's first United Artists picture, "The Dove."

Eddie Borden, who plays a comedy role in the Roland West production, was questioned by the director as to his ability to leap from a wall onto the back of a mustang, the popular mode of transportation in the mythical country of Costa Roja, where the story of "The Dove" is laid.

"Hold the critter till I get on back and I'll ride him," said Borden.

Noah Beery, Gilbert Roland, "Black Jack" Ward and other expert riders on the Talmadge set dared Borden to choose a less dangerous steed, but the comedian tolerated his confidence, so Director West told him to make the attempt.

When Borden jumped from a veranda wall to the back of the horse, he stayed on about one second and then described a neat parabola in the air. Although shaken up, he escaped unhurt. A second attempt ended just as disastrously. "Too wild for me," Borden admitted, and the scene was filmed with a well-behaved horse.

the horrors of war when the smoke of battle had cleared away.

The shots were fired at the proper time. With a crash that could be heard for blocks, the 60-foot tower thundered to the ground, debris flying in all directions.

Slowly the dust settled, with the cameras still grinding. Scarcely a square foot of building material in the church remained intact. But the figure of The Christ clung to its position on the wrecked wall, hanging by a slender thread. The Madonna was intact, although the wall of the shrine was gone.

And so the close-up was made.

Buster Keaton has been graduated from college. In other words the frozen-faced comedian has completed camera work on his United Artists picture, "College," which had been in production for more than four months at the Keaton studios and on the campuses and athletic fields of leading California educational institutions.

Buster and his staff will now spend several weeks editing and cutting more than 150,000 feet of film to exhibition length. As an innovation, the comedy star will assemble "College" at his new Beverly Hills home, where a complete projection room and laboratory is one of the features.

Authentic college atmosphere, with world famous varsity athletes and thousands of students in the supporting cast, has been stressed throughout the production, according to Harry Brand, general manager of the Keaton organization.

"Finis" will shortly be written to the "Wedding March," latest work of Erich von Stroheim and on which that director has been working for over a year and a half. The picture is now in the final stages of cutting and will be ready to be previewed within the next few weeks.

Von Stroheim is the star as well as author and director of "The Wedding March" and in it he is surrounded by Fay Wray, ZaSu Pits, Maude George, Dale Fuller, George Fawcett, George Nichols, Mathew Betz, Cesare Gravina and Hughie Mack.

A military preview of "Wings," Paramount's aviation picture, an interpretation of John Monk Saunders' story of exploits of the American air force in France, was held last week at San Antonio, Tex., with three Cabinet officers, the Governor of Texas and a host of war and other Government officials in attendance.

The picture has been more than a year in the making and is said to have cost more than $2,000,000. William Wellman, 28-year-old director of the film, who during the war was a member of the Lafayette Squadron, was present at the premiere with Paramount officials from the Hollywood studios. He was accorded an impressive ovation.

The performance was in the form of a benefit, the funds of which will go toward the erection of a memorial to the famous second division.

Included in the list of guests were: Gov. Dan Moody of Texas; Secretary of War Davis, Assistant Secretaries of War Hanford Mac Nider and F. Trubee Davison, Brigadier-General G. A. L. Dumont, military attache from France; Maj. Angel M. Zuleaga, military attache from Argentine; Brigadier-General A. Villa and Commander T. G. Hetherington, military attache from England; Maj. W. H. S. Alston, also from England, and Capt. S. Isoada from Japan. Brigadier-General J. E. Fechet and a representative staff from Washington also saw the picture.

Officers of the air corps stated that for the first time the life of the American aviator has been faithfully portrayed. Secretary of War Dwight Davis declined to be quoted, but those who sat near him at the premiere stated that he expressed in positive terms his gratification at a motion picture that so accurately presented the spirit of the American forces in the World War.

Ralph Ince, well-known screen star and director, returned from Catalina Island with his company, following three days of filming on the exteriors of his sea picture, "Shanghaied," which he is making for F. B. O.

"Shanghaied," based on a story of the San Francisco water front and life on the Pacific Ocean, is one of the most ambitious productions undertaken at the F. B. O. studios this year and preparations for its filming have been under way on an elaborate scale for several months. Ince, in this production, plays the dual role of star and director. Others in the cast are Patsy Ruth Miller and Tom Santschi.

The results of all these "Abie's Irish Rose" marriages on the screen are brought into the pitiless white glare of publicity in "Frisco Sally Levy," a forthcoming comedy release. The results, it seems, are blazoned forth in such names as Colleen Lapidowitz, Michael Abraham Lapidowitz, Isador Xavier Lapidowitz and Rebecca Patricia Lapidowitz. Little Sally O'Neill is Colleen Lapidowitz, the daughter of an Irish Rose who married a Son of Abraham. Kate Price is the Irish mother; Tennen Holtz, the Jewish father. Roy D'Arcy and Charles Delaney are others in the cast. William Beaudine, who made Mary Pickford's "Little Annie Rooney," directed it.

King Vidor, director of "The Big Parade," "La Boheme," "Bardelys, the Magnificent" and other outstanding films, has gone to New York to get authentic "atmosphere shots" for "The Crowd," made as a "Big Parade of Peace." Vidor wrote "The Crowd," which concerns itself with the dramatic undercurrents of everyday life in a big city. The romantic leads are played by Eleanore Boardman (Mrs. Vidor in private life) and James Murray, whom Vidor discovered among the horde of Hollywood extras. Bert Roach, Dorothy Sebastian, Estelle Clarke and Lucy Beaumont also appear in it.

The world's largest electric fan is simulating the Texas "wind country" in Lillian Gish's new starring vehicle, "The Wind," based on Dorothy Scarborough's novel. The fan, a giant airplane propeller worked by an electric motor, has something of cyclonic fervor. But in warm southern California, it is welcome at this season. Picture workers term Montague Love, Edward Earle, William Orlamond and others in Miss Gish's support "lucky" to work on such a "set."

dresser-than-thou expressions, the while they recoiled with pained astonishment at the advent of a be-whiskered pushcart vendor from the Grand Street curb. The drawing was entitled "One of the Neighbors Goes to the Neighborhood." This facetious cartoon was only a teasing exaggeration of the truth.

NOW, however, the troupe moves uptown to Broadway, where audiences seep in from the endless glacier of traffic in the cross-streets, going to this play instead of that because the clerk at the cigar stand in the hotel had spoken well of it or, more probably, going to this play instead of that because they could not get seats to that. I do not mean that in the ensuing confusion when Mrs. Fiske plays "Ghosts" in our town she gets an audience made up entirely of people whose spiritual home is the Winter Garden, to which they (and she, I fancy) devoutly wish they had gone instead. Not entirely. But I do mean that, planted in the thick of things, the long-sheltered players from the Neighborhood will sigh more than once for the days when their patrons sought them out instead, as so often, I think, is the case with our Broadway playgoers of being pushed into the theater because there was no more room out on the sidewalk.

DELIBERATE, carefully aimed playgoing is becoming more and more difficult in New York, as, for that matter, mere living is. It is not only that the flaunting broadsides of 60 playhouses make picking and choosing a perilous matter. The very getting from your dinner table to your seat on the aisle is a journey fraught with peril. The great city has flung its towers to the astonished stars. By prodigies of building, it is now possible for thousands of people to dwell, layer on layer, in the same block where only a few score of people lived 20 years ago. But the thousands must somehow use the same lanes and footways which used to serve the mere handful of yesteryear. Wherefore each night now for miles around Times Square sees the streets clogged with such preposterous and self-defeating traffic as one used to encounter only on the day of the Army and Navy game.

IT USED to be a pleasant thing to dine at the Cafe Martin and, afterwards, take a hansom to the Empire to see Maude Adams in "The Little Minister." Nothing so tranquil, nothing so leisurely is possible today. You either crawl through maddening traffic that sometimes takes more than three-quarters of an hour to move a half a mile or you take to your heels and try your luck on the sidewalk, in which case you arrive at the theater door a little sooner but feeling somewhat as if you had been shopping for several hours in a department store the week before Christmas. In either event it is a battered, nerve-wracked playgoer who sinks at last into his seat, just in time for the second act. Then the play unfolds to the incidental music provided free of charge each night by the tooting of the automobile horns and the whistles of the taxi-starters in the street outside. During the matinees this orchestration is interestingly enriched by the interweaving motif of the riveting machines at work next door and across the street on a lot of nice new theaters.

I find myself wondering why the "Grand Street Follies" ever left the dingy peace of distant Grand street or why people go to the theater at all in New York. I write this pastoral letter—the last of the season—with my mind already traveling along a white road that leads to the side of a lake in Vermont. There is an island in that lake which looks as if Maxfield Parrish had drawn it and left it there absent-mindedly. I am headed for that island. No more lunatic snarls of traffic, no more breathing of air that someone else has already breathed several times, no more uproar of taxi horns and riveters. But I wonder what "The Mikado" will be like when Winthrop Ames stages it in the fall and what play will ring up the Theater Guild's curtain in September.

TO BECOME NAVAL FLYERS

Eight young men of the naval reserve aviation unit at St. Louis have been selected to take an intensive course of training this summer, which will lead to commissions for them as naval flyers with the rank of ensign.

They will go to Great Lakes, Ill., for 45 days on June 15, and afterwards to Hampton Roads, Va., for 45 days. They were chosen because they had had college training and because it was believed they were good "officer material."

Lieut. Fred Fisher commands the reserve unit.

PRISON BOARD PENALIZES TWO MORE EMPLOYES

Accountant in Charge of Books Fired, Purchasing Agent Shunted to Minor Position.

BOTH FIGURED IN SENATE INQUIRY

Further Shakeup Involving Dr. Enloe and William McGregor Reported but Given Little Credence.

By the Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, June 4.—"Reorganization" of the State Penitentiary has been resumed by the administration, following a lull of several weeks, by relieving of their duties two additional employes whose testmony before the Senate Investigating Committee, in the recent legislative prison inquiry, was not considered favorable to the State Penal Board.

Harold Tucker, accountant in charge of prison books, was removed by the board, effective today. He was directed to turn over immediately all of his books to R. A. Loucks, an accountant brought here by the board during the prison investigation, and who remained as a prison employe.

Joseph Ruwart, purchasing agent at the prison, who testified before the Senate committee that he was purchasing agent in name only, and that many purchases were made by the board without competitive bids, has been relieved of his title and shunted to a minor position at the Boys' Reformatory at Boonville. Tucker also was a witness before the committee, and testified concerning the prison books and finances.

Purchasing Job Vacant.

No steps have been taken to fill the position of purchasing agent, it was said, and the purchasing will be supervised by the board, the dominant member of which is Dr. Cortez F. Enloe, director of penal institutions and close friend and political adviser of Gov. Baker. Board members declared the changes were made "in the interest of economy."

Reports of a further shakeup this month, which may involve retirement of Enloe and William McGregor, superintendent of prison farms, have been current in political circles here, although close observers doubt that Enloe will retire, at least not soon. Former Circuit Judge Almon Ing of Poplar Bluff, now a member of the State Public Service Commission, is said to be under consideration as successor to Enloe, if he resigns.

Enloe, a Republican, and McGregor, a Democrat, were the members chiefly under fire in the prison investigation. The Senate committee report recommending ouster of the entire board for mismanagement and extravagance was overridden by a combination of Republicans and six Democratic Senators, who bolted their party caucus. The combination confirmed the appointments of the board members. At that time it was said that a reorganization of the board had been promised by administration forces if the Senate would confirm the board, thereby exonerating the board members and the administration.

The first steps in Gov. Baker's "reorganization" of the prison were the dismissal of Parole Commissioner A. H. Steinbeck, a board member and William Kruse, Secretary of the Board. This was done shortly after the Legislature adjourned in April.

Steinbeck incurred the displeasure of the administration by testifying before the Senate Committee concerning inefficient business methods at the prison and dominance of prison management by Dr. Enloe. Kruse wrote a letter to the Governor and board members, calling attention to a deficit of $158,000 which was concealed in the board's official report to the Governor and Legislature covering the biennial period of 1925-26, and to abstraction of some records from the prison files.

Any new members of the board will have an opportunity to demonstrate their financial ability, as the prison is threatened with another large deficit at the end of this biennial period. Some of the bills have been unpaid since the first of the year. Outstanding unpaid bills now total approximately $350,000, it was said. Heavy inroads have been made on the support appropriation.

Small Industrial Margin.

The industrial department, stripped of its surplus by the board to pay bills in 1926, recently had a margin of only $60,000 between its bills receivable and bills payable, and owed the penitentiary proper about $160,000 for convict labor. The convict "tip" of $1 to $1.50 a month, representing the "wages" of convicts in the factories, has not been paid for three months, it was said. The "tips" amount to about $4000 a month.

During the last biennial period the Enloe Board spent about $630,000 in excess of its appropriations. It used up its $2,250,000 in appropriations made by the Legislature, then depleted the industrial department surplus by drawing on it for approximately $480,000 to pay bills of the prison, and in addition had a deficit of $158,000.

TOSCANINI ENGAGED FOR FIVE-YEAR PERIOD

NEW YORK, June 4.—Artaro Toscanini has been engaged for a period of five years as conductor of the Philharmonic Orchestra, according to the announcement made by the president of the society, Clarence H. Mackay, this week at the meeting of the directors. His engagement was made public some time ago, but the length of his term was not told.

Mr. Mackay told the directors and the auxiliary board that Toscanini would begin his American engagement in the second half of the coming season. A 25 per cent increase in the demand for seats over this date last year indicated that the Philharmonic would have one of the most successful seasons in its history. Last season the orchestra played to audiences that were 93 per cent of the available seating capacity, whereas five years ago the attendance filled only 71 per cent.

Olga Baklanova, member of the Moscow Art Theater, will play the leading role opposite Emil Jannings in his next motion picture, "Hitting for Heaven," according to word received in the offices of Morris Gest in New York. Contracts to this effect have just been signed in Hollywood.

JUDICIAL ELECTION ON EAST SIDE TOMORROW

Two Tickets Have Candidates for Circuit Court in Third District.

Election of judges of the Circuit Court of the Third Illinois judicial district will be held tomorrow. There are two tickets in the field with three candidates each. Three judges are to be elected for a term of six years. Polls will be open from 6 a. m. to 4 p. m.

The Republican ticket candidates are Judge Louis Bernreuter of Nashville, Ill., incumbent; Henry G. Miller, attorney, of East St. Louis, and Jesse R. Brown of Alton, Ill., state's attorney of Madison County.

On the Non-partisan Ticket are M. Lester Geers of Edwardsville, Ill.; John D. Biggs of Greenville, Ill., both attorneys, and Judge George A. Crow, incumbent. The customary Democratic ticket was made Non-partisan by agreement between Democratic leaders and Judge Crow selected as a candidate, after the Republican nominating convention had named Henry G. Miller in his place, Edward E. Miller, brother of the candidate and Republican leader in East St. Louis, controlled the convention. A dissenting minority failed to replace Crow.

The district comprises St. Clair, Madison, Washington, Bond, Monroe, Perry and Randolph counties.

St. Clair County also will vote on an additional tax proposition of $0.19 on the hundred dollar valuation, to be levied for 12 years to pay principal and interest on outstanding road bonds.

The increase is in excess of the constitutional limitation of $0.75, in effect since 1870. County Auditor George Eckert, in a statement advocating passage of the measure, forecasts a deficit of $35,000 next year unless additional income is obtained. He points out that the increase in expenses to county government by State legislation, not providing a means for raising revenue, amounts to $83,000.

Business organizatoions in East St. Louis, opposing the measure, say a disproportionate part of the increase would fall on city property because of higher valuations. They contend the measure is a subterfuge which would enable the county government, by reallotting its present income, to devote funds to public buildings at Belleville.

Chinese Captor of Nanking Says Anglo-Japanese Cabal Put Blame for Outrages on Him

Gen. Chen Tells of Secret Warning to Dr. Williams, American, Who Was Killed Later—Declares Northerners Were the Only Looters.

(Copyright, 1927 by the World Wide News Service, Inc.)

LONDON, June 4.

THE following extended interview given to Miss Sue Sin Far by Gen. Chen Chien, Commanding the Nationalist (Cantonese) forces at the capture of Nanking, has just reached London:

"On March 16 a Chinese Christian student (a disciple of the Rev. John E. Williams, D. D., the American missionary at the head of the American College at Nanking who was killed when that city fell into the hands of the Nationalists March 23-24,. was conducted into my headquarters with an urgent message from Dr. Williams acquainting me with the hostility of the natives against the foreigners at Nanking, especially the British. In the message he expressed to me the fear that as the lower class of the Chinese population were not able to differentiate between the English and the Americans, the agitation our propagandists had been stirring up throughout China during the last few years would have a tendency to victimize all foreigners alike. In that friendly note Dr. Williams warned me that any wanton act committed by our adherents, especially against the Americans at Nanking, would have a tendency to alienate the American sympathy against us. He further urged that as a great section of the American public were in earnest sympathy with our cause, it would be a crime against our cause should a riff-raff element at Nanking jeopardize America's good will towards the Nationalists.

"I appreciated Dr. Williams' friendly advice and sent word to him that I valued his suggestions highly. At the same time I called a council of my staff and discussed the situation. On the following day I selected a lieutenant under my command, who was a graduate of Nanking college and a disciple of Dr. Williams, to whom I entrusted two messages; one addressed to Dr. Williams direct, and the other I requested him to deliver to the American consul at Nanking.

Warns Americans Away.

"In the message I addressed to Dr. Williams, I begged him to use all his influence to gather all Americans and conduct them either to the American men-of-war, a number of which I was informed were in that vicinity, or if that proved to be impossible to arrange with Chang Tsung-chang's command to afford them a place of safety (Chang Tsung-chang, the Northern General, was at the time holding Nanking.) I requested Dr. Williams likewise to advise all leaders of the foreign Nationals. I exploined that as Chang Tsung-chang was holding Nanking with 80,000 Manchurian mercenaries, recruited mostly from the criminal element, and as I was certain of capturing Nanking within a few days, in the intervening time during the evacuation of Chang Tsung-chang's men and our entering the City the riff-raff, the criminal, civil or military, would commit offenses against foreigners which would be beyond my power to control until a day or so after my capture of the city.

"In the second message, addressed to the American Consul through the medium of Dr. Williams, I reviewed the situation similarly, adding that in case my armies should find it necessary to invest Nanking and Chang Tsung-chang should decide to give battle, it would be absolutely impossible for me to promise to spare any section of the city, and that in the ensuing battle no matter how careful our artillery might be, stray shots, directed against our enemies, might cause damage to foreign property or loss of life. For that reason, I urged upon him to confer with other foreign consuls and naval officials at Nanking with a view of temporarily evacuating the city until its fate had been decided. Should this suggestion not be found practicable, I suggested that all the foreign nationals be segregated in an agreed district and an agreement be made with Chang Tsung-chang that they be guarded and protected by the Northern forces in occupation of the city. I pledged my honor that unless Chang Tsung-chang's forces fired at me, utilizing that neutral zone where the foreign nationals had taken refuge, I would undertake to spare that specified area during my investment of the city. I pledged, too, that should I capture the city I would consider the Chang Tsung-chang's soldiers who were assigned to guard and protect the foreign nationals absolutely immune from capture, and I would conduct them safely to the north.

Dr. Williams' Reply.

"These messages were delivered to Dr. Williams by the hand of my lieutenant, who, after being conducted under a flag of truce to and from Chang Tsung-chang's line, returned to us safely.

"March 20, I received a message from Dr. Williams acknowledging the receipt of my two messages, but regretting the frame of mind of the foreign nationals at Nanking. He stated in that message that neither the foreign nationals nor the American Consul believed that Chang Tsung-chang would fight, yet inconsistently maintained that should he decide to hold the city the Nationalists would not attack it.

"I was very much concerned about the fate of the foreign nationals because I had been ordered to give battle and capture the city at all costs. This attitude of the foreign population of Nanking disconcerted my staff officials, and that phase of the situation occupied nearly half of our attention in drawing our plans to give battle.

"My final message to Dr. Williams was sent on March 21, when it became apparent that Chang Tsung-chang's Northern forces would not give battle and were preparing evacuation. In violation of all military usages I sent a secret message to Dr. Williams, telling him that in view of the intelligence I had received, that Chang Tsung-chang was preparing to evacuate the city, on reaching the outskirts of Nanking I would halt my armies to a standstill, giving the Northerners an opportunity to evacuate in order to avoid clashes between my soldiers and the retreating forces. I thought this course would avoid any excuse for the Chang-Tsung-chang riff-raff and civilian loafers to commit violence against the foreigners.

"Having definite knowledge that my last message was delivered into the hands of Dr. Williams, I issued strict orders to my armies to stop at the outskirts of the city. The troops who were selected to enter later were warned at the expense of their lives to be considerate of foreign nationals and instructed to execute on sight anyone caught attempting plunder in the captured city.

"On the evening of March 23 my troops surrounded the city from all sides up to the river, and it was at our mercy. We did not enter it until the following morning.

Complains of Bombardment.

"About 80,000 of Chang Tsung-chang's men who had returned from Yu Hua-tai had been looting the city the whole day of March 23, all night, and towards the evening of March 24.

"On entering the city on March 24 I was astounded to hear cannonading. I immediately inquired

Radio Fans Can Now "Look In" as Well as "Listen In," Inventor of Television Says

John L. Baird of London Describes His Advance from a Tin Can Phone to Successful Projection of Moving Images Through Space — Predicts Televisors Will Be Sold for $150 Within a Year.

Another Device of His Enables One to See in the Dark, Through Fog or Smoke Screens Such as Are Thrown Out to Protect Warships—In Depths of Poverty When Success Came.

TELEVISION is a scientific problem which has engaged the attention of a number of inventors in recent years, mostly working independently of each other. The first public demonstration of a measure of success in transmitting a moving image through space to a distant point was presented by engineers of the American Telephone & Telegraph Co., about two months ago, when Secretary Hoover, speaking in Washington, was heard and seen on a screen near New York City. That process was developed in its own laboratories.

John L. Baird of London, who discusses television in the following article, demonstrated his apparatus last January to members of the Royal Institute.

An interview with John L. Baird, by Claude F. Luke, a special London correspondent of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

LONDON, June 1.

I FIRMLY believe that within one year every radio fan will be able to own a home televisor at the moderate price of $150. It has passed the experimental period and there is no question about its adaptability to any distance. So when I say we must wait another year to put the home televisor within the means of radio fans I do not mean that the device is not completed. But the formation of a company with sufficient capital to ensure its world-wide distribution, construction of factories and machinery to ensure mass production, the organization of broadcasting stations and arranging regular programs, must of necessity consume another year before the people of Britain and the United States of America are permitted the privilege of "looking in" in addition to "listening in."

Expanding the Transmission Radius of the Televisor

While these arrangements are in progress we will keep on experimenting with a view of expanding the transmission radius of the televisor. To that end we are now preparing to make the first transatlantic transmission, and I am planning shortly to leave for New York with a receiving set. If the demonstration is successful, the miracle of a man standing in a New York office and seeing and hearing what is happening in my studio in London will be accomplished.

How did I conceive the idea of the televisor?

I partly conceived it and partly stumbled into it. But once I had the idea in my head I had to journey the beaten path of struggle and poverty over which has trod many an inventor. That road is similar to that over which the hero of Pilgrim's progress traveled. On both sides there are giant beasts—poverty, discouragement, ridicule—before the goal has been reached.

It is only a few months more than a year ago that on my invitation, a member of the Royal Institute and one of Britain's most famous scientists inspected my machine, which was then in a much cruder form than at present, and said: "Baird, you've got it." I knew I had it, but the world would not believe me enough to finance me with funds to produce a finished machine. The British scientist repeated to the British public what he said to me in private: "Baird has got it. The rest is purely a matter of improving the device."

With additional funds I progressed, and today the televisor is capable of transmitting clear pictures of living, moving faces, and any objects that may be placed before the "eye" of the transmitter.

Boys' Book Turned Baird Seriously to Invention

My father was a Scottish minister in the small town of Helensburgh, on the Firth of Clyde. He had selected the ministry as a career for me, and perhaps I would have become a small-town minister had it not been for a book which one of my relatives gave me as a Christmas present. That book, "The Boys' Book of Sports and Pastimes," was responsible primarily for the change of my future career as laid out for me by my father, and for the invention of the televisor.

That book was composed of a thousand and one items of useful knowledge, ranging from how to shine the family boots to the making of a boat or a steam-engine. But the chapter that most attracted me was that containing an account of how to make a telephone. I made one out of a piece of wire, a nail, and a tin can. That was my first invention. Then I made other telephones for my friends and wired their houses, connecting them to a small exchange at my own bedside. Every night I would gravely call up Tom, Jack and Bill, and the rest before retiring.

But a little tragi-comedy soon stopped this budding telephone industry. I had tied the telephone wires between my house and my friends' houses to the chimney tops. One dark, windy night one of the wires sagged into the roadway and jerked a startled cabman clean out of his seat. The furious cabby dashed to the office of the National Telephone Co. to lodge a complaint and demand damages. The manager who knew all about my ambitious efforts contrived to pacify the infuriated cabby, and later on advised me that I had better cease my rival activities. That ended my telephone enterprise.

Made Money Out of Socks That Keep One's Feet Warm

After graduating from the Glasgow Royal Technical College and serving my apprenticeship as an engineer, I went to Glasgow University. Then came the great war. The army declared me unfit, so I had to content myself with war work in a local power house. During this period I kept up my studies, and my inventions were still hazily floating beneath my hat.

After the war I took out my first patent. You see, I have all my life suffered from cold feet. My invention was calculated to be a boon to all fellow sufferers. It was a sock that kept one's feet warm. It proved a success and as a manufacturer I was able to talk to my bank manager with my hat on. I made quite a large sum of money, but discovered that my ailment, cold feet, could not be cured even by my own socks, but was the result of ill-health consequent of severe Glasgow winters.

I sold my business, journeyed to the West Indies, and established myself at Trinidad, at which place I found the atmosphere of a Turkish bath. It rained steadily for the first week following my arrival. On the second day I contracted dysentery. On my recovery I sallied forth to obtain a position with a local English firm as a salesman, but soon discovered that apparently the entire male population of Trinidad had thought of the same idea and had become selling agents. In fact, there were twice as many agents as there were firms.

Insects Put Him Out of the Jam-Making Business

Again I had to invent. But this time I had to invent a new position. I decided to go into the jam-making business. I got my idea for this from a lemon. On a picturesque spot at Bourgmulstrice I built my jam factory. An ordinary person would not, perhaps, appreciate the fact that jam-making on a large scale is a fine science.

Although Baird's Orange Jelly and Baird's Mango Chutney will make my name remembered among the inhabitants of Trinidad far more than mere television, my success as a jam manufacturer was confined to local hotels. The smell of the preserves attracted from the jungle millions of insects, some or which the oldest inhabitants had never seen before, and their tastes were thoroughly impartial, they devoured both jam and large pieces of me with equal gusto. As a result I was laid low with a severe attack of malaria, and finally decided that the "land of the humming bird" was a much over-rated locality.

At Hastings, about four years ago, in two small rooms above a florist shop I established my studio where I dreamed of television for days and nights.

From the days when I had made my first tin can telephone the problem of the transmission of scenes had captured and held my fancy. I thought of nothing but a selenium cell sufficiently sensitive to become the eye of the world, and before long I managed to send silhouettes from one room to another.

Encouraged by this success, in 1923 I returned to London, this time occupying two small rooms in an attic in the Soho quarter. In one room I cooked and slept, while the other room I used as my studio.

Money was running short and the expensive materials of my rivals were quite beyond my means. My improvised apparatus was constructed out of odd bits of junk, such as bicycle parts, tins, cardboard, discs, cheap lenses, the various components being welded together with string and sealing wax.

Projects Silhouettes Then Outlines of Features

Day by day I progressed, first shadows, then outlines, mere white ovals for the faces and a dark blur for the mouth; and finally an ever increasing amount of facial detail. But funds kept on getting low.

During the latter part of 1925 it became a question of inducing the real estate agent to accept promises for cash.

In January, 1926, when at the end of my tether, I summoned enough courage to invite members of the Royal Institution to a full demonstration. Forty of them arrived, but my studio could not possibly accommodate them all. So in relays of six or seven I conducted them up the four flights of stairs into my two-room laboratory, and for the first time in history the image of a living face, perfect in all detail, was sent across the space between the two rooms.

That afternoon success came to me. Money sufficient for my immediate needs was at once forthcoming, and a few weeks later saw me installed at my present laboratory in Upper street, Martin's Lane, with a house at Harrow for a receiving station.

Newest Device Enables One to See Clearly in the Dark

But great as my televisor is I value my second invention, the noctovision seeing in the darkness, as of even greater importance.

I stumbled into this idea when transmitting the image of a man smoking a cigarette. I noticed that while the receiving screen showed every detail of the man's head, face, and even the cigarette, the smoke itself was invisible. In this way I feel that I have stumbled on one of the biggest and most beneficial discoveries in the world to humanity. I found that the special infra-red ray which I used for illuminating subjects for television penetrated smoke.

This was the clew and the noctovisor the result.

The thickest fog or darkest night, or even a combination of both, can be pierced by this ray. The imagination boggles at the thought of its effect on shipping and land transport, and, in warfare, its uses against night attacks or those made under cover of a smoke screen!

Correspondent Gives Picture Of Life Behind the Scenes In Official Washington

Social Climbers, Lobbies That Tempt Legislators With Votes, the Bachelor Market, Described in J. Fred Essary's Book.

By CHARLES G. ROSS,
Chief Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, June 4.

J. FRED ESSARY, Washington correspondent of the Baltimore Sun, has written an engaging and informative book on the political and social life of the National Capital, under the title of "Covering Washington." (Houghton Mifflin.)

There is a deal more in it than the surface chit-chat which forms the bulk of the average volume of Washington reminiscences. In a long service at Washington, Essary has kept his eyes and his mind open, and he has arrived at certain well-defined conclusions about the National Government. He has, however, as he states in his preface, no "message" to convey; he seeks only to present a reporter's picture of the Washington scene, and in this endeavor he succeeds admirably.

As a justification for adding another to the many books about Washington, Essary points to the rapid and continuous growth of Federal activities in number and in power to touch the everyday affairs of the citizen.

"There was a time," he writes, "when Washington concerned itself primarily with the national defense, delivery of the mails, maintenance of navigable rivers and harbors, the enforcement of Federal statutes, guardianship of the Indians, Federal currency, payment of war pensions, control of public lands and a few minor matters. But that time has passed; indeed, it is almost forgotten. Whether or not it is in the public interest, the fact remains that governmental bureaucracy is now practically all-absorbing in its scope."

Rise of the Lobby.

In a particularly illuminating chapter on the "Evolution of the Lobby" Essary records his conviction (which undoubtedly would be echoed by every Washington correspondent) that, notwithstanding several famous lobby investigations by Congress, the "Third House of Congress" operates today with undiminished efficiency. It has merely changed its tactics to conform to the times.

"The lobbyist," he writes, "may not have repented, but the 'lobbyee' has reformed. The latter cannot, as a rule, be reached in the old way. Gratuities, real estate divisions and market tips—persuasive expedients in olden times—no longer appeal to him. They are no longer safe."

The new style lobby, of which the Anti-Saloon League is the most conspicuous and the most successful example, "affects to work in the open." It is manned by well-paid experts, professional organizers of propaganda, who work at their job the year around. They are always members of "committees," usually of "legislative committees," and the prize that they dangle before the Congressman is not a check, but the promise of blocks of votes. The author's description of the typical lobbyist of today accurately fits Wayne B. Wheeler, who is the "legislative superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League.

The "committee" dodge enables the lobbyist to obtain hearings that otherwise would be denied. It gives a specious air of unselfishness to his work. More important still, "it impresses the legislator with the idea that a body of votes may be won or lost and that care must be taken not to affront a committee backed up by hundreds or perhaps thousands of good citizens."

The Patronage Broker.

Not so well known to the public is the patronage broker, who deals in jobs instead of legislation. Essary describes him neatly.

"With every change of administration, the suave gentlemen who promise office seekers preferment, at a price, swarm into Washington, establish themselves in apparent good standing with the appointing power, takes their places in hotel corridors and await the arrival of the rich and the eager.

"The operations of these performers are interesting to observe. Although they have a hand out at all times for the small feed—that is, they are willing to sell their 'influence' to the would-be collector of internal revenue, or United States Marshal, or postmaster—most of them angle for bigger fish. They thrive upon the millionaire whose wife and daughters want to see him made an ambassador or a minister, or even the governor of some outlying American possession. And, singular as it may seem, it is usually the man who has made big money and who has a fervent longing for the ornamental things of politics who proves the easiest victim of the ready 'fixers' around Washington."

How the Game Is Played.

The patronage broker, as the author exhibits him, usually has a confederate who ingratiates himself with the job-hunter. After finding out what that gentleman wants, he suggests that he knows a certain man who is close to the President or someone else in power. He estimates that the job can be done for $5000 or $10,000, with which to give a few dinners, collect the necessary indorsements, etc. Finally he brings together the job-seeker and the influential friend. What follows is thus narrated by the author:

"When the longing one finally comes into personal contact with the broker, he is usually shown, quite confidentially, letters received from men in high station, the sort almost anybody willing to make the effort can get, but the sort that look impressive to the uninitiated. It is only necessary to send a book or write a note of congratulation or enclose a friendly newspaper clipping to a high official in order to receive a response beginning, 'My dear Mr. Smith' instead of 'My dear sir.' And it is amazing how easy it is to capitalize these seemingly personal relations.

"If the office-seeker is easily duped, the negotiations between him and the broker proceed rapidly following the exhibition of the carefully preserved letters. Nine times out of 10, however, the broker can guarantee no favorable results. There may be a man here and there who has some 'drag' with a new administration and who can render a degree of service for the fees received, but for the most part the people who play this game can deliver nothing and do deliver nothing."

Anti-Saloon League Lobby.

In a vivid account of the activity of the Anti-Saloon League in Washington, Essary recalls that it waged a bitter fight in 1916 against the confirmation of Louis D. Brandeis as a member of the United States Supreme Court, because 20 or 30 years earlier Brandeis had appeared as attorney for a brewery organization in New England before a committee of the Massachusetts Legislature.

"The Anti-Saloon League lobby," writes Essary, "is still on the job. It believes in eternal vigilance. It is continually re-enforcing itself for future fights and is buttressing its organization against possible reaction on the part of the people. All of which gives continuous employment to the professional dry leaders.

"It is difficult to dislodge a strongly entrenched lobby, and still more difficult to dissolve it. The purpose for which it was

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

Making the River Behave.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

IN REFERENCE to the deep waterway to the Gulf—I have come to the conclusion after having 27 years' experience on river improvement work, that it will be a very difficult proposition to make the river behave. If the river is straightened (as suggested in the "People's Column" recently) the water will run so fast that we will have no water in the Mississippi, only at high water time—say April and May; and with a straight river and high water a steamboat cannot stem the fast running water.

As long as the Missouri River continues dumping sand in the Mississippi River we will have to keep this sand moving toward the Gulf with pile dikes where the river is trying to widen. This will prevent sandbars from forming in the river. Riprap the shores in the bad bends. Build the levees further back from the river and riprap the shore well; and the pile dikes will stop the bottom of the river from coming up.

Sandbars form only where the river widens. This is caused by the slacking of the current and not enough force to keep the sand moving. I have built and sunk willow mattresses in 105 feet of water, 250 feet from shore in a 20 foot stage of water, 25 miles north of Osceola, Ark. In this depth of water, mattresses and stone revetments are about the only remedy and will answer the purpose if well done. J. F. H., St. Louis.

A Southerner on Mencken.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

I HAVE read your editorial, "A Carolina Dramatist," the letter, "Mencken and Southern Literature," and your later editorial "Hard-Hearted, Provincial Mencken." Why should the Post-Dispatch be interested in what Mencken thinks about anything? As a Southerner, do I care a damn what he thinks? Not yet. And then some. I wonder how he lands on the editorial page so often. He is the embodiment of everything he rails against. He doesn't clear mediocrity by margin enough to be consistent. Park him on the market pages. Heraus mit him! SKRID.

Making Men Moral.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

THE Volstead thing seems to be an attempt to make men moral. Such attempts deprive one of the glorious privilege of making oneself moral. Moral, as may be dictated on one's own wire with God.

Thinking men and molders of the morals of youth, the hope of the land, hold such law in contempt. They have violated it; hate has been engendered, where heretofore love for law and for patriotism has existed.

In Hoyt's "A Texas Steer," Maj. Yell inelegantly exclaimed: "Damit, I told that tailor to make these pockets 'quarts.'"

No joke today! Hip pockets must be pints; overcoats, raincoats, dolmans must be fashioned for "quarts"; cellars must be fortified with concrete vaults, vaults secured by combination locks (Yale special). Nicely fashioned flat and fancy flasks "formed to fit" the curves of milady's hip or limb add to the under-table social hilarity.

Compulsory reformation is fraught, it seems to me, with dangers and inconsistencies.

A colored parson of the Baptist persuasion attempted to wash away Aunt Maria's sins down at Brother Branham's mill pond. She protested.

When they immersed the old soul for the third time, they had to lay her out on the bank for a troublesome resuscitation. She came to after the conventional barrel ride, and while still gasping and sputtering, she indignantly gulped out:

"De white folks gwineter lose some mighty good niggers by dis here foolishness." JAMES CABELL MINOR.

Hot Springs, Ark.

"King of the Sea."

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

CAPT. CHARLES A. LINDBERGH has put St. Louis on the map for good by making the first nonstop transatlantic flight from New York to Paris in 33½ hours. By this great achievement, St. Louis received more fame than last year when the Cardinals won the world championship.

Hearing the welcomes Paris, Brussels and London gave him and the welcome New York is to give him, we owe him a far greater welcome. On the day of his arrival in St. Louis, a public holiday should be declared in this city. Students should not attend schools and employes should not work. Our principal streets should be decorated with "Old Glory" and everybody should have a chance to cheer our hero in a parade and his famous plane, the "Spirit of St. Louis," suitably displayed. Capt. Lindbergh should be rewarded with a medal for his heroism, the immortal fame he gave St. Louis and for the encouragement he gave of a commercial transatlantic air system.

Let us practice singing the following song with the "Bunney" song melody:

Lindbergh flew over the ocean;
Lindbergh is king of the sea;
Lindbergh flew over the ocean;
Oh, bring back my Lindbergh to me.
Three lusty cheers for Capt. Lindbergh! MAURICE D. APPLE.

INTERVENTION QUESTIONS.

William Flewellyn Saunders, for many years Secretary of the Business Men's League in St. Louis, and for a decade or more Secretary of the American Chamber of Commerce in Mexico City, paints a dark picture of conditions in Mexico. Trade and production, he says, are at a low ebb. The agrarian laws have checked all investment outside of the cities, and there is grave doubt of the outcome on the part of foreigners holding land in Mexico. The anti-religious laws have caused widespread hostility towards the Government on the part of the bulk of the population.

There are four revolutions in progress, not as yet organized sufficiently to be effective. The embargo on the shipment of arms by the United States is the only thing, he believes, that prevents a widespread revolution that would overthrow Calles. There is little hope, however, for better things from revolution.

The only hope of order on the part of foreigners in Mexico and the intelligent group of Mexicans lies in intervention by the United States. Looking at it from the standpoint of the foreigner in Mexico, Mr. Saunders naturally thinks that the American people are singularly indifferent to the fate of their nationals in Mexico and to the confiscation of their property.

There is one question, however, which Mr. Saunders has not answered and would not answer. We doubt if any interventionist would attempt to answer it. It is the nub of the whole issue of interference or intervention.

We lay aside the question of the right and duty of the United States to intervene in Mexico and attempt to determine what sort of government Mexico shall have and what shall be her destiny. Assuming that the United States should decide that it was our duty to establish a strong government and to maintain law and order in Mexico, what would be the cost? How great an army would it take to control Mexico? And how long would it take to establish order there? Would we ever be able to subject the Mexicans to our dictation and rule except by force? What would be the ultimate end of an attempt on our part to establish a practical protectorate over Mexico? Would we have to take it over? Would we have another Ireland on our hands, and repeat the experience of England, which, after centuries of bloody suppression, was compelled to solve the problem by giving Ireland independence.

What would be the effect of intervention by the United States in Mexico on our relations with the other republics of South America? The fear and hostility created by our intervention in Nicaragua is insignificant compared with the fear and hostility which would be aroused if we intervened in Mexico. It would undoubtedly be taken as a signal of a deliberate policy to dominate South America and to use force for that purpose, whenever we decided intervention to be necessary from our standpoint.

It is easy enough to say that conditions in Mexico call for intervention by the United States, but that does not solve the problem. Granting that it is the duty of the United States to protect American lives in so far as it is possible in a disorderly country, and to demand indemnities and insist that American property rights shall be respected, and if violated there shall be compensation for losses, that may be accomplished without intervention. We have yet to prove that it is impossible by the exercise of patience and persistence to get just settlements from the Calles or some other Mexican government. The outcome of this policy has yet to be demonstrated. Certainly we ought to give Mexico a complete opportunity to demonstrate whether or not a capable government can be established and whether or not she is to throw over all international obligations and to confess utter failure.

When we undertake intervention, however, we must be prepared to go the whole length. What that length would be and what would be its cost, and what would be its consequences in South America gives us pause.

NEWS AND NEAR-NEWS.

There is news and near-news. A good example of near-news came out of the City of Mexico last Friday. A United Press dispatch said that secret service men of the Mexican Government had raided the Russian Embassy upon suspicion that a seditious meeting was in progress there.

This was highly improbable, as near-news usually is. The most ardent friends of Mexico in the United States have never suspected her of being so hostile to the Soviets that she would do that. While accepting the assurance of President Calles that Mexico's brand of socialism is her own, they were not prepared to believe that she is going to repeat the raids of Chang Tso-Lin and Sir Jeynson-Hicks.

Thanks to the Associated Press, to which we look for news, we know now that there was no such raid. What happened was that Mme. Kollantai, Soviet Ambassador to Russia, gave a going-away party at the Embassy upon the eve of her vacation, which she will spend at home. The police, hearing that a seditious meeting had been held in the neighborhood, accosted Mme. Kollantai on the street as she was on her way back to her hotel. Upon discovering her identity they apologized. There was no raid.

Society note: Capt. Lindbergh was present at the English Derby. Several among the spectators went to see the horses run.

HOW FLY THE BRAVE?

As the lone horseman adventure brought an ecstatic world to its feet in acclaim of Lindbergh, so married men everywhere will experience a thrill over what Charles A. Levine has done.

Charles wanted to go with Chamberlin, and without saying a word to his wife he stepped into the plane and went. He is now somewhere east of Nova Scotia. For years he has wanted to fly across the Atlantic, but like all married men he was held back by his wife. He once bought a plane with which to make the flight, but his wife wouldn't let him. Then he tried to get aboard the big plane with which Rene Fonck attempted to get away from Roosevelt Field for Paris. The plane turned turtle and killed two men, but Levine was not in it. He was at home with his wife. They went together to see Chamberlin off. As the plane started, Levine stepped into the cockpit. Before his wife realized what he was doing he was in the air on his way to Europe. He had bolted. She swooned.

Of course, if he makes it his wife will be more proud of him than if he had not bolted. All married men, perhaps, know this, but not every married man is a Charles A. Levine.

As we junior patriots used to sing at our school closing exercises: "Columbia, the gem of the ocean."

MR. COOLIDGE IN THE BLACK HILLS.

In selecting the Black Hills of South Dakota as the scene of his summer vacation Mr. Coolidge is so obviously playing politics that the nation must already be in something of a droll humor about it.

Is Mr. Coolidge going to try for a third term? We have our answer in this striking bit of strategy. South Dakota presents an attractive availability from the viewpoint of the man who finds the wheat belt disaffected and an extensive bloc of Republican states looking sympathetically upon the candidacy of Frank O. Lowden. It is situated about where it ought to be situated. With the disaffected farmers of Minnesota and Wisconsin upon the east, the rebellious agrarians of Iowa and Nebraska upon the south, the wild-eyed bankrupts of Montana upon the west, and the war-whooping Dakotans themselves immediately about him, the President will find himself at the South Dakota State Game Lodge just about where Daniel found himself in his celebrated adventure with the lions.

A few weeks of trout fishing in that pastoral retreat, almost exactly in the heart of the enemy's country, will serve Mr. Coolidge upon two major scores. First, he will find out what the chance of conciliating the wheat belt is; second, he will ascertain beyond all possible doubt if there is anyone else. There can be no question as to the shrewdness of his political move. He has not merely flattered the South Dakotans, who are naturally much happier in his leadership since they are to have the summer White House in the Black Hills; he has also just about roped and tied that incorrigible political maverick, North Dakota. She can no more remain insensible to the compliment of having Mr. Coolidge give up the Good Lands for the Bad Lands than Vermont herself could be if all the farm leaders decided to spend their summer vacations in the region of Mr. Coolidge's birthplace.

What we are therefore witnessing is a major political operation by one of whom it has been said that he has been touched by political genius. There is no gum-shoeing about it. The thing is open and above board. The people in the wheat belt have said in as many ways as they can devise that they do not like Mr. Coolidge and the way he runs the country. His answer is: "Very well, I will come out and spend my summer vacation with you." That is fair enough. It will give the wheat growers an opportunity to find out whether or not they believe Mr. Coolidge and his party have anything to do with their ills. Not everybody believes it. As eminent an economic authority as the New Republic scouts the belief that it would help the farmers to lower the tariff. The farmers have not indicated at the polls that they believe it.

It is one thing to bombard Mr. Coolidge and his party at long range, and another thing to fraternize with him and blame him for the farmers' ills. There is a widespread belief that the wheat farmers, so far as their grievance against politics is concerned, are bluffing. It has seemed to most observers that if they believed that politics can do anything for them they would have tried to prove it by voting for Mr. La Follette. At any rate, if the wheat farmers are bluffing, Mr. Coolidge has called their bluff. He has resisted the charms and blandishments of every other region to camp in the Black Hills.

That ought to tell the story. We ought to know in a short while if Mr. Coolidge can be elected again, and we ought also to know if the farmers of the wheat belt have been talking through their straw hats. We suspect they have.

When he tendered his resignation to Secretary Kellogg, the man who had criticised the State Department found his name was Dennis.

WHAT IS MONUMENTAL?

What is monumental? There has been an age-long protest against monuments to conquerors. At the Louisiana Purchase Exposition monuments were erected to those who had promoted the arts and industries—Watts, Rawlinson, Goodyear, Howe, McCormick, Morse, Bell, etc.

Most of these were unknown to the throngs, and probably the monument to Kit Carson had the most admirers. Nevertheless, the French want you to see their monument to Pasteur as well as the famous tomb of Napoleon, and now they have carried their idea to the superlative. They are going to have a monument to Madame Harel, who invented Camembert cheese.

If you have ever eaten any, you can say the rest as well as we can.

It appears that whoever said, "Every American has a chance to be President" should have added, "once or twice."

MORE HELP FOR AN EXTRA SESSION.

Despite the apparent disapproval of Mr. Hoover, despite the indifference of President Coolidge, despite the active opposition of the New York Times and other influential Eastern newspapers, the proposal of an extra session of Congress to provide immediate help for the stricken people of the lower Mississippi Valley continues to gain recruits daily.

The latest to declare for this essential measure is the New Republic, which in its current issue has the following:

> A special session of Congress is not necessary for the purpose of permanent flood relief; but it appears to be badly needed in order to give the flood victims the temporary help they so urgently require. The Red Cross fund of $15,000,000 is altogether inadequate for this purpose. The Government is seeking to lend money through the land banks, but this aid also is limited in amount, and restricted to a few specified purposes. While these are important, they are far from telling the whole story.

The New Republic, in contrast to Mr. Hoover and the other opponents of national relief, appears to realize that the Mississippi is a matter for national concern when it is a liability quite as much as when it is an asset. If anyone desires to bridge the river, or do anything else involving it that may redound to private or State interest, the permission of the Federal Government must be secured. The attempt of the Government to pass the buck to the states, when the river becomes a nuisance, is hence illogical and indefensible. Besides, there is the great consideration of humanity and restoration of prosperous activities.

Florida has one Sheriff who thinks mobs should not Tampa with the law.

The MIRROR of PUBLIC OPINION

THE GREAT SMOKY PARK.

From American Forests and Forest Life.

THE great smoky mountains climax in a hundred thousand acres of lofty parallel ridges rising 4500 feet above intervening valleys, and overlaid with a rich and varied forest which has never echoed to the ax. This original forest, whose like once covered our East to the prairies, is for its own sake priceless. The $5,000,000 now in sight for the Great Smoky National Park, if confined to the purchase of this area, would secure a park of real majesty and size.

But the purchase area provided by Congress includes 705,000 acres. The additional hundreds of thousands of acres consist of hills, low mountains and broad flats, lumbered and burnt over for the most part, and in varying stages of second growth. They are no better for inclusion in a National Park than the many millions of acres to be found elsewhere in the Appalachians. They, of course, would cost far less per acre and would yield the coveted title, "National Park," more quickly. It appeals to many But to be national in any sense, Great Smoky must consist of the best that her mountains possess, no matter what it costs nor how little in addition its park boundaries may enclose.

Under the Temple act, the first 150,000 acres will admit the park to the system and secure the title. Let first purchases, therefore, include all the loftiest ridges and all the original forest. Under no other conditions will Great Smoky be more than a pretense.

The parties to this park-making are three: The people, the states of North Carolina and Tennessee, and the National Government. North Carolina is giving $3,000,000; Tennessee $1,750,000. The greatest of these is the people. For 55 years the National Parks System has been building, in accord with the popular ideal. Its standard are founded in popular aspiration. No excuse will avail for contracting for inadequate cheap lands while standard national park lands remain unsecured. Devoting money in hand to outskirts while trusting luck to find enough more somewhere to add land that alone will make it really a National Park, will not appeal to the expectant nation.

A MOTOR MIRACLE.

From the Kansas City Star.

THE first thought in connection with the New York-Paris flight naturally goes to the skill and courage of the man who made it. But the second thought may well go to the mechanical perfection of the motor that drove the plane.

Think of what was involved in an air-cooled engine that turned over with tremendous velocity for thirty-three and a half hours, covering 3,647 miles, without a miss, and without heating. It is the same motor that was given official recognition last winter for its performance in driving planes nearly two million miles, with only three forced landings from engine trouble.

A mechanism with such a record stands as a monument to the resourcefulness and competency of American engineering.

EXPLAINING THE FILIBUSTER.

RAYMOND LONERGAN, IN Labor.

THE daily press is being flooded with propaganda stories concerning the spectacular filibuster which marked the closing days of the Sixty-ninth Congress.

"Old Guard" Senators are desperately endeavoring to avoid public censure and to shift responsibility to the shoulders of the progressives.

It is a good time to clarify the situation by an understandable statement of the facts.

The filibuster was engineered by Reed of Pennsylvania, Moses of New Hampshire and Wadsworth of New York. The object was to defeat a resolution confirming the authority of the special committee of the Senate, headed by Reed of Missouri, to investigate political corruption, not only in Pennsylvania and Illinois, but in other states.

In order to "hamstring" this investigation, the "Old Guard" was willing to sacrifice all pending legislation. However, the administration hoped that at the last minute the progressives would weaken and, in order to save the second deficiency bill, the public building bill and other legislation, would sacrifice the "slush fund" resolution.

The scheme might have worked had it not been for the courageous conduct of Senator David I. Walsh.

He refused to surrender to the conspirators and in a slashing speech fixed responsibility for the extraordinary proceedings.

The net result was that the "slush fund" resolution was beaten, but that the other legislation also failed.

President Coolidge could have saved the situation had he seen fit to do so. This is a point which the newspaper writers are deliberately ignoring, but which Walsh made perfectly clear.

All the President had to do was to call an extra session of the Seventieth Congress to convene as soon as the Sixty-ninth Congress expired by constitutional limitation at noon on March 4.

Had the President done that, the second deficiency bill and all the other legislation which had been sacrificed by the filibuster might have been rushed through both houses of the new Congress.

The President did not call an extra session because he did not "want Congress on his hands."

FOLLOWING THE POETS.

To one who reads the poets, it would seem the wiser choice
To love the girl and leave her, and thus give the soul a voice;
No matter who the poet is, in all the verse
I've read
The perfect love the poet sings was either lost or dead;
It seems the lady either died, or else she got the air,
And hence the poet hymned a dream when singing of the fair;
Perhaps the poets do not wed the lovely maids they woo
But speaking by and large, my boy, they generally do.

The poet's fervent fancy on a dream, perhaps, may thrive,
But close investigation will disclose the dream's alive;
Though dreams may serve to vision the ideal of the heart,
It takes a concrete lady fair to give the dream a start;
Oh, never think they wooed in vain some maid with heart of ice!
Although they may have done so once, they did not do so twice;
It may be that to woo in vain is aye the poets' wont,
But speaking by and large, my boy, they generally don't.

Getting Rid of an Inferiority Complex.

Do you invariably forget your umbrella? Meditating upon this weakness, we decided that it must be due to a communal possession of the available umbrellas in prehistoric times. Meditating still further, we concluded it is due to an inferiority complex. Our umbrella undoubtedly belongs to us. Yet we leave it in the most unlikely places, and that not because, as the psychoanalysts claim, we care to see those people a second time. Neither can we speak to the waiter in English, let alone in 10 days, and there you are! French. Although we own a number of scrap books, we do not say a word all evening, and it's not because we are too busy in the kitchen. Some other fellow married the girl of our choice. We're glad now he did. There must be a connection between our timidity and our forgetfulness of an umbrella. Our inferiority complex prevents us from sensing and asserting our ownership. To cure this feeling of inferiority, we intend never to forget our umbrella. We shall begin with the easiest exercise. We shall square our jaw and grasp our umbrella firmly. After a year of this, we should have the same umbrella, if nothing else.

Charges Anglo-Japanese Plot.

"On entering Nanking I immediately established a military commission of investigation of the regrettable episode. It revealed how methodically our Northern enemies, in a subtle intrigue with a number of civilian Englishmen and Japanese, had prepared a case against us, directing their fiendish plan to render us odious especially in the eyes of the Americans. They hoped that should the Americans, the only sympathizers with our cause, be made to believe that the Nationalists were a band of ruffians, the Government of the United States of America would join hands with England and Japan to disrupt our aims and aspirations.

"I have evidence proving my assertions which I will produce when the foreign governments are prepared to appoint a commission to investigate the truth about the regrettable Nanking affair. But should they decide arrogantly to ignore our request to appoint a commission we will, in the future, make revelations that will astound the honest people of America, England and Japan."

TO DISCUSS PROPOSED PARK

Property Owners in Neighborhood To Meet Tuesday.

A meeting of property owners in the neighborhood to hear a discussion of the proposed park there, has been called by the Gratiot-Lindenwood Improvement Association for 8 p. m. Tuesday, at the Longfellow School, Ivanhoe and Smiley avenues.

The association, which favors establishment of the park in the face of objection by many property owners who would be taxed for it, announced that speakers would be G. William Senn, chief condemnation attorney for the city; Harland Bartholomew, engineer of the City Plan Commission; Reyburn W. Hoffman, city traffic engineer; Alfred H. Wyman, executive secretary of the Parks and Playgrounds Association, and Ben Weidle, president of the Board of Education.

Behind the Scenes in Washington

created may be accomplished or decisively defeated, but somehow or other it manages to endure."

Social Climbers.

Washington is seen by the author as a city of climbers—political climbers and social climbers.

"There is none on the continent like it for climbing, and there is none to compare to it for opportunities to climb. There are sets upon sets, circles within circles, and planes above planes, to climb from one set to another is the dream of the Washingtonian. All of them do not climb, but all of them try to; and there is no psychological difference between those who do climb and those who fail. Some of them may not graduate from the euchre parties of the department-clerk set, yet all of them abide in the hope of some day receiving an invitation to a congressional ball, or a senatorial dinner, or even to a secretary's at-home."

Scheming for Invitations.

There is no end of scheming to get invitations to functions at the White House—even to the big general receptions where 2000 persons or more file by and shake the President's hand. Here is the author's close-up of one of these affairs:

"It is a bit of an eflection on American manners that two naval aids are compelled to stand at the East room entrance to force the crowd, jamming forward, to wait for the opportunity to greet the President and his wife. These aids spend three painful hours pleading with the people not to shove. The police, forcing the crowd away from the path of the circus elephant, have no more difficult job than these young officers in preventing the well-dressed guests of the White House from stampeding."

Roof for 10,000 Bachelors.

Essary holds out a glamorous prospect to any socially inclined young bachelor who may want to come to Washington.

"Nowhere else in the world, perhaps," he writes, "is there so great a shortage of eligible bachelors, in proportion to the total population, as in Washington, and nowhere else is the shortage felt so keenly. Ten thousand more than the normal supply could be used by Washington society without overstocking the market. By the time this number was divided and sub-divided among the various sets, the lot would be swallowed up and calls sent out for more.

"There are numberless marriageable daughters in town. This is a sort of clearing house for debutantes. They are brought here by ambitious mothers by the score and launched hopefully upon the social sea. Mothers who cannot come along have fallen into the habit of sending their daughters to the seminaries and finishing schools scattered from end to end of the town. Alluring advertisements of the social advantages offered by these schools have crowded the institutions for years, in spite of the fact that the 'advantages' consist primarily of one informal reception at the White House given each year to the senior classes."

A notable feature of the book is a chapter on the United States Supreme Court, "Without doubt the most august body of jurists in the world, and, in many respects, the most powerful group of men functioning officially under this or any other Government." The author acknowledges indebtedness to Chief Justice Taft for "friendly criticism" of this chapter.

"There are occasions," he writes, "when the air of the Supreme Court chamber is electrified with suppressed excitement; when those within the hearing of the bench hang almost breathlessly upon every sentence, every word, every syllable that is uttered by the spokesman of the court; when men lean forward tense and eager to catch the meaning of a given declaration; when smiles of triumph and infinite relief pass over the countenances of one group of litigants, while defeat and despair are read in the faces of an opposing group; when correspondents as a jurist concludes, dash madly from the room to flash to the four ends of the country the fateful news contained in a court opinion.

"These scenes, almost melodramatic in their staging, are enacted over and over on decision days, on those Monday afternoons when ultimate judgment is pronounced by a tribunal whose word is final under our system of jurisprudence.

Outbursts by Justices.

"Once in a while the court itself contributes directly to the dramatic effect of such a scene. Observers will long remember a dissenting opinion delivered by the late Associate Justice Harlan in an anti-trust case, when that old Roman turned savagely upon his colleagues, and, with his voice pitched high, his sunken eyes flashing fire, and his long lean arm thrust forward, declared that to his sorrow he had lived to see the court reverse itself twice upon the same issue.

"Other observers recall vividly opinions delivered by the late Chief Justice White, without manuscript, and without reference to notes, when he half rose from his seat as he drove home with impetuous gesture the high points of an all-important decision.

"These instances are rare, however, conscious as these jurists are of the unchallenged force of their decrees, they proceed as a rule in even tones in their declarations and without evident emotion to the discharge of the sacred trust reposed in them."

Plugging the Leaks.

The author tells interestingly of the care taken to prevent "leaks" of advance information on court decisions. Outside the members of the court, only their confidential secretaries and one foreman in the Government printing office are in the secret.

"After an opinion has been dictated, typed and corrected, it usually is boiled down and revised. Another copy is made, further revised, and then dispatched to the printer. In order that the compositor who sets the type of an opinion may not know the result of the court's deliberation, the foreman, who is known to be absolutely trustworthy, sets the last few lines himself, locks them in a safe, and, when the other part is completed, adds his own contribution and forwards the whole document to the Chief Justice, under lock and key.

"Only once within a modern times has the confidence of the Supreme Court been abused, so far as known. The secretary of one of the Associate Justices, it was found, conspired with two associates to make improper use of information in his possession regarding a court opinion. The three men were indicted in the District of Columbia. In this case the 'leak' was relatively unimportant, those taking advantage of it having made only a small amount of money in the speculative markets."

Presidential Tours.

Having himself traveled more than 200,000 miles with Presidents, from Roosevelt to Coolidge, Essary writes with authority of numerous incidents that have marked presidential "swings about the circle."

Essary writes feelingly of the speed mania, which almost invariably seizes reception committees charged with getting a President from place to place.

"The perils in this sort of thing," he recalls, "were brought close home to President Wilson while making his ill-fated League of Nations tour in 1919. One of the motor cars bearing members of his party and speeding furiously to keep up with the procession was wrecked on the Columbia highway in Oregon, killing Ben Allen, correspondent of the Cleveland Plain Dealer, killing the driver and seriously injuring several others in the car. After that Mr. Wilson gave a peremptory order that there should be no more fast driving on that trip.

"President Taft," he continues, "was a veritable fiend for speed. No automobile or train or other conveyance could ever go too fast for him. And President Harding was a good deal like his predecessor in that respect."

It is due more to the grace of Providence than to the good sense of reception committees, Essary says, that our peripatetic Presidents have escaped death or serious injury on their official travels.

Evolution of the "Spokesman."

The evolution of the "press conference" at the White House is narrated from the author's personal experience. Roosevelt was the first president to take full advantage of the opportunity afforded by his position "to propagandize the country in behalf of his policies." But Roosevelt seldom saw the whole group of Washington correspondents. It was his practice to put out feelers through a few newspaper men, whom he specially liked. As a result, the author says, there were more newspaper scoops of White House origin, during the Roosevelt period than ever before or since.

President Taft established the system of fixed White House conferences with all the accredited correspondents. These were held once a week. President Wilson went his predecessor one better by seeing the reporters twice a week. He discontinued the meetings during the war and never revived them.

President Harding restored the conferences, but after a slip on his part during the disarmament conference ruled that all questions must be submitted in writing. The same system has been continued by President Coolidge.

"The system of submitting written instead of oral questions to the Executives," says Essary, "has robbed the press interviews of much of the interest and profit of earlier experience."

Other chapters of the book deal with Washington newspaper men and methods of the past, with some of the notable news beats scored at the capitol, with the visit of President Wilson to Europe, with diplomats and their ways, with the place of Congress in the national life, and with famous dinners of the Gridiron Club of Washington correspondents.

It is a book that will repay reading by any one interested in getting a glimpse behind the scenes at the capitol.

SWINDLERS GETS $1200 SAVINGS OF MAN, 60

Employ Old Trick to Defraud Charles Krueger, a Brick Maker.

Swindlers with a much-used trick defrauded Charles Krueger, a brick maker of 911 Market street, of $1200 Friday.

One of them told Krueger a mutual friend had sent him, and employed Krueger to "help me and the other man pay back his creditors with $65,000 he gave me before he died." It was necessary, Krueger, who is 60 years old, was told, for him to prove his honesty by putting up some of his own money, so he drew $1200 of his savings from a bank.

The swindlers took him to the water tower in North Grand boulevard and there he put his money in a suitcase they provided, after which they pretended to do likewise. They told him to return to his room with the suitcase and wait, while they got the rest of the $65,000 from Union Station where they said it had been left.

When Krueger got tired waiting for their return he opened the suitcase and found it contained only old papers.

FEWER PUBLIC PLAYGROUNDS OPERATED BY THE CITY

Private Recreational Facilities in St. Louis Increased, However, Last Year.

Privately supported recreational facilities in St. Louis grew in number and attendance last year while the public playgrounds declined, according to the annual report of the Department of Neighborhood Service and Recreation of the St. Louis Community Council made public yesterday.

Public schools have benefited from an increase in appropriation for summer school playgrounds and a removal of restrictions on hours they may remain open, but progress generally in this direction has been slow, says the report, prepared by a committee headed by Mrs. Ira L. Bretzfelder.

A decrease of five playgrounds operated all the year around by the Park Department and three in the winter months was noted.

New private facilities enumerated included: The Neighborhood House, Carondelet Y. M. C. A., Downtown Y. M. C. A., Y. M. H. A.—Y. W. H. A. and acquisition of additional facilities by the Caroline Mission and Holy Cross Corporation.

SONS IDENTIFY WOMAN KILLED BY STREET CAR

Mrs. Mary V. Oman Was Struck at Union Boulevard and Lexington Avenue.

A woman killed by a street car at Union boulevard and Lexington avenue Friday night was identified yesterday by Henry and Edward Vicker of 4578 St. Louis avenue, as their mother, Mrs. Mary Vicker Oman, 68 years old.

Mrs. Oman, who lived with her sons, failed to come home Friday night and they found her body yesterday in the City Hospital morgue.

Witnesses to the accident in which she was killed told policemen she alighted from a northbound Union car and walked around its rear directly in the path of a southbound car. The motorman and conductor, William Scharloton and William Blackwell, are under bond for the inquest tomorrow.

FUNERAL SERVICES OF EARL KILPATRICK

Body of Red Cross Director, Killed in Airplane, Is Taken to Oregon.

The funeral of Earl Kilpatrick, Red Cross rehabilitation director, killed in an airplane accident last Monday near Baton Rouge, La., took place yesterday morning at the Church of the Holy Communion. A color guard from Jefferson Barracks preceded the casket from the vestry to the chancel. There was music by a vested choir, and an address by the Rev. Edward S. White, rector.

Following the service, the body was sent to Kilpatrick's old home in Portland, Ore. Burial will be in Portland after services in the music hall of the University of Oregon, of which Kilpatrick was dean for eight years.

Accompanying the body to Portland are the widow, Mrs. Helen Kenny Kilpatrick, her four children and her brother, J. R. Kenny. The Kilpatricks are giving up their home at 204 Euclid avenue, Webster Groves, to live again in Portland.

Pallbearers were Howard G. Cook, president of the St. Louis Kiwanis Club, and five past presidents, Lee W. Grant, Frank B. Coleman, M. E. Holderness, Frank W. Swann and John Hill. Kilpatrick was a member of the International Committee of the Kiwanis Club.

The Red Cross was represented officially by William M. Baxter Jr., assistant to the vice chairman, and Mrs. Frank V. Hammar, a member of the Central Committee.

QUARANTINED!!

Millions of cockroaches already exterminated! Beware!

THERE'S PANIC IN BUGVILLE! Cockroaches are dying by the thousands!

Use Peterman's Roach Food in your house. Exterminate every roach.

Don't fight roaches with a spray. You must have a powder. Peterman's is the right powder.

It entices roaches from their hiding places. They carry it back on their legs and bodies to their nests behind baseboards, under floors where no spray could possibly reach.

Every adult roach, the young, every egg in the entire colony is exterminated. No odor. Nothing is left but a little dry dust. Use Peterman's Roach Food now. Keep them out. Don't let them get a start.

Here is the right insecticide for each insect:

PETERMAN'S ROACH FOOD exterminates that cockroach army.

PETERMAN'S ANT FOOD exterminates ants.

FLYOSAN kills flies and mosquitoes.

PETERMAN'S DISCOVERY exterminates bedbugs.

PETERMAN'S MOTH FOOD protects against moths.

You must have a specific insecticide for each insect. No single insecticide will exterminate them all. We have had nearly 50 years' experience. We know that is true.

Peterman's has the right insecticide for each insect

RED CROSS SURVEY FINDS 4 MISSOURI COUNTIES IN NEED

Sanitary Condition Following Mississippi River Flood Reported Bad in Southeast Region.

STATE AID ASKED FOR DAMAGED AREA

Ten Year Program of Improvement Advocated for Mississippi, New Madrid, Dunklin and Pemiscot.

Sanitary conditions, following the Mississippi Valley flood in four counties of Southeast Missouri, are pictured as bad by two health specialists who recently made a survey there, but they assert the situation in this respect is not much different than it was before the flood.

They are Dr. George Parrish, Health Commissioner of Los Angeles, and A. L. Peterson, sanitary engineer and first assistant to Dr. Parrish. The United States Public Health Service drafted them for the survey. Dr. Parrish, a former St. Louisan and graduate of Washington University, is a brother-in-law of George E. Dieckman, president of the St. Louis Zoological Society.

The counties they surveyed in this State were Mississippi, New Madrid and Dunklin, which were hard hit by the flood, and Pemiscot, which escaped the worst ravage.

"For some years," Dr. Parrish and Peterson said in a joint interview, "those four counties have not progressed as rapidly as some others, because of poor crops or poor crop prices. It has taken disaster to bring the people to realization of how badly off they were.

Year's Red Cross Aid Asked.

"We feel a five to 10 year program of improvement, such as levees and spillways, by the Government, is needed, and at least a year's aid by the Red Cross or other agencies until the people can harvest a crop. Frequent rains since the flood have kept these Missourians from putting back more than 20 per cent of their crops.

"Sanitary conditions are bad, but not necessarily much worse than before. The trouble lies largely in the water and milk supplies and sewage. They do not properly protect their water supply against disease. They have a false sense of security because the water flows through sandy soil; that doesn't purify but only clarifies the water.

"It has been an economic necessity to dump sewage into open ditches, which flow into the streams, and these ditches are left without even fence or placard. We found people fishing and swimming in the streams, close to the mouths of the ditches.

"The larger dairies, with a little instruction, would be in good shape, but there are many small dairies with a few cows each, which have no proper health supervision. It is not demanded that the cows be tuberculin tested or that the milk be pasteurized. One of these counties had 300 typhoid cases reported last year and maybe as many more were not reported. Typhoid seems to be regarded as inevitable. One man told us he guessed it would get anybody who lived in the region long enough, for half a dozen members of his family had died of it.

Declare State Aid Is Needed.

"The Red Cross has administered anti-typhus vaccine to 20,000 persons in these four counties, or about 20 per cent of the population. There has been little malaria, as mosquitoes have not been bad.

"For relief purposes the Red Cross and Public Health Service have planned to spend only 30 days in this section of the flood area, and the period is about ended. They have been providing nurses, vaccine and food for man and beast, but they are not going into sanitary needs and protracted attention is required. State aid, in our opinion, should be given. Officers of the State Health Commission have been active in this district."

Dr. Parrish and Peterson visited relief centers at Memphis and New Orleans and toured the flood area of Louisiana. They inspected a camp of 12,000 refugees at New Iberia, La., and of 16,000 persons at Lafayette, La. They rode in a Southern Pacific train for 42 miles along the Atchafalya River, near Morgan City, La., and the whole area as far as they could see was covered with water, including the track. At Morgan City they found wooden sidewalks erected four feet over submerged walks and rowboats were going right into stores for supplies. The town of 6500 population has been amusing itself at night with boat races.

GERMANY DECORATES AMERICA AFTER 19-MONTH SEARCH

Bishop Nuelson Given Highest Honor of Republic For Relief Work in Europe.

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, June 4.—Dr. John L. Nuelson, bishop of the American Methodist Episcopal Church in charge of the central European area, has had the honorary cross of the German Red Cross trailing behind him for 19 months without knowing it. Dr. Neulsen was finally located at Zurich, Switzerland, and the German Consul-General there was instructed to bestow it on him formally.

Bishop Nuelson has been an outstanding figure in relieving distress in Central Europe and Russia since the war. The German Government decided to bestow on him the "honorary cross of the first class with ribbon." It is the highest decor- Bishop Nuelsen was then in the diploma granting the decoration was issued in November, 1925. Bishop Neuisen was then in the United States. The German embassy at Washington tried to locate him in New York and Cincinnati, but the bishop moved too fast and had always just left when the decoration reached the German Consuls.

PARIS CAFES GETTING DRIER

PARIS, June 4.—Paris is gradually getting drier. Economy and not morality is reforming the wets. The low-priced table d'hote or "prix fixe" lunch or dinner has had the customary quarter of a bottle of wine eliminated from the menu.

The organization of restaurateurs and wine merchants interested in the moderate cost meal announced its members were losing too much money on wine. They had allowed 10 per cent of the total price to cover the drink but wine has nearly doubled since last year and now the drys can drink water with a clear conscience since they won't be wasting wine for which they have paid. The higher-priced restaurants long ago discontinued the serving of wine as a part of meals.

Longevity in Germany Increases.

BERLIN, June 4.—By 1965 Germany will have double the number of old men and women above 65 years of age it has today, according to the German Census Bureau. Today there are about 3,500,000 persons in Germany whose age is above 65. The census "dopesters" have it that this number will reach almost 7,000,000 by 1965, and 8,250,000 by 1975.

New Name for Health Group.

A petition that the corporate name of the St. Louis Society for the Relief and Prevention of Tuberculosis be changed to the Tuberculosis and Health Society of St. Louis, a title thought more descriptive of the organization's present field of endeavor, has been obtained and the charter accordingly amended as a result of a hearing before Circuit Judge Hart

BIDS ARE ASKED FOR GRAND CANYON BRIDG

Direct Route to Bryce Canyon Region for Missourians Will Be Provided.

A direct automobile route to the North Rim of the Grand Canyon and to the scenic Bryce and Zion canyons region of Utah should be opened to Missourians within another year as a result of the decision of the State of Arizona to share the cost of building a bridge across the Grand Canyon at Lee's Ferry.

This bridge, which is to span that part of the Grand Canyon known as Marble Canyon and to be erected near the junction of the Colorado and Little Colorado rivers, will stand five miles below the beginning of the main canyon.

It is to be 476 feet above the mean low water level of the Colorado River, so there will be superb views up and down the canyon from its deck.

At present, Missourians can motor to the North Rim of the Grand Canyon and Bryce and Zion canyons only over circuitous routes.

One route is via Denver to Salt Lake City, Utah, then south. Another is via Kansas City and the Santa Fe Trail through Flagstaff to Needles, Cal., then north on the Arrowhead trail into Utah and Southeast to Bryce and Zion canyons. Both routes must be retraced.

There is a horse and foot bridge across the Grand Canyon below Tovar, but this, of course, does motorists no good. Nor is the ferry at Lee's Ferry of practical use to motorists.

Completion of the bridge will permit surfacing of a main highway from Salt Lake City to Prescott and Phoenix, Ariz., thence south to Nogales, on the Mexican border. It will add another scenic loop motoring route that in time is bound to become world famous.

He Won the 500-Mile Auto Race

George Souders, winner of the 500-mile Indianapolis automobile race. Souders, a novice on the Indianapolis track, averaged 97.54 miles per hour, 4 miles per hour less than the record for the distance. The photograph shows him just after the race with his face still a black mask from the mist of oil and dirt that hung over the contestants.

The feature of the race, mechanically, was the failure of the front drive cars to perform as had been expected, and the elimination of the favorites by mechanical troubles due to the high speed over the rough brick track in the first stage of the race.

ALL MISSOURI DIRT ROADS CLOSED BY RAIN

Routes From St. Louis to Poplar Bluff Closed—Labadie Detour Delayed.

Continued rains the past week not only retarded construction and maintenance operations on Missouri roads but again closed virtually every earth road in the State.

While all the ferries in the State except the West Alton ferry on State No. 94 from West Alton, Mo., to Alton, Ill., are operating, rain today and tomorrow will cause them to be shut down again, according to State highway officials.

Main Highways Traveiable.

Concrete roads are travelable, and gravel roads, in the main, likewise are travelable without hazard except in the flooded southeastern section, where chains are necessary equipment. Even then the slippery character of gravel and semi-gravel roads makes traveling difficult to impossible.

All Federal highways out of St. Louis are open to through traffic except No. 61—the St. Louis-Fredericktown-Sikeston, Arkansas line route, via Hayti—which was reported to be virtually impassable at the 200-yard detour just south of New Madrid. Late last night, however, it was said at the highway office at Sikeston that this detour should be passable today.

St. Louis-Poplar Bluff Routes Closed.

The highway office at Sikeston also reported over long-distance that U. S. 67—the Fredericktown-Poplar Bluff-Corning, Ark., route—was covered by water at Hilliard, five miles north of Poplar Bluff, thus shutting off through travel from St. Louis to Poplar Bluff. U. S. No. 60—the Cairo-Birds Point-Sikeston-Poplar Bluff-Springfield route—also was covered by water at Fisk, 10 miles east of Poplar Bluff, thus shutting off St. Louis travel to Poplar Bluff via Nos. 61 and 60.

It is probable, the Sikeston high-

Week-End Tour to New State Park

Hunters, Fishermen, Hikers and Campers Will Find It Pleasant Place for Stay Amid Ozark Hills.

By RICHARD G. BAUMHOFF

Tucked away in the Ozark hills is a little, new State reservation which embodies in concentrated form a goodly share of the peaceful charm of the Missouri hill country.

It is Montauk Park, in the southwestern corner of Dent County, at the very head of the Current River, 157 miles southwest of St. Louis by road. While its biggest attraction is to fishermen, it appeals also to hunters and hikers, and its grounds are fine for campers who seek no more than a place to loaf.

Skidamaree, gypsy car of the Post-Dispatch, carried the Gypsy Baron there recently, but for once the final few miles of country road were too rutted for this machine and another car was chartered out of Salem.

On the Current River.

This park was bought with three others last New Year's, and cost $29,000 for 633 acres of land and the tiny village of Montauk. It lies irregularly across two wooded ridges and the intervening valley in which the well-named Current River rises.

Although its area lacks but seven acres of being a square mile, it measures just two miles from the eastern boundary to the western and one mile from the northern to the southern. The river, winding, starts near the northwestern corner and runs nearly two miles before it leaves the reservation on the south, then twists back and forms part of the boundary for a mile or so more.

Pretty Springs.

One enters from the north, the county lane leading through the valley, and when the car has gone a quarter of a mile in the park it is only a few feet above a big spring from which water gushes unceasingly at a temperature around 40 degrees. Road and stream run parallel, but the wheelway climbs a little ridge before dropping into Montauk. This elevation is only 80 rods wide, yet it forces the Current to go around a two-mile loop.

Not far west of the spring in the valley is another called the Bluff Spring, which pours a little torrent from a glen. The two branches join just north of the village and form a fishing hole. Below their junction is a low dam, providing an offshoot stream for a millrace, which runs to the State-owned corn meal and flour mill.

The foregoing sketches the principal part of the terrain. The elbows of the preserve stretching to east and west are filled with steep hills and thick timber. The altitude is about 1300 feet above sea level. A quarter of a mile south of Montauk is a tract of virgin woods. Of this a representative of the State Game and Fish Department, which bought the park, said: "It's one of the grandest forests you ever saw. Going into it one wants to remove his hat, just as if going into church. It was sold only a few months before the park was located. The owner, who will cut and saw it, refused $2000 profit for it. It took a hundred years to grow."

Village Belongs to State.

Montauk village, which belongs to the people of Missouri, consists of the mill, a two-story frame hotel on a hillside, a cabin annex to the hostelry, a store and the park keeper's dwelling.

The mill, which is to be leased to a concessionaire with the shop and hotel, is about 20 years old and built of 2x8 boards, laid flat on top of each other.

The millrace flows gently and turns the wheels by weight rather than force. Special stones, some brought from France, grind the grain. A pump carries the cold, pure river water to a gravity tank at the hotel. An electric generator is to be hooked onto the mechanism, too. Thus the stream furnishes power, water and light for the cost of a little lubricating oil.

The county road continues through Montauk, across a ford,

PLAN TO JUNK OLD CARS IN KANSAS CITY

Dealers Form Corporation and Propose to Take 12,000 Autos Off Streets.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., June 4.—Motor car dealers here are working out a new plan to get rid of used automobiles. They have just organized a $50,000 corporation as the United Auto Wrecking Co., and propose through it to increase the number of new motor car sales prospects by 20 per cent and at the same time rid themselves of one of their biggest worries.

The plan is to junk 12,000 cars—a fifth of those running on the streets of Kansas City—and in this way do away with the prospect of taking them in again and again on new cars.

Wreck Returned Seven Times.

One dealer recently discovered that he had taken in the same old wreck seven times on new cars. Apparently the old auto, after being sold by him to a junk man or a dealer in used cars, had been sold again to some new-car prospect and then brought around to the dealer for a trade in.

The Kansas City Motor Car Dealers' Association then decided it was time to act. The new corporation is the result.

Wrecking machinery is to be installed on a leased tract, and the plan is to tear up three or four freight car loads of automobiles a day. Parts will be sold whenever possible and the remainder of the materials will be handled as junk.

The dealers heretofore have been selling old cars to the 41 junk dealers in Kansas City only to see some of the wrecks patched up and brought back on new car deals.

Prospective purchasers of mo-

More people are learning about Knight-engined cars

This year the sale of cars powered by the famous Knight sleeve-valve engine will more than double the sales for any previous year; and this remarkable growth is due to the fact that more people are learning about the Knight sleeve-valve principle and the amazing performance of this type of motor.

Knight engine performance means a quick smooth flow of power that surpasses ordinary six-cylinder performance just as the average six surpasses the four.

The Falcon-Knight six-cylinder sleeve-valve engine with seven-bearing crankshaft, places America's finest type of motor in the lower price range.

The Falcon-Knight chassis throughout is designed and constructed in keeping with the excellence of the motor.

NONN MADE CHEVROLET ZONE SALES MANAGER

C. J. Jackson Succeeds Former City Sales Manager, Who Has Been Promoted.

Otto E. Nonn, formerly city sales manager for the Chevrolet Motor Car Co. in St. Louis, has been appointed zone sales manager of the company, succeeding L. M. Dreves.

C. J. Jackson, Chevrolet city representative for the past year, succeeds Nonn as city sales manager.

Dreves has severed his connection with Chevrolet Motor Car Co. and has gone to Los Angeles, where he will act in an executive capacity for another division of General Motors.

Nonn has been with Chevrolet for five years. Prior to being made city sales manager, he was assistant zone sales manager, and before that served as St. Louis city representative for the company. He began working for Chevrolet as a salesman in the Springfield (Ill.) territory.

Nonn's promotion is in line with a general promotion of Chevrolet Motor Car Co. sales executives all over th ecountry and follows the promotion, announced last Sunday, of a number of major executives of the company, including David E. Ralston, former regional manager here, to assistant sales manager at Detroit; of A. L. Gilpin of the Detroit office, to regional manager here, and of H. J. Klingler, formerly sales manager here, and more recently assistant general sales manager at Detroit, to general sales manager.

fair, 18 feet wide, with a 616 foot main arch, two 84-foot end spans, and a 49-foot trestle at the southern end. One thousand tons of steel and 500 cubic yards of concrete will go into the making of it, 7000 cubic yards of rock will be excavated to make room for it, and when completed it will rise 476 feet above the mean low water level of the Colorado river.

The bridge will cost $285,000, $100,000 of which is carried by Congressional appropriation for the benefit of the Navajo Indians on whose reservation the site is located. The balance has been voted by the Arizona legislature in May. Construction will be under contract, with bids for the whole work to be received June 7.

WEEK END TOUR TO NEW STATE PARK IN DENT COUNTY

which sometimes is too deep for automobiles; past an abandoned shingle mill, whose dump pile is redolent of timber, and into the backwoods. A swing bridge, made of light boards strung on wire, is a sporting path across the stream to a bluff south of the village, from which a trail leads by the shingle mill and into a sugar maple grove that is ideal for camping. The State even keeps a pile of free firewood there. On the opposite bank of the river is an excellent sand beach.

Of interest near the bluff spring is a disused frame farmhouse built before the Civil War, but still in good preservation. Montauk is the second oldest postoffice in Dent County, which was settled early in the development of interior Missouri.

Rugged limestone bluffs, crowned with greenery, are the western and southern backgrounds of the river, now close to the water, now set back of glades.

The effect of the stream's low temperature is to make the whole park compartively cool even in midsummer, and this, it is said, prevents the breeding of mosquitoes. Blankets often are required at night.

Cedars and walnuts are among the trees. In a profusion of herbs and shrubbery, wild blackberry bushes are prominent. Wild flowers abound. Rattlesnakes and copperheads are said to be unknown in this section, but there are some water moccasins, which need trouble no one.

Trout Plentiful.

Rainbow trout are plentiful in good gravel, 103.5; Salem, 133.6; the river, and anglers may find good places to cast above pools. There are some perch and channel catfish. The hotter the weather the nearer the trout approach the springs. Bait is handy, for schools of minnows are visible in the very clear water, and seining for them is allowed. Hunting is not permitted in any State park, but about the only other rule is: "Behave yourself." Camping and fishing are free, but licenses are needed to fish.

The seven-month squirrel season opened June 1. Rabbits are unprotected. Raccoons, possums, skunks, muskrats, red and gray foxes, quail and some wild turkeys can be found by nimrods outside the preserve. There is bird life in great profusion. "Laughing" owls haunt the bluffs and their mocking shrieks at night can terrify a newcomer.

Swimming is something of a problem here. The water is cold, swift and generally too shallow. J. G. Maledy, the obliging and well-informed park keeper and game warden, who lives on the place, would like to have an arrangement for diverting a pool of water, which could stand and warm. The flow of the river past Montauk is more than 40,000,000 gallons a day, through a channel about 30 yards wide.

The State Game and Fish Department, which acquired the park under the direction of Commissioner McCanse, may start a fish hatchery at Montauk.

Log of Trip to the Park.

A log of the drive from St. Louis to the park follows: Leave Post-Dispatch building, mile 00.0; follow Manchester road, U. S. Highway No. 66, which is excellent; end of concrete, 36.6; resume concrete, 57.9; end concrete, 82.4; turn south on Missouri Highway No. 19 at Cuba, 90.5; Steelville, 98.5 end of turn west on Missouri Highway No. 32 (fine gravel), and leave it at 145.4, at Montauk sign, on rough county road to south; reach park, 157.0.

Thirty miles of No. 19 north of Salem is rough and more or less muddy after rain, but Skidamaree traversed it in a soaking rain. It fords Crooked Creek, which occasionally is too high for passage. The county road south of No. 32 is very bad in wet weather and cannot always be traveled by heavy, low-slung cars, but some time it is to be fixed by the State.

A different route back follows: Leave Montauk, 00.0; No. 32, 11.6, and turn west; end of good gravel, 14.2, and follow more or less rough grading; U. S. Highway No. 63 at Licking, Texas County, 22.3, and turn north on No. 63, which is excellent gravel; Rolla, on U. S. No. 66, 47.7; Cuba, 71.7; Post-Dispatch building, 162.2.

No. 66 is so good that Skidamaree's net driving time for the 114 miles from Rolla to St. Louis on a dark night was three hours and a half, although it had taken 40 minutes for the first 11 miles out of Montauk.

CLOSED CAR RECORD CLAIMED FOR HUDSON

Western Union-Timed Run of 1000 Miles at 76.4 M. P. H. on California Track.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

LOS ANGELES, June 4.—A new closed car record for 1000 miles is claimed as a result of a run by a Hudson coach on the Culver City track.

The Hudson was driven by Barney Oldfield and the run was checked and timed by Western Union.

The total elapsed time was certified by Western Union as 13 hours 5 minutes 2 seconds, the average for the 1000 miles working out at 76.4 miles per hour.

The car was certified to be a stock model by Walter M. Murphy, the Los Angeles Hudson-Essex distributer, and the gear ratio was stated to be standard—4 1-12 to 1.

There was no American Automobile Association supervision of the run.

The run was made without stopping, except for fuel and for a tire change necessitated when a splinter from the board track pierced a casing.

way office stated last night, that the high water at Fisk will recede sufficiently by noon today to permit resumption of travel. Barring heavy rain today, the Black River at this point should again recede below flood stage.

U. S. No. 66 traffic out of St. Louis is still being routed via Union to St. Clair. Inclement weather last week held up construction activities and prevented the completion of the slab from the bridge east of St. Clair to the completed highway west of Grays Summit. Thus, the Labadie detour, announced to be opened again next week, will probably not be used until July 1, according to the Webster Groves highway office. This detour will be placed in use when the slab is laid between Grays Summit and the completed highway west of this point.

State No. 25—the Festus-Perryville-Kennett-Arkansas line route, via Jackson—remains the bugaboo of southeast-bound motorists. This highway is impassable the 25 miles between Delta and Jackson, and difficult to impassable on the 5-mile gumbo detour between Delta and Arbor.

The 60-mile section of this highway between Arbor and Kennett is in fair condition except the 1200 feet of roadway immediately east of Holcomb which is still subject to overflow following heavy rains. The water, however, except in case of an extraordinary rain, will not interfere with traffic.

Auburn 8-88 Sedan Shows Remarkable Roadability

Acceleration Is Exceptional and the Motor Virtually Vibrationless—Body Style as Distinctive as Performance Is Good.

An Auburn 8-88 eight-cylinder sport sedan in which the writer recently was taken on a test trip over a variety of roads gave conclusive evidence of the roadability, stamina and power of this automobile.

The Auburn sport sedan used on the trip was powered with the same type engine used in the Auburn stock model, which recently averaged 86 miles per hour in the A. A. A. supervised 75-mile stock car race on the speedway at Atlantic City.

The Auburn is smooth running. Its chassis has perfect balance, and the body weight is distributed so evenly over the spring surface that the roughest of roads are no barrier to comfortable riding.

The Auburn motor is virtually vibrationless. At the highest speeds it has no more vibration than when purring along the boulevard at 15 miles per hour.

Acceleration is remarkable. The get-away on first and second speeds is surprising. Several times during the test trip its ability to accelerate in high from five to 35 miles in the space of a city block was demonstrated.

Gear action is smooth. The shift operates surely and noiselessly and with slight hand pressure.

The weight and wheel base of the Auburn 8-88 undobutedly have a great deal to do with its good performance. The car, standard equipped weighs, 3625 pounds, evenly distributed on a 130-inch wheelbase.

The eight-cylinder motor has a four and one-half inch stroke and a three and one-quarter inch bore. It is capable of developing 80 horsepower and more.

In addition to its power, roadability and general good performance, the Auburn 8-88 sport sedan has a body style of real distinction and beauty, while its interior is finished in very attractive custom fashion.

It is priced at $2095 list.

KENTUCKY TO EXPEND $18,000,000 FOR SLAB

Construction to Begin at Once on No. 60 Between Louisville and Paducah.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

LEXINGTON, Ky., June 4.—A program for extending the Kentucky highway system by expending $18,000,000 for new roads, up to June 30, 1928, has just been completed by the State Highway Commission, according to Chairman W. C. Montgomery.

The $18,000,000 would be expended in 110 counties of the State. Contracts for much of the work to be done during the second year of the biennial period have already been let, in accordance with a recent court ruling authorizing the awarding of contracts in advance of the fiscal year during which the construction is to be done, and the remainder will be let within the near future, Montgomery stated.

Arrangements for the immediate letting of contracts for all unfinished gaps on Federal Highway No. 60, between Louisville and Paducah, were made at a meeting of the commission at Frankfort last week, and by Dec. 1 it is expected that all-year travel between the two cities will be possible.

KENTUCKY TO EXPEND $18,000,000 FOR SLAB

Construction to Begin at Once on No. 60 Between Louisville and Paducah.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

LEXINGTON, Ky., June 4.—A program for extending the Kentucky highway system by expending $18,000,000 for new roads, up to June 30, 1928, has just been completed by the State Highway Commission, according to Chairman W. C. Montgomery.

A car for her, too!

In thousands of average American homes there are now two automobiles—"a car for her, too," so there may be transportation for the family while "he" drives away to work.

And the family car has such an infinite degree of usefulness! Downtown shopping, taking the children to school, afternoon calls, meeting trains—and the many additional trips that must be made to and from the house as a part of every day's routine.

EASY TO START

No other car, regardless of cost, is more admirably suited to a woman's needs than the Most Beautiful Chevrolet.

With striking new bodies by Fisher, and finished in pleasing colors of lustrous, lasting Duco, it provides in abundant measure the comfort, charm and elegance that women admire in a motor car. It is easy to start because of its Delco-Remy electric starting system—famous the world over for its dependability and excellence. It is easy to stop because of powerful, over-size brakes. And it is easy to drive and park because of a modern 3-speed transmission, smooth-acting disc clutch, and a semi-reversible steering gear that provides finger tip steering.

EASY TO OPERATE

And women find in Chevrolet a remarkably comfortable car. Long semi-elliptic springs extend over 88% of the wheelbase—providing exceptional riding ease over any road. The large, deeply cushioned seats are set at the most comfortable angle. Ternstedt window regulators and remote control door handles are further fine car conveniences that women appreciate.

EASY TO STOP

The remarkable economy of Chevrolet ownership is another vital reason for Chevrolet's wide and increasing popularity among women. Extremely low first cost, exceptionally high fuel and oil mileage and the very minimum of upkeep expense—all combine to make Chevrolet a car of outstanding economy.

EASY TO PARK

Visit our showroom and see the Most Beautiful Chevrolet. Note the wide variety and individuality of the body types. Mark their gracefully sweeping lines and carefully executed details. Go for a ride over the roughest roads you know. And then ask us for an explanation of the easy terms on which a Chevrolet may be purchased—terms that include the lowest combination of handling and financing charges available.

NEW DODGE ENGINE IN GRAHAM TRUCKS

Has 4 Cylinders and Heavy Duty Transmission and Single Plate Clutch.

A new four-cylinder engine built by Dodge Brothers, Inc., now replaces the former Dodge engine which has been used in Graham Brothers' trucks for the past six years, according to a factory announcement this week.

The new engine is fitted with a sturdy, heavy-duty transmission and a large single plate clutch, both specially designed for truck service.

"More power, economy, greater speed throughout the range of usual operation, quicker pick-up and smoother, quieter operation at all speeds result from the use of the new motor," says the factory statement.

"A material increase in power has been obtained through the combination of a new design of intake manifold, a section of which is heated by the exhaust gases, and a redesigned combustion chamber. The shortness of the new intake manifold and its "hot-spot" also results in materially quicker acceleration, better gasoline mileage and greater speed.

"The distributer is mounted on top of the new engine, thus eliminating the possibility of trouble from water and dirt which might enter through the radiator or the louvres in the sides of the hood.

"The location of the water pump has been improved by placing it at the rear of the engine. From the pump the water goes directly to the rear end of the cylinder block, which is always the hottest part. From there it flows forward to the radiator, where it is again cooled.

"The long hand brake lever has been fitted with double ratchet and improved release and is exceptionally convenient for quick action by the driver.

ERSKINE WINS BRITISH RELIABILITY TEST RUN

A Studebaker Erskine six won high award and gold medal in the classic London to Land's End reliability run recently held in England, according to the Studebaker Corporation of America.

"The trials," says the factory, "were over a run of 317½ miles and included a wide variety of touring conditions in addition to four difficult hill tests. The Erskine, a stock model custom sedan, performed perfectly throughout the trial.

"At Beggar's Roost Hill, the surface of which was strewn with loose stones, the Erskine made a fast, clean climb without wheel spin or skidding and took the grade with ample power in reserve. Of the 132 cars which tried the hill before the Erskine reached it, 45 failed to get to the top.

Tractor Carries Mail.

Carrying mail by tractor is a new venture on Route No. 6 out of Guthrie Center, Ia., which may help to solve the mud road problem this year.

HIGH GAS MILEAGE GOTTEN FROM FALCON-KNIGHT CARS

While no attempts at record breaking economy drives have yet been made by the Falson Motors Co., builders of the Falcon-Knight six, reports from owners are disclosing averages well around the 20-miles to the gallon mark, says a factory statement.

"The first of these reports to reach the factory came from San Francisco," says the statement. An owner in California made the 600-mile trip from that city to San Diego, through the mountains at an average of 19 miles to the gallon in a new car.

"A second report came from Montana covering a trip through the mountains, over rough roads and through snow, showing an average which tallied almost exactly with that made in California and which was slightly over 19 miles to the gallon of gasoline."

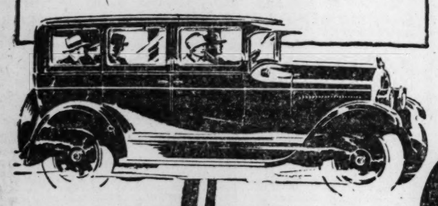
Chrysler "50"
FOUR BODY STYLES
$750 to $830
50 miles and more per hour

In the Chrysler "50" Walter P. Chrysler has upset all ideas of the quality and value that can be purchased in a motor car priced at $750.

Full-sized comfort with ample seating capacity for adult passengers. Speed of 50 and more miles an hour with a smoothness never known at such price. Pick-up of 5 to 25 miles in 8 seconds. Economy of 25 miles to the gallon. Distinctive and enduring beauty which makes you proud to own and drive it.

And with these, through the great Chrysler plan of Standardized Quality, dependability and long life assured by the same finest engineering design and precision manufacturing which have produced the "60", "70" and Imperial "80".

All prices f. o. b. Detroit, subject to current Federal excise tax.



Drive a CHRYSLER To Prove a Chrysler.

4th place

By Public Endorsement of Four Great Cars in Four Great Markets—

Chrysler "70"
EIGHT BODY STYLES
$1495 to $1795
70 miles plus—

Not until you have experienced the tingling thrill of Chrysler "70's" power, its lithe ease in the maze of traffic or on the open road; the relaxing comfort of its smoothness, its handling facility, and the super-safety of its hydraulic four-wheel brakes—

Not until you drive it yourself can you understand why, from its very introduction more than three years ago, every other motor car builder in its price field has striven feverishly but fruitlessly to equal the marvelous performance which has built Chrysler's great reputation.

Only those who have driven the "70" can know just how unapproachable is this superiority. Make arrangements for your drive today—you at the wheel and selecting the route.

All prices f. o. b. Detroit, subject to current Federal excise tax.

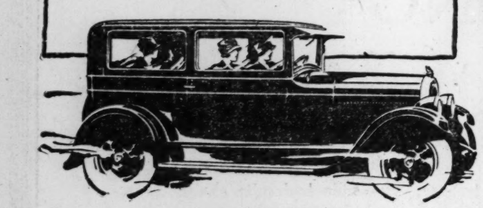
Chrysler "60"
SIX BODY STYLES
$1075 to $1245
60 miles plus—with ease

The Chrysler principle is to give clear evidence of outstanding performance value—and in the Chrysler "60" this evidence is plain and unmistakable.

Driving the "60", you realize that it gives you 60 miles and more an hour with an ease and smoothness obviously exceptional among cars in its price-class.

Try it—get behind the wheel—discover the difference that makes its selection inevitable if you seek utmost value in the lighter six-cylinder field.

All prices f. o. b. Detroit, subject to current Federal excise tax.



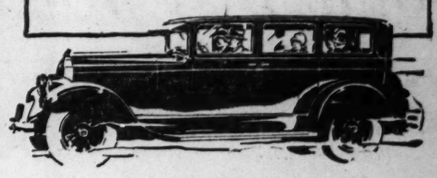
Chrysler Imperial "80"
NINE BODY STYLES
$2495 to $3595
80 miles plus—92 horsepower

In the Chrysler Imperial "80" many of America's most discriminating men are discovering a degree of satisfaction that opens up a new world of luxury motoring.

This is exactly the type of unprecedented performance that Mr. Chrysler and his engineers planned the Imperial "80" should offer.

We urge you to drive the Imperial "80"—to surprise and delight yourself with the unique experience provided by this 92 h.p. car which is literally "as fine as money can build".

All prices f. o. b. Detroit, subject to current Federal excise tax.



Only by driving a Chrysler—"50", "60", "70" or Imperial "80"—can you discover the fundamental reason for the sweeping public preference which has elevated Chrysler over the heads of twenty-three long-established cars—actually into fourth place in dollar volume of car sales.

In numbers that shatter all precedents for the industry, enthusiastic buyers have learned only by actual experience that any Chrysler delivers a dash and vigor of performance without compare in its particular price division.

And to these hundreds of thousands of motorists it is becoming increasingly evident that the Chrysler plan of Standardized Quality assures very definite superiorities in beauty, comfort, dependability, economy, safety, long life as well as sustained brilliance and marked smoothness of performance—all of which qualities are being widely emulated, though nowhere duplicated.

You owe it to yourself to become acquainted with these Chrysler advantages. And the only way to know them is to experience them by demonstration.

Come in. Let us give you a thorough demonstration of the unapproachable advantages which maintain each of the four great Chryslers unique and singular in their four great markets—you to select the route and do the driving.

LIGHTER CAR OUTPUT FOR NEXT 2 MONTHS

Olds 8 Rumor Denied—Reo to Build Complete Line of Speed Wagons.

By a Special Correspondent.

DETROIT, June 4.—Seasonable slackening in production is general in this territory. Following closely on the rather vague Ford announcement that a new car would be produced "in a few weeks," Hudson reported that June production would be reduced about 30 per cent. But Hudson-Essex production soon was stepped up again. Ford production will certainly be cut down some and the factories generally, except Packard, will work on comparatively modest schedules through June and into July.

Generally speaking, there has been a certain amount of "supercharging" in sales effort for the last few months, and most of the companies can well afford to slacken output for a few weeks.

Olds Eight Rumor Denied.

One rumor officially denied by an authority in the Olds Motor Works is that a straight eight will be added to the line. This official says there will "be no Oldsmobile eight on the market for six months, if then."

Oldsmobile's present line is going strong, and this division of General Motors is said to be showing a consistent profit.

New Reo Speed Wagon Line.

Reo's announcement of a complete line of speed wagons is the outstanding news in the commercial vehicle field. The line will be pushed to the limit, Reo officials say. It covers a wide range, from half-ton to three tons, and wheelbases ranging from 114 inches to 175 inches.

Price for 133-inch chassis, with nine-foot stake body and cab mounted, is $1620; for express body and cab, $1580. There is also a new speed wagon junior, with 114-inch wheelbase, priced at $895 for the chassis alone, and at $1085 when equipped with de luxe parcel delivery panel body.

Additional models are to be announced in a few weeks.

Chevrolet Officials Changed.

Following close on the appointment of R. H. Grant to chief sales executive for Chevrolet with his old title of vice president, and his announcement of H. J. Klingler as general sales manager, there are numerous changes in the sales executives of Chevrolet.

There are two new assistant sales managers working with Klingler—M. L. Douglas for the Eastern section of the country, and D. E. Ralston for the Western. Both will have headquarters at Detroit.

Two new zone offices are opened—at Wichita, Kans., where E. A. Nimnicht is in charge, and Charleston, W. Va., with G. I. Smith in charge.

Two new regional sales managers are appointed—A. W. L. Gilpin at St. Louis and J. C. Chick at Flint.

Trucks in Corn Borer Fight.

Federal Motor Truck Co. has sold the Government 64 heavy duty trucks, for use in the war against the corn borer.

They carry a 600-gallon oil tank and pull a trailer with a 1000-gallon tank.

The equipment includes burning carriages with 30 nozzles and 1500 feet of hose. A three-cylinder pump forces the fuel through the line, for burning at 1400 degrees F. A by-pass permits use of the same pump for throwing poison instead of burning oil.

MARYLAND AUTO SPEED LIMIT IS INCREASED

Law Permitting 40 Miles Per Hour Went Into Effect Last Week.

The maximum speed limit for automobiles on Maryland State roads has been raised from 35 to 40 miles an hour, and E. Austin Baughman, motor vehicle commissioner, announces that the law against exceeding this rate will be rigidly enforced. He has issued special instructions to the State police to arrest all violators.

He called attention to the fact that, in the past, it has not been the policy of the State police to arrest violators of the speed law who were proceeding in excess of 25 miles an hour, but under 40. He declared that under the new law this would be changed.

KNIGHT ENGINED CAR RUNS 100 ILES AT 129 M. P. H.

Two new European speed records for 100 miles and 100 kilometers were made in France recently by a Knight sleeve-valve engined car. M. Marchand, piloting a Voisin eight-in-line car of 484 cubic inch piston displacement, bettered the time made by E. A. D. Eldridge of England, who drove a Miller poppet valve eight to an European 100-mile record last December.

Marchand's time for the 100 miles was 46 minutes and 40 seconds, making his average speed slightly less than 129 miles per hour while the 100 kilometers was covered at an average speed of 127.5 miles per hour. The run was made from a standing start on the Montlhery track.

The Voisin demonstrated the ability of a sleeve valve engine to withstand punishment at high speed.

The engine in the Voisin car, while an eight cylinder model, is similar in design and operation to the Knight engines in three makes of sleeve valved engined cars built in this country. These cars are the Willys-Knight, the Stearns-Knight and the Falcon-Knight.

OLDS PRICES CUT AS MUCH AS $115 ON SOME MODELS

Price reductions on all Oldsmobile six models were announced last week by R. L. Samuels, branch manager of the Olds Motor Works. Reductions run as high as $115 on certain models, in addition to the reductions in the prices front and rear bumpers are now standard equipment on all models.

The new prices effective now are two-door sedan, $875; coupe, $875; four-door sedan, $975; de luxe roadster, $895; deluxe touring, $895; sport coupe, $965; and landau, $1075, f. o. b. Lansing. All cars include in their equipment bumpers front and rear, rear vision mirror, cowl lights, dome lights in closed cars, Fisher bodies and V. V. windshields on closed cars, automatic windshield cleaners on all cars, genuine mohair upholstery in closed cars.

FRANKLIN CAR IS 25 YEARS OLD THIS WEEK

First 4-Cylinder Air-Cooled Franklin Car Sold in 1902.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., June 4.—Twenty-five years ago this week the first Franklin automobile was sold, the buyer being S. G. Averell of New York City. This first production of the air-cooled Franklin was also the start of four-cylinder construction, all other cars up to that time having been of the one or two cylinder type.

In the original Franklin the cylinders were set crosswise of the chassis at the front. The motor had horizontal fins and was dependent upon the forward motion of the car for the flow of cooling air across the fins.

Invented by John Wilkinson.

It was the invention of John Wilkinson, a mechanical engineer engaged in the bicycle business, who had worked for four years perfecting what, at that time, was the most highly developed power plant in the automobile industry. Wilkinson's experimental model was started in 1897, making the Franklin one of the oldest automobiles in the industry.

The original model was a roadster, seating two passengers, and its appearance on the streets of Syracuse was heralded as marking a new transportation era.

Other unique features included in the construction of this air-cooled car, were the use of a wood frame which has been steadily adhered to in all Franklin production since that date, full elliptic springs and a great reduction in the amount of unsprung weight, or weight carried below the springs in the chassis.

This new car also used the first valve-in-head construction, and was the first to appear with a throttle control and with a float-feed carburetor.

Present Output 12,000 Yearly.

The present Syracuse factory buildings, which envelop the original plant, cover 31 acres of floor space. The company is capitalized at $13,000,000, and the production capacity of the manufacturing plant is approximately 12,000 cars a year.

The original capitalization when the company was organized to manufacture motor cars was $250,000 and in the first year of production the total output was 13 cars.

STRAIGHT EIGHT CARS MADE CLEAN SWEEP AT SPEEDWAY

This Is Tribute to Durability of Type, Says Hupp Executive.

The clean sweep by eight-cylinder cars in the 500-mile Indianapolis race Memorial day is a remarkable tribute to the efficiency and durability of the eight-cylinder principle of motor car design, in the opinion of Du Bois Young, president of the Hupp Motor Car Corporation. Every car in the race was a straight eight.

Young points to the performance of the winning car, driven bye George Souders, as indicative of the superiority of the eight-cylinder principle, translated into standard passenger car design. Souders averaged 97.54 miles an hour for the 500 miles in comparison with the world record for that distance, made by Peter de Paolo, in the 1925 race in a Duesenberg straight eight, of 101.13 miles an hour. Souders drive the entire 500 miles, reporting perfect performance by his car throughout the race.

Commenting on reports of Hupmobile engineers and other executives who witnessed Souder's victory, Young stressed the fact that "eight-cylinder cars have won every race of major importance throughout America for four years. The eight-cylinder principle is now conclusively established as supreme," he said, "leading drivers will use no other type car.

"Modern engineering thought is rapidly crystallizing into a unity of opinion that the eight-cylinder design is the topmost among all motor car principles. This opinion would seem borne out in the fact that engineers who build for the supreme racing test of all—the race at Indianapolis—build straight eights, just as engineers who seek the finest in every-day use build the same type car."

England Leads in Cycles.

Great Britain leads in the production of motor cycles, one firm turning out more machines than are made by all the American manufacturers. England's export trade in motor cycles last year was worth more than $1,500,000.

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., June 4.—The opening of fishing season for muskellunge and wall-eyed pike, plus the lure of lingering apple and cherry blossoms, brought the advance guard of tourists and vacationists into the West Michigan resort centers during the three-day Decoration day holiday. Sixty-seven thousand miles use from his Hupmobile 8 in 26 months, with a total cost for replacements of $15, was reported by Chester A. Large, 830 Drexel road, Upper Derby, Pa., when he turned it in recently on the same make new car, says a factory statement.

OPEN CARS ARE MOTOR STYLE BAROMETERS, PEERLESS SAYS

"Open cars are now the barometers of motor car style, reflecting as they do the sport tendency in automobiles," says the Peerless Motor Car Corporation.

"Whenever the open cars come out in bright new shades or an unusual design, the closed cars follow the same trend," the factory says.

"Peerless has delivered more phaetons and roadsters in the past 18 months than at any other time since the closed car stampede started several years ago. This is in part due to the younger people who are buying the second car of the family."

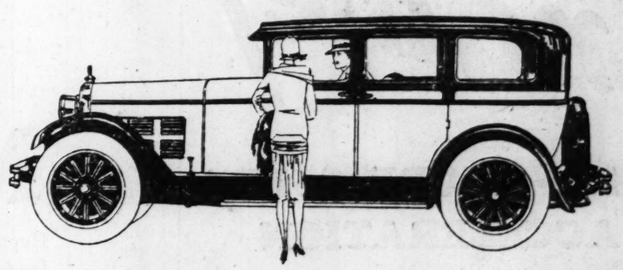
DB SENIOR DEPENDABLE

ANNOUNCING
The Senior Line



A REMARKABLE NEW SIX
by DODGE BROTHERS

A new line of Sixes by Dodge Brothers is presented to the public today.

It has been rumored, and hoped, for years that Dodge Brothers would ultimately produce such a line — more refined and, of course, higher in cost than their present car.

To combine the sturdy worth of Dodge Brothers standard product with those refinements which greater cost permits, could not fail, it was conceded, to produce a motor car of unique distinction and fineness.

The Senior Line is Dodge Brothers answer to this demand—and Dodge Brothers have answered well.

These are remarkable cars. Brilliantly vital and alive—surprisingly quiet—impressively smart. And built, like all Dodge Brothers motor cars, for years of dependable service.

See one and drive it and you will marvel that performance of this quality and character could be provided at a price so low.

$9,000,000 FOR PAVING IN INDIANA THIS YEAR

State to Pay for Big Program Out of Gasoline and Auto Taxes.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., June 4.—With the paving season barely started, Indiana is planning to lay approximately $9,000,000 worth of concrete on her state highways this year.

Although the expenditure has been planned, the State will not go in debt for the construction of its roads, J. D. Williams, director of State Highways said.

The state gasoline tax and automobile licenses will pay for the construction work, he said.

Under the Indiana laws, the State cannot issue bonds for any purpose. But these are unnecessary, Willams stated.

This State has more maintained mileage under the Federal 7 per cent system than any other in the Union, Williams said.

Williams expressed a belief that Indiana would construct more concrete roads this year than any of the states surrounding it. Several of the neighbors, Williams said, are out of funds for construction work, although some are making plans to lay more mileage than Indiana.

The Director said Indiana Commission has a hang-over from last year, of 35 miles, contracted for, but unpaved. So far this year contracts have been let for the construction of 150 miles more, and bids will be asked for the construction of 150 miles additional before the end of the summer.

EAST PEORIA-PEKIN ROAD MUDDY THOUGH CONCRETE

By the Associated Press.

PEORIA, Ill., June 4.—One of the muddiest roads in this State is the concrete highway between East Peoria and Pekin.

Paved by the State several years ago to provide motorists a safe road into Peoria from the south, after the bridge over the Illinois River at Pekin had become unsafe, the highway has since been frequently impassable.

Maintenance workers of the State highway division have been recalled to scoop mud off of it so many times that it has become one of their most frequent places of occupation in the district. Traffic over the road has been one way about half the time.

Last year by actual measurement mud on this road was nine feed deep in one place. Peoria engineers say that in building the road the grading of the hill was made too steep. It is a "one by one" slope, whereas it should be a "one by one and a half" slope. This more level slope would not give water the percipitancy sufficient to carry squantities of earth off with it, that are carried down by the "one by one" slope.

ILLINOIS NO. 3 CLOSED NEAR EAST ST. LOUIS

Gravel Detour Opened Around Stretch Inundated by Broken Main.

Illinois No. 3—the St. Louis-Chester route, via East St. Louis and Free Bridge—is closed to traffic a mile south of East St. Louis. Sixteen inches of water covers the road as a result of a city water main breaking.

A mile detour around the flooded section permits through travel. The detour swings to the right around the east approach of the Free Bridge and parallels the Illinois Central tracks for two blocks, crosses the tracks at this point, and merges with No. 3 near the Monsanto Chemical Co. plant. The detour is gravel.

Concreting Bids Received.

Bids on nearly 132 miles of hard road and bridges to be constructed by Illinois this summer were received and tabulated by the State division of highways last week. The work on which the bids are made takes in virtually every section of the state, although most of the construction undertaken in the next two months will be in Central and Southern Illinois.

By July Illinois highway engineers estimate, there will be five hundred miles of new hard roads, provided for under the second State bond issue of a hundred million dollars, under contract.

Want 1000 Miles New Roads.

The highway division has set a mark for 1000 miles of new roads completed or under contract by next year, and large stretches of proposed work will be let for bidding in June and July. Most of this will consist of paving, although there will be several big grading contracts let at that time for routes in the extreme Southern part of the state.

How to Go

Questions about roads should be addressed to the joint Touring Bureau, at the Post-Dispatch. This bureau is maintained jointly by the Post-Dispatch and the Automobile Club of Missouri.

Joint Touring Breau:

What is the best motoring route to the Spanish War Veterans' state encampment at Trenton, Mo. —Spanish War Veteran.

The shortest route is to St. Charles and over highway No. 40 to No. 65, then north on No. 65 to Trenton. Distance, about 295 miles. Highway No. 40, concrete and gravel. Considerable dirt on No. 65 that would be bad going when wet.

The better wet weather route would be No. 40 to Kansas City, north on No. 1 to St. Joseph, then east and northeast on No. 36 and No. 6 to Trenton. Distance about 400 miles. No. 1 and No. 36, surfaced. No. 6 mostly surfaced.

Joint Touring Bureau: Please give the distance and best route to Stickney, Mo.—E. D.

U. S. 66 through Manchester, Grays Summit, Union, St. Clair, Sullivan, Bourbon, Cuba, Rolla to Junction of Mo. 25, thence north to Stickney. Mileage, 160 miles.

Joint Touring Bureau: Kindly give route and distance from St. Louis to Granger, Tex.—T. P. K.

South on U. S. No. 61 through Flat River, Sikeston, Little Rock, Ark., Hot Springs, Texarkana, Paris, Tex., Dallas. Texas 1 to Fort Worth, U. S. 81 through Waco to Temple, Texas 3 to Granger. Mileage, 1050 miles. Roads, concrete, gravel.

RING SHAPED TUBES SHOULD BE USED IN BALOON TIRES

"Ring-shaped tubes are becoming more and more important as balloon tires come into more general use," says the Michelin Tire Co. "For a long time most tubes were made on straight mandrels or poles, and then bent into circular shape by cementing the ends together. This method of manufacture was likely to produce wrinkles on the inner circumference of the tube, because the inner and outer circumferences of the tube were built to the same length, while the inner edge of the space into which the tube was placed, inside the tire, was considerably shorter than the outer edge.

"This difficulty became worse with the coming of balloon tires. For instance, if you were to measure the air space in a 29x4.40 balloon tire, used on Ford cars, you would find that along the rim of the wheel the space is about two feet shorter than along the side nearest the road. This difference is built into ring-shaped tubes, and thus wrinkles in the tube are avoided."

10 LA SALLES GO 376,629 MILES SINCE JANUARY

Ten LaSalle stock cars, taken from the standard production line by the experimental department of the Cadillac Motor Car Co., have, since from Jan. 14 to May 23, run up the amazing total of 376,629 miles, says a factory statement.

"In February alone, four of these cars were each driven more than 25,000 miles, one car covering 610 miles in 10 hours. Since the average motorist totals, under ordinary driving conditions, about 10,000 miles a year, this remarkable mileage represents two and a half years of usage for each car.

"Among these cars were the two LaSalles that made the run from Detroit to Los Angeles and back in record time, and the car with special gear ratio that hurtled the speed track at the General Motor Proving Ground at 105 miles per hour and which paced the Indianapolis race on Memorial day."

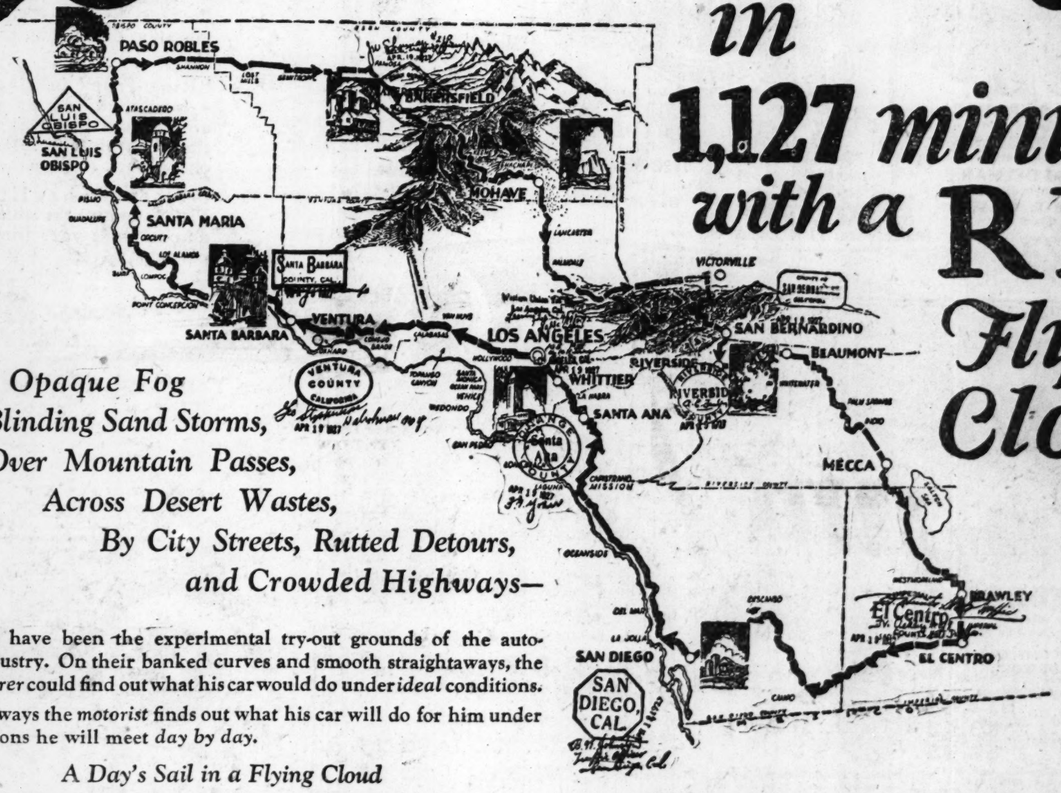
959.5 Miles of ROAD in 1,127 minutes with a REO Flying Cloud



Through Opaque Fog and Blinding Sand Storms, Over Mountain Passes, Across Desert Wastes, By City Streets, Rutted Detours, and Crowded Highways—

Speedways have been the experimental try-out grounds of the automobile industry. On their banked curves and smooth straightaways, the manufacturer could find out what his car would do under ideal conditions.

On highways the motorist finds out what his car will do for him under the conditions he will meet day by day.

A Day's Sail in a Flying Cloud

Ten counties of Southern California were recently traversed in less than a day in a Flying Cloud. Leaving the Western Union office, at Sixth and Spring Sts., Los Angeles, at 2 a. m., the stock Flying Cloud brougham, driven by two amateur drivers, sailed around Southern California and checked in again at the same Western Union office at 10:58 p. m. the same day.

959.5 miles in 20 hours and 58 minutes elapsed time. Deducting the hour and 34 minutes for stops for gasoline, oil and checking in and out of the various counties plus 37 minutes lost behind a stalled truck on a detour, and the ACTUAL RUNNING TIME OF THE FLYING CLOUD FOR 959.5 miles of road was 18 hours 47 minutes.

An average of 51.09 miles per hour while traveling.

An average of 45.7 miles per hour including all stops.

What the Flying Cloud Had to Conquer

The Flying Cloud in its record-setting run encountered almost every variety of road and traffic condition that one will meet anywhere. There were opaque banks of fog and chilly winds along the coast, through the Imperial Valley there was intense heat, on the Mojave Desert the sand was blowing in a gale.

There were mountains to climb (the Flying Cloud went to 4233 feet above sea level and to 200 feet below it), sharp curves, city traffic, the congested evening traffic of the coastal roads, school crossings to slow down for, many detours, chuck holes, washed out bridges, wandering livestock to avoid, boulevard stops—all the scores of things that hinder sustained speed on city and country streets and roads.

Yet such is the ability of the Flying Cloud to travel rough going at high speed, to accelerate swiftly and to be halted surely by its Velvet Stop brakes; such is the stamina that enables you to keep your pace on the long stretches and pull steadily on long grades, that the 959.5 miles were made in 1127 minutes of running time, 1258 minutes elapsed time, without a mechanical adjustment.

Try out a Flying Cloud. Sail down the roads through any tests you choose. A phone call will bring one to your door.

HUDSON-ESSEX PLANT INCREASES PLANNED

Expansion to Make Possible Output as Large as 3000 Cars Daily, Due to Demand.

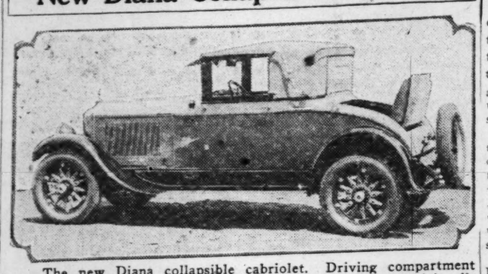
Plans are under way for the expansion of the Hudson Motor Car Co. plant facilities whereby production of Hudson-Essex cars can be increased from the present limit of 1700 to 3000 cars a day. The enlargement of the manufacturing facilities is in response to th eedmand for cars, which this spring has been much larger than could be supplied.

Rumors have been circulated to the effect that certain departments at the plant of the Hudson company at Detroit were to be shut down and in some cases the reason for this has been misunderstood. The capacity of the present facilities at the factory has been altogether inadequate to meet the demand for Hudson-Essex cars since the new models were anonunced last January. In order to satisfy the requirements of dealers and distributers all over the country, plans have been under way for some time to make certain plant changes.

New Auto Repair Firm.

The firm of Williams & Hagenslecker has been formed by Oscar Williams and William Hagenslecker to do auto repairing and manufacturing using K. R. Wilson equipment, which is said to be indorsed by the Ford Motor Co. Both have had long experience in Ford work. The firm is located at 4411 Easton avenue.

New Diana Collapsible Cabriolet



The new Diana collapsible cabriolet. Driving compartment and rumble seat are in pikskin-finish leather, in the newest plain pillow style. The top is tan Burbank.

FINANCIAL EXPERT TALKS TO AUTO DEALERS HERE

A majority of members of the St. Louis Automobile Dealers' Association heard H. M. Fancher, financial expert of the National Automobile Dealers' Association, explain budgeting systems at the association meeting at the Claridge Hotel, Wednesday, June 1.

The meeting was attended by heads of firms, department managers and accountants. Capt. Robert E. Lee, secretary and general manager of the St. Louis Automobile Dealers' Association, presided.

Fancher explained in detail, with charts, methods of accounting designed to allocate receipts and expenses to each department of the motor car business, the purpose being to show in the monthly statements exactly to which department profits and losses were to be assigned. Fancher was detained after the meeting for nearly an hour with personal questions put to him by the accountants.

JOHNSON TIRE CO. MADE NEW SEAT DISTRIBUTER

Johnson Brothers Tire Co. has been appointed distributer in St. Louis metropolitan district of the Van Auken sliding seat, a new accessory designed to facilitate the entrance and exit of rear-seat passengers in coach type automobiles. The new seat was placed on the market recently by the C. M. Van Auken Co. of Pontiac, Mich.

The new accessory is a runway appliance, fastened to the underside of the front seats. A powerful coil spring draws the seat forward when a button at the side, easily accessible to the occupant of the seat, is pressed. The space for entrance or exit is thus greatly enlarged. When the rear-seat passenger has alighted or entered, the occupant of the front seat straightens, his legs and thus presses the seat back into its normal position where it is locked.

CHANDLER CARS SUBJECTED TO SEVERE ROAD TESTING

"In addition to its extensive laboratory research and experimental testing, a fleet of test cars is maintained by Chandler-Cleveland Motors Corporation, to check upon the actual road conditions a car would undergo in the hands of owners," says a factor statement.

"These cars travel thousands of miles every week with experienced drivers at the wheel, in order to test the various units in the Chandler chassis.

"Acceleration tests are made at various speeds and checked by stop watches, from both flying and standing starts.

"Cars are frequently taken to the Indianapolis Speedway by Chandler experimental engineers, to be driven with the wide open throttle for hours without a stop. After this punishing performance the entire car is dissembled and each unit is examined to ascertain the wear on operating surfaces.

INTERNATIONAL RELIABILITY RUN WON BY GRAHAM TRUCKS

First and second places in an international reliability run from Puno, Peru, to Lapaz, Bolivia, were won by a Graham Brothers ¾-ton commercial car and a Graham 1½-ton truck, according to Dodge Brothers, Inc.

The time for the 300 kilometers over dangerous mountain roads was 15 hours for the winner, and 28 hours for the second Graham. The third to finish, a light truck of another make, required 54 hours.

The race, which was open to all makes, included miles of travel over boulder-strewn beaches of Lake Titicacca, high in the Andes Mountains, and treacherous trails climbing up precipices.

SCOUTMASTERS FROM WEST DISTRICT WIN

Group Victorious Over Three Other Divisions; Pineapples Nearly Set Record.

Scoutmasters from the West District, one of the four divisions into which the St. Louis Boy Scout troops are grouped, proved their aggregate superiority over their rivals from the other three districts in a series of inter-district contests held at the annual Scoutmasters' week-end camp at the Irondale Reservation last Friday to Monday. The District as a whole scored 120 points, to the second-place Suburban District's 55, in the district contests, and a West District patrol, the Pineapples, obtained the largest number of project points: 164, a total very close to the record camp record of 172—made this spring by a crack patrol from Troop 5.

More than 200 scoutmasters and their families attended the camp, which is one of the major activities of the local Boy Scout council each year. While recreation is provided, the camp is intended primarily for a forum where men from all parts of the city and county may exchange experiences and ideas in handling Boy Scout troops, to the increased efficiency of the city organization. Various phases of scouting are also practiced under the supervision of experts in each of the lines, mostly in the form of games and contests, and the completion of individual and patrol projects of different scout activities.

It was in the completion of these projects that the Pineapples made their high score, the highest yet made by commissioned officers. This patrol, headed by Prof. Eugene Stephens of Washington University, was made up of Scoutmasters Frank, E. C. Smith, L. Lushaw, C. E. Sparks, C. J. Brenner, Kiessling and William Stephens.

Besides the patrol projects, the contests consisted mostly of stunts, duties and games. It was in these that the West District ran up their high score. They took the baseball championship, council fire stunt night, and retreat on Sunday. They tied with the South and North Districts on fatigue, and came second in the volley ball championship tournament. The latter was won by the Suburban District, which also took second in baseball.

A new feature of the camp this year was the dramatization of Biblical stories at the Sunday evening council fire.

SCOUTS ESCORTED VISITORS TO LINDENWOOD COLLEGE

Thirty Members of St. Charles Troop in Uniform Met Trains During Festivities.

What has been characterized as "one of the outstanding troop good turns of the year" was performed by St. Charles 3 at the recent 100th anniversary celebration of Lindenwood College at St. Charles. During the four days preceding the ceremonies 30 scouts in uniform met every incoming train and escorted visitors unfamiliar with the city to the college or their rooms. The scouts also took charge of all the baggage, delivering it from the station direct to the visitors' lodgings by means of automobiles.

It was estimated that the celebration was attended by 5000 persons, a large proportion of whom were served by the troop. Letters of praise for both their co-operation and efficiency were received by the scouts from the president of Lindenwood College and from the St. Charles Dinner Club.

During the summer the troop will be in the charge of Assistant Scoutmaster David Ilch, as Scoutmaster L. R. McAdams, a teacher at the high school, will be away during the summer vacation.

SCHOOL IN FURNACE FIRING HAS PART IN WAR ON SMOKE

Free Instruction Given Public Eight Months a Year; Special Classes for Janitors.

The Citizens' Smoke Abatement League is preparing to use the Furnace Firing School at Olive Street road and Hodiamont avenue as one of its chief forces of attack on the smoke nuisance in St. Louis, for which a war chest of $250,000 has been raised to finance a three-year program.

The firing school, said to be the first of its kind in this country, has attracted much attention since it was established a year ago. The school offers free instruction to the public eight months in the year. Special classes will be arranged for janitors. It will cost approximately $7500 a year to operate the school.

"The school has been one of the outstanding contributions to the St. Louis smoke abatement campaign," said Charles G. Buder, the director. "Upwards of 5000 householders visited it and received instruction the past year."

SCOUTMASTERS TO MEET

The final meeting of the scoutmasters' training course, conducted by the local Boy Scout Council since the first of the year, will be held tomorrow evening at the Sheldon Memorial for scoutmasters and patrol leaders. Besides the regular leadership training, the class will also be given demonstrations of new and interesting patrol contests by Activities Director H. H. Hotchkiss of the council.

Attendance by the scoutmasters and patrol leaders for a certain number of hours at the training course is one of the requirements of the second quarter's objective contest being held by the scouts this year.

800 MERIT BADGES GIVEN GIRL SCOUTS

Largest Number Ever Awarded at a St. Louis Ceremony—250 Recipients.

More than 800 merit badges, the largest number ever to be awarded at one Girl Scout ceremony in St. Louis, were presented to 250 girls at the St. Louis Girl Scout Council's annual Court of Awards at the United Railway Hall, Grand boulevard and Vista avenue, last Wednesday evening. The badges, symbols of proficiency in the different Girl Scout activities, were earned by the girls since the last Court, held June 12 of last year. Only 800 badges were awarded at the 1926 Court.

In adition to the record-breaking number of badges, the court was marked by the presenting for the first time in St. Louis of the Home Service badge, one of the most difficult honors to earn in the Girl Scout category. This badge, carrying a minimum of 500 hours work around the home as one of its requirements, was won by Mercedes Merghoff of Troop 10.

Other Unusual Badges.

Three other unusual badges were also awarded: the Golden Eaglet, the highest rank a Girl Scout may attain, to Gertrude Bishop of Troop 1, and the Community Service Badge, requiring recognized service to the community, to two sisters, Helen and Margaret Jones, of Troop 52. These latter badges were won by the sisters for work during the last Community Fund drive.

Miss Bishop's Golden Eaglet badge was more or less of a family affair. These badges are presented first to the captain of the girl's troop, who in turn pins it on the scout. The captain in this case was Miss Bishop's mother, Mrs. George Bishop. A sister, Helen, a lieutenant of the troop, is also an Eaglet, the pair being the only sisters in the city to have both attained this rank.

Pins Also Awarded.

These unique badges and seven First Class pins, were awarded by Mrs. D. K. Rose, deputy commissioner for St. Louis. The merit badges were distributed through the medium of a playlet, "Magic Gold Pieces," given by Lindenwood Troop 7, the "gold pieces" being the badges.

Mrs. Rose made first official announcement of the resignation of Miss Eleanor Piper, local director of the organization, who has returned to her home in Minnesota. At the suggestion of one of the girls, the audience sang a Girl Scout song, "Father Time," in honor of Miss Piper.

GIRL SCOUT DIRECTOR QUITS

Organization Has Grown in 3-Year Term of Miss Eleanor Piper.

Miss Eleanor Piper, local director of the Girl Scouts of St. Louis the last three years, has resigned to return to her home in Minnesota, it has been announced by the local Girl Scout Council. No one has been selected as yet to take her place.

Miss Piper, a former Girl Scout, came to St. Louis from college when the St. Louis Council was formed. Under her direction the organization has increased from about 20 troops to 61 in St. Louis and about 10 in the county under local jurisdiction.

DIDN'T QUARREL WITH PARENTS

George W. Clark Jr., 16 years old, who ended his life by drinking poison in an oil filling station he managed at Florissant and Carrie avenues last Tuesday, had quarreled with his employers and not with his parents, as police reported, his father, George W. Clark, told the Post-Dispatch yesterday. The boy resided with his parents at 2005 Salisbury street.

"He complained that he had a quarrel with the boss of the gasoline company over four days he worked and said he would quit May 31," Clark said.

Scout Notes

North District.

Three scouts of Troop 206 passed fire-building and cooking tests on a hike to Seven Springs last Sunday, attended by 10 scouts, the scoutmaster and one Troop Committeeman. Seven boys were awarded their Tenderfoot pins at a ceremony witnessed by 20 scouts and 20 visitors at the troop's last meeting. Members of the Troop Committee spoke.

Troop 147 went on its first overnight hike of the season over Decoration day, 10 scouts spending the three days at Cold Water Creek. The time was spent passing tests and in playing baseball and other games. A Parents' night was held Tuesday evening, with the assistance of Troops 22 and 84. Stunts were put on, and talks were given by Scoutmaster Mahon, Chairman Voss of the committee and Deputy Commissioner Engle.

A week-end camp at Lions Den Reservation was enjoyed by the scouts of Troop 52 over Decoration day. The scouts left St. Louis early Saturday afternoon and returned Monday evening.

Scoutmaster Hancock of Troop 72 attended the scoutmaster's week-end at Irondale and gave the troops an account of it at the scout meeting this week. Scoutmaster Hancock, Senior Patrol Leader Cherry and Patrol Leader Joe are going on a hike to Lions Den this Sunday. The last hike to Kenwood Springs proved very successful.

A joint meeting of Troop 52 and Troop 12 was held at Troop 12's headquarters Thursday, May 26. Moving pictures were shown of the patrol leader's camp at Irondale in April of this year, and a talk was given on camp by a former junior officer. Many of the boys are now signed up for camp this summer, and others intend to do so in the near future.

South District.

Five scouts of Troop 178 are on their 14-mile hikes today, to pass that requirement for the first class badge. They will hike from the troop headquarters at the Grace Hill Church to the Chain of Rocks and back.

Eight scouts of the newly-organized Troop 41 passed cooking and fire-building tests on a hike to a creek two miles below Jefferson Barracks, Decoration day. The Outdoor Troop Committeeman has arranged another hike for June 19, for the boys to pass tracking. A goal has been set, for 15 second class scouts within 90 days of the organization of the troop.

The Clifton Council, Junior O. U. A. M., is to present the troop with an American flag June 14. All scouts of the city have been invited to the ceremony.

Sixteen scouts and six fathers attended a Fathers' and Sons' Hike held by Troop 15 to Cliff Cave Decoration day. The forenoon was spent in test-passing, especially fire-building and cooking. The scouts cooked the dinner for their fathers. One group of second-class scouts, accompanied by the Outdoor Committee member, took their 14-mile hike for the first class test.

According to the monthly report from the scoutmaster of Troop 143, Eugene Miller, Howard Forshee, and William Hillgartmer were invested with their first-class rank and Scout William Wollman made Star Scout rank last month. This puts Troop 143 over the top on their number of first-class scouts for their second quarters objectives.

D. L. O'Rourke has taken over Troop 76 and is acting as scoutmaster in the absence of Scoutmaster A. L. Lantz, who is in the hospital at the present time. The troop expects to reregister next week.

Suburban District.

Some of the scouts of Webster Groves 9 did a good turn last week by helping the Parent-Teachers' Association serve refreshments at a school pageant. All the committeemen were present at the meeting last Wednesday night and it was decided that merit badges in the future would be paid for out of the troop funds. Four pup tents have been purchased to be used by the eight scouts chosen to represent the troop at the overnight suburban rally Friday night. This troop also participated in a parade on Decoration day.

Webster Groves 10 reregistered last week with 16 boys. During the past three months all but four of the boys have advanced a rank in scouting. Scoutmaster W. H. H. Schaefer spent last week-end at Irondale, and plans on sending a group of his scouts to camp this summer.

Webster Groves 9 is to reregister this month, Scoutmaster C. H. Brackbill planning to have the registration in before camp opens June 18. All the scouts have been asked to co-operate to make this possible.

Scoutmaster P. R. Pray of Kirkwood4 leaves his home in Michigan next week, and will not return to Kirkwood next fall. He has made arrangements for the troop to continue under the leadership of two of the teachers in the high school.

West District.

Following their custom for 11 successive years, the scouts of Troop 46 hiked to Jefferson Barracks for their annual Decoration day hike, leaving their headquarters at 8:30 o'clock, and arriving in the woods below the barracks at 10. Because of a long illness, Scoutmaster Hall was unable to accompany the troop for the first time since the custom was inaugurated, but he drove down and

CAUSE OF DEAFNESS SOUGHT BY DOCTORS

American Otological Society Will Study Hardening of Capsule in Inner Ear.

The American Otological Society, of which Dr. Max A. Goldstein of St. Louis was elected president at the recent sixtieth annual meeting in New York, has undertaken to ascertain the cause and treatment of oto-sclerosis—hardening of the capsule of the internal ear—a very prevalent form of deafness, occurring gradually. The society, the oldest of its kind in the world, comprises medical specialists in the anatomy and diseases of the ear.

One of the most important factors of the work, started last year by the Oto-Sclerosis Commission of the society, and likely to require years to conduct, will be the study of the internal ear of many persons, both those who were normal in hearing and those who suffered from this disease, together with clinical records of each person. Otologists and hospitals throughout the country have been asked to cooperate in obtaining the necessary specimens and records.

The organs needed cannot, of course, be obtained until death. Then they must be gotten within a few hours to prevent physical changes which would render them valueless. No disfigurement of the body is involved, as the external ear will be undisturbed. The otologists believe they can get the desired supply of specimens.

Affects Many Women.

As important as the study of cancer is the research in oto-sclerosis, in the opinion of Dr. Goldstein, an internationally known otologist and founder and director of Central Institute for the Deaf here. Discussing the Oto-Sclerosis Commission and its work, in an interview with a Post-Dispatch reporter, he said:

"The commission comprises five laymen of philanthropic spirit and five members of the American Otological Society—Dr. Norval H. Pierce of Chicago, chairman; Dr. George E. Shambaugh of Chicago, Dr. J. Gordon Wilson of Chicago, Dr. Eugene A. Crockett of Boston and Dr. Arthur B. Duel of New York. It has been given a grant of $90,000, in varying annual sums, by the Carnegie Foundation, to begin its activities, and has received additional subscriptions of $35,000 from members of the society and laity. Permanent headquarters have been established at the New York Academy of Medicine. The society is out for a $500,000 endowment fund for the work.

"Oto-sclerosis occurs more frequently in women than men and as far as we know hereditary tendencies perpetuate it. But we do not know its cause or any form of effective treatment. The first report of the commission was made at the society meeting last month. This is the first time the problem has ever been investigated with so wide a scope.

German Treatise.

"There has been put to work by the commission the well-known bone pathologist, Prof. T. H. Bast of the University of Wisconsin, working from the standpoint of general pathology. Dr. Samuel J. Crowe of Johns Hopkins demonstrated to the society with lantern slides his findings and studies of the temporal bone (containing the internal ear capsule) of patients who have had oto-sclerosis.

"Meanwhile, the New York office has had another job. Statisticians have been put to work to gather the entire literature of oto-sclerosis and translate it from foreign languages into English and this is to be placed at the disposal of every otologist throughout the country who wants to participate in this investigation.

"Prof. Wittmaak of Hamburg, Germany, an expert in this work, who has written the best treatise I know of on the subject, has been given a year's stipend by the commission to study oto-sclerosis in monkeys, since the monkey's temporal bone is the nearest approach to the human and they are readily available for experiment and study.

Need Test Before Death.

"Several laboratories are studying the subject in white rats and guinea pigs. They are going into the changes of structure of bone, especially the capsule of the labyrinth of the ear as the result of feeding of different types.

"Otologists all over the country are requested to get the temporal bones of patients and send them in with full reports of all clinical findings to the central laboratory for a systematic study. Human functional tests of the ear must be made before death to make the post morten findings useful. Interested persons can note in their wills that they want their internal ears to go to the commission, and we hope they will also give money for this great work, while living or in their wills.

"The subject should be interesting to the public, for one out of every 10 adults in the United States has some hearing defect."

Dr. Goldstein is the first Missourian to head the American Otological Society.

KING IN ROTTEN ROW AGAIN

Tourists See Monarch on Early Morning Horseback Rides.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, June 4.—King George has resumed his early morning summer horseback rides in Rotten Row, much to the satisfaction of numerous tourists, but there has been a tendency on the part of society leaders to turn out for canters before breakfast as was the custom 30 odd years ago.

The King rides between 7 and 8 o'clock, this being the only opportunity he has for regular outdoor exercise when the court is at Buckingham Palace. In olden days when royalty rode regularly in Hyde Park, a great many of the most prominent men and women of the land were sure to turn out, even before breakfast, if it were known King Edward would appear on his favorite steed. But early rising is not so popular as formerly and the "morning after" in these days of night clubs and cabarets the King has Rotten Row almost to himself for his early morning canters.

joined the boys at the barracks in time for the annual photograph taken of the troop perched on the cannon overlooking the Mississippi River.

The scouts also participated in the Memorial day parade from the barracks drill ground into the National Cemetery.

Seventeen scouts and Scoutmaster Bill Bauer of Troop 60 took a three-day hike over Decoration day week-end. Assembling at the Maplewood loop at 7:30 o'clock Saturday morning, the scouts hiked to Brentwood, and there took a car for Meramec Highlands. After dinner and a ball game, the hike was resumed, back to the Manchester road, where they camped until Monday. The return home was broken by a side trip to a cabin on Berry road, where most of Monday was spent. The troop hiked into Manchester to attend church Sunday morning.

Following its custom, Troop 44 assembled Decoration day to lay a token of remembrance on the grave of its first scoutmaster, Mr. Smith, who died a little more than a year ago, and on that of one of its best scouts, Eugene Kippenberger, who died six years ago.

Troop 11 of the Y. M. H. A. is celebrating the return of Assistant Scoutmaster Morris Greenwald, who has been attending school at Missouri University during the past year. Because of his excellent work he was excused from examinations and permitted to return home ahead of time.

Scoutmaster Schmidt, Assistant Scoutmaster Brenner and Troop Committeeman Kiessling of Troop 21 spent the week-end at Camp Irondale at the annual scoutmaster's week-end camp.

Troop 101 of the West Park Baptist Church is holding its first Parents' Night under the scoutmastership of C. H. Miller. A program has been prepared and it is hoped that the parents of all the boys in the troop will show their interest in the efforts of the men connected with the troop by being present at the meeting.

Tenderfoot and Second Class tests were passed on a hike attended by 24 scouts and Scoutmaster Ulrich of Troop 94 a week ago Thursday. This was the first hike of the year for the troop. Twenty-eight scouts from the troop marched at the head of the St. Barbara's School picnic parade last Monday, and also assisted in keeping spectators in line at the picnic races. Assistant Scoutmaster Wehmeyer was in charge, in the absence of the scoutmaster.

Five scouts of Troop 23 were awarded prizes of 50 cents each for arriving at Camp Mountain Ridge, the troop camp, before Scoutmaster Usher, on the troop's annual Decoration Day three-day hike. As a troop good-turn the scouts built a dam to protect the road near the camp from the high water which was making it impassable for automobiles. Although a lean-to and three tents were erected, the boys slept in the open, reserving the shelters for possible rain. The camp was under the direct charge of Junior Assistant Morris Obsametsky.

Scoutmaster Usher has promised to present the troop with an American Flag as a reward for more than doubling the membership in the last few months.

Troop 23 takes a hike every Sunday, despite the weather.

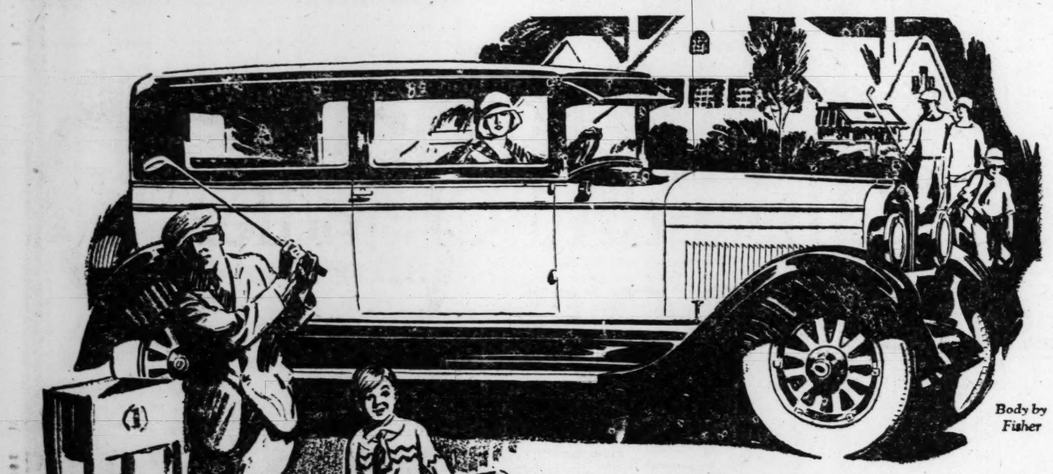
Edmond Butler of Troop 50 was awarded his first class pin at the last meeting. The troop was very enthusiastic over the first issue of a troop paper. A demonstration of the Basketry merit badge was given by Scout Deuser at the last meeting; next week a demonstration of bookbinding will be given by Robert Casey. Scouts Beerbaum and Adrain Ochterbeck, Merit Badges scouts, have returned to the troop from school at Columbia, Mo. The first totem pole in the patrol contest was brought in by Patrol Leader Casey of the Owl Patrol. Committeeman Lueders and Rueweler attended the Scoutmaster's Camp at Irondale last week-end.

MOTHER OF OUTLAW DIES

Mrs. Lily Kimes Expressed Desire to See Son Sought for Robbery.

VAN BUREN, Ark.—Mrs. Lily Kimes, 39 years old, mother of Matthew Kimes, Oklahoma outlaw for whom officers have been searching for months, died May 30 without having seen her son at her deathbed.

Another son, George, confined at the Oklahoma penitentiary for 21 years for slaying Perry Chisculm, Sequoyah County officer, also was unable to be at his mother's bedside during her last moments. "If I only could see Matt I would die happy," Mrs. Kimes said just before the end.



"even a feature-for-feature comparison does not reveal the full extent of Oakland's value supremacy"

Knowing the Oakland tradition of advanced engineering, you have probably sensed that the Greater Oakland Six offers certain things not found in other cars. But even a feature-for-feature comparison does not reveal the full extent of Oakland's value supremacy—for that is based not merely on these features, but on these features plus super-precision construction!

Expressed in terms of ten-thousandths of an inch and hundredths of an ounce, this exacting craftsmanship has excited widespread commendation. Yet you as a possible Oakland buyer, could appreciate its true significance only by going to Pontiac and living among the men who design and build the Oakland Six.

Here you would quickly sense the most vital factor in Oakland's success—a determination that every car leaving the plant shall be so built as to keep on creating owner good will long after an ordinary built car would have been replaced.

That, we believe, is the strongest assurance of lasting satisfaction a buyer could demand. And apparently tens of thousands of buyers have thought likewise. For the growth of Oakland popularity last year was an outstanding feat of recent automobile history—and that growth will be surpassed this year.

$1095 SEDAN

Oakland Six, $1025 to $1295. The New and Finer Pontiac Six, $775 to $975. All prices at factory. Delivered prices include minimum handling charges. Easy to pay on the General Motors Time Payment Plan.

RADIO TANGLE STILL TO BE UNRAVELED

Dissatisfied Broadcasters Threaten to Test Commission's Powers in Courts.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, June 4. — More than ever involved in entanglements with broadcasters, members of the Federal Radio Commission say it will be surprising if they emerge from their first year without a contest in the courts.

While conducting its public hearings for dissatisfied stations, the Commission is besieged with advice of all sorts. On the one hand, clamor for further postponement of the June 1 allocations, already deferred to June 15, is heard. On the other, many stations, satisfied with their assignments, are irked at the stay ordered, saying they had arranged contracts and scheduled programs with the new conditions of operation in view.

Anger at Hearings.

Some backers of the Commission's original plan say it revealed weakness in deferring the June 1 plan, which at worst was to be a test scheme probably only temporarily effective under the 60 day licenses. Yet the commission is making good use of the intervening days between now and June 15, by conducting the hearings.

No little acrimony has developed at the hearings. The report is heard here that WDWM, Newark, like WJAZ Chicago, is prepared to go to court if it does not get a better frequency.

The commission has just heard the plea of WDWM for a shift to 1070 kilocycles (280.2 meters) in lieu of its assignment to 1270 (236.1 meters).

WJAZ wants a channel anywhere between 300 and 425 meters. WGL, New York, now wants to change to 720 kilocycles (416.4 meters).

WFIW, Hopkinsville, Ky., which was a Canadian wave usurper, wants to stay on its present temporary frequency of 830 kilocycles (361.2 meters) instead of shifting June 15 to 1220 (245.8 meters).

Threats of Court Action.

Broadcasters called to Washington to defend the channels assigned to them are turning about-face the next day and filing claims for frequencies assigned to other stations, or threatening to go to court.

Government radio experts still insist that the only satisfactory solution of the broadcasting problem is elimination of a number of broadcasting stations. They contend that such a move is in the "public interest, necessity and convenience" and that it behooves the commission to follow such a course. They say it is not for the commission to question the constitutionality of the law.

Virtually everybody whose opinions were regarded as of value declared at the first hearings by the Federal Radio Commission that a marked improvement in broadcasting conditions could be obtained only by reducing the number of stations.

The commission placed itself on record as declaring that reduction in the number of stations was necessary if a satisfactory solution was to be reached.

But the commission then began to worry over the constitutionality of such action. Opinions were given that refusal of a license to a station would be in violation of the Fifth Amendment and that the courts would not uphold such a step. So the commission figured the scheme, whereby all stations would receive licenses and everybody would be happy.

"Such a scheme," say the experts, "is designed to take care of the broadcasters, instead of the listeners, and listeners will suffer as a result."

According to the experts, distance reception is virtually impossible with the new set-up of stations by the Radio Commission. It is pointed out that the scheme may seem to work this summer, but that when cold weather increases the range of stations, the old bedlam of squeals and howls will still come from the loud speakers when distant stations are sought.

Of course, say the experts, the situation will correct itself in time. If two stations interfere with each other, one will discontinue operation or the two will reach an agreement that will stop the trouble.

STROMBERG-CARLSON CO CAN USE PATENTS OF RCA

The Stromberg-Carlson Telephone Manufacturing Co., Rochester, N. Y., has become a licensee under 140 or more radio patents of the Radio Corporation of America, the General Electric Co., the Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Co and the American Telephone & Telegraph Co.

The Stromberg-Carlson Co. policy has been one of providing complete patent protection for its users and its dealers. It is the only manufacturer having rights to operate under the patents of the Radio Corporation of America and its associated companies and also under the patents of the Hazeltine Corporation, the Latour Corporation and the Radio Frequency Laboratories, Inc.

The right to use the inventions disclosed in these four groups of patents affords the Stromberg-Carlson Co. complete freedom of action in design and manufacture and obviates likelihood of its users and its dealers being involved in costly patent litigation.

REBROADCASTING ALL OVER WORLD FEASIBLE

General Electric Co. Tests Said to Have Demonstrated Its Possibility.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

SCHENECTADY, N. Y., June 4. —Intercontinental rebroadcasting of radio programs is possible. Tests conducted by General Electric Co. engineers at Schenectady have demonstrated that by the use of short waves signals may be flashed across the Atlantic or the Pacific with sufficient volume and quality to permit rebroadcasting by distant receiving stations.

Vagaries of weather may interfere, and transmitting sets near the receiving point may smear the signals. But under average conditions the engineers can predict results. On several occasions it has been possible to announce in advance a rebroadcast program and carry through that program successfully.

At present American listeners must be content with programs originating for the most part in the 700 or more broadcasting stations in the United States, but it is quite reasonable to expect that when engineers in other countries have developed short wave transmitters on a par with the transmitters used at the General Electric developmental station. American stations will be able to pick up and broadcast programs from other continents.

In the past two years Schenectady programs have been rebroadcast by stations in Johannesburg and Durban, South Africa; Perth, Australia; Keston, England; Paris, France, and Tuinucu, Cuba.

NEW AC AND RECTIFIER TUBES ANNOUNCED BY R. C. A.

New tubes which, with the use of a small step-down transformer, will eliminate "A" batteries from receiving sets especially designed to accommodate them, and improved rectifier tubes for use in eliminating "B" batteries or in special circuits to do away with "A" batteries, will soon be placed on the market, according to E. E. Bucher, general sales manager of the Radio Corporation of America.

"On or about July 1," said Bucher, "there will be introduced two AC types of radiotrons having operating characteristics similar to those of the 201A type and which, so far as performance is concerned, give the same results obtainable from the 201A or 199 types of tubes; but in which unrectified current obtained from a step-down transformer eliminates the usual A battery. These are to be known as types UX226 and UY227.

"A month prior, about June 1, the Radio Corporation plans to introduce two new and improved radiotron rectifiers of the filament type for use in B battery eliminators, or, in special circuits for A battery elimination employing series filament drive. These tubes will be known as types UX280 and UX281."

"The new AC radiotrons will not be immediately applicable to the present types of receivers," according to Bucher, "and they are not to be considered as taking the place of any of the present types of standard vacuum tubes produced and marketed by the RCA. To accommodate the new AC tubes in the prevalent types of broadcast receivers, it would be necessary to make radical changes in design, and in many cases it would be entirely impracticable. The new radiotron rectifiers, on the other hand, are applicable to many existing radio rectifying devices without further adaptation. They will give outstanding performance in battery eliminators especially designed for their characteristics."

KSD TO GIVE MUSICAL COMEDY BROADCAST

Selections From "Prince of Pilsen" and Other Popular Works Friday Night.

Two selections from the musical comedy, "The Prince of Pilsen," will be featured in the broadcasting by the National Musical Comedy Troupe through KSD next Friday evening.

The first selection is the famous stein song, "Heidelberg," arranged for baritone and male quartet, one of the most successful numbers in this light opera. This song was probably the "great-grandfather" of many other drinking songs, including the one in the recent musical comedy, "The Student Prince." The other selection from "The Prince of Pilsen" is the soprano solo, "The Message of the Violet."

The closing selection will be from Victor Herbert's "The Wizard of the Nile."

The program also is to include:

"In the Wash," from "The Messenger Boy" .....Monckton
Soprano and chorus.

"A Little Bit of Heaven," from "The Heart of Paddy Whack" ..... Ball Tenor.

"A Girl From Utah," from "The Girl From Utah" .....Jones
Mezzo soprano and chorus.

"There's a Lot of Things You Never Learn in School," from "The Wizard of Oz"..Brill
Tenor and chorus.

"Serenade," from "The Vagabond King" ..... Friml
Trio—alto, tenor and baritone.

HANS BARTH TO YLAY IN KSD CONCERT THURSDAY

Hans Barth, pianist, and an orchestra, will present the program, "Half Hours With Great Composers," through KSD next Thursday evening.

With orchestral accompaniment, he will render Grieg's most famous short lyric pieces, "To Spring," "Dance Caprice" and "Erotik."

The closing group will contain "On the Mountain," "Bridal Procession" and "Carnaval."

CHANGE IN CITY SERVICE HOUR PROGRAM FROM KSD

Beginning next Friday evening, the City Service Hour concert through KSD is to be given by the City Service Salon Orchestra and quartet, instead of the Goldman Band.

Present plans provide for continuing the City Service Hour under this arrangement until September.

POWER CONTROL TESTED

A test of the new Super Automatic radio power control made by the Liberty Bell Manufacturing Co., Minerva, O., proved that the device is practical and convenient. The device is connected to the receiver tubes and the A battery. A high-rate charger is then connected to the A battery through the device. When the switch on the set is turned on, the Super Automatic connects the B batteries and cuts off the charger. When the set is not being used and the switch is turned off, the Super Automatic disconnects the B batteries and connects the charger to the A battery. When the battery is fully charged, the charger is automatically disconnected.

Two other models of the device can be used with trickle chargers and B eliminators.

NEW 40-WATT RESISTANCE

A new Clarostat has a current-carrying capacity of at least 40 watts. This device is said to provide a positive resistance of any precise value over a wide range, without current fluctuation to cause noises in radio reception and amplification.

The new Clarostat is about three times the size of the standard unit. Otherwise, its design is virtually the same. It also is for a one-hole mounting. The knob gives a micrometric adjustment of resistance in several turns. The same resistance value is obtained with the same adjustment of the knob, time and again. Each Clarostat is hand calibrated.

By-Passing.

By-passing in radio is to prevent energy at radio frequency from entering the circuit of lower or audio frequencies by-passed and lost along with the radio frequencies. This means poor reception on the higher notes and loss of the overtones. Radio frequencies. It has been found that where by-passing is carelessly handled it happens that the higher audio frequencies really are higher audio frequencies, and it should be readily apparent to any one reflecting on this matter that in cutting out all of the radio frequencies there sometimes is danger of cutting off the higher range of the audio.

Pure Water Not a Good Conductor.

Chemically pure water is a rather poor conductor of electricity. Water that contains minerals or acids is a far better conductor than water which is free of all impurities.

Catharine Hallet on KSD Program.

Catharine West Hallet, a popular radio performer, will be one of the artists to be heard in "The Cavalcade," through KSD next Tuesday evening.

GILBERT AND SULLIVAN CANTATA THROUGH KSD

"Trial by Jury" to Be Produced by National Light Opera Company.

The dramatic cantata, "Trial by Jury," by Gilbert and Sullivan, will be presented in tabloid form through KSD on Wednesday evening by the National Light Opera Co. under direction of Cesare Sodero.

The cast will include Rosalie Wolfe, soprano; Frances Paperte, mezzo soprano; George O'Brien, tenor; Harvey Hindermeyer, tenor; John Quine, baritone, and Jack Oakley, basso.

The story deals in the usual Gilbertian style with the domestic difficulties of a young couple, which have culminated in a law suit. The wife of the plaintiff charges that the early warmth of her husband's love has cooled and he has bestowed his affections elsewhere. The husband makes no denial of these charges, but rather glories in them, and declares his willingness to remain married to his wife if he may be allowed also to marry his present heart's desire. This the Judge and the jury gravely decide is illegal.

A dilemma is reached which is happily cleared up by the Judge's offer to marry the defendant, and presumably everybody lives happily ever afterward.

Never Change Position of "Matched" Tubes.

Make it a point to keep tubes in order in a neutrodyne set. When cleaning the prongs of the tubes, handle each separately, replacing the tubes in the former order. These sets are carefully neutralized and it is important that the tubes be matched. Do not try to make a new match until everything else has been checked over, and connections.

The number of times a battery is charged depends on three things: How much the set is used, the number of tubes, and the size of the battery.

NEW CONCERT SERIES FOR EVEREADY HOUR

Saxophones to Be Emphasized in Next Tuesday Night's Program From KSD.

A new series of concerts by the Eveready Orchestra, with Nathaniel Shilkret as conductor, emphasizing the part played by the saxophone in modern orchestration, will be started Tuesday evening as a feature of the Eveready Hour.

Barbara Maurel, contralto, will be the soloist of the new program.

Under Shilkret, the Eveready Orchestra was the first instrumental group to take music of conventional orchestration and transform it by rescoring to allow use of muted trumpets and saxophones. A notable feat was their rendition of the Peer Gynt suite, rescored for the saxophone without any sacrifice of rhythm.

The instrumental novelty of the program will be a medley of Irish reels for four saxophones, three violins and two trombones. Other music by the orchestra will include the Farandole from Bizet's "Arlesienne" suite, Ketelbey's "Bells Across the Meadow," a Mexican folksong, "Ay-Ay-Ay," and music from Victor Herbert's "Sweethearts."

A clarinet solo, Godard's "The Brooklet," by Shilkret, and another solo, "Old Black Joe" by Joseph Green, will complete the program.

PROGRAM FOR H. & K. PERIOD

Following is the program for tomorrow evening's H. & K. Period from KSD given by the Concert Ensemble of Hotel Statler:

Selections from "Naughty Marietta (Herbert); solo "On the Road to Mandalay," (Speaks) Mack Mudd tenor; Fantasia, Cavalleria Rusticana, (Mascagni); "Mther Machree," (Ball-Olcott). Mack Mudd; "Hungarian Dance," (Brahms).

Canada to Police Air.

Canadian radio authorities plan to co-operate with the United States in policing the broadcast lanes. Just as the Federal Radio Commission plans to prosecute violations of the six exclusive Canadian frequencies, so the Canadian Department of Marine, which has supervision of radio, expects to suspend licenses of Canadian broadcasters who trespass on the channels reserved for the U. S.

Charles Goodyear, from a contemporary portrait

The Greatest Name in Rubber

He walked the streets in downpouring rain in a strange garment of rubberized cloth.
He met the jeers of the world with a faith that neither disaster nor seeming disgrace could conquer.
He laid upon the altar of his work all the dear things of life—health, family, friends, fortune, happiness.
He was cast into prison for debt.
He felt himself "appointed of God."
He discovered the vulcanization of rubber.
His name was Charles Goodyear.

IN the immense and farflung industrial structure that is Goodyear today, an army of workers labors to enlarge Charles Goodyear's discovery.

In cities that he never saw—quite possibly of which he could not even dream—and in an enterprise he did not found, his spirit abides where his name finds greatest honor.

With every passing year, the name of Goodyear rises higher, clearer.

Deservedly the greatest name in rubber in the beginning, through the work of the man, it is today no less deserv. y the greatest name in rubber through the work of the institution which followed the path he pioneered.

The name Goodyear is greatest in invention.

Look through the annals of the rubber industry's achievements, and on every important page for a quarter-century you will find record of Goodyear the institution's contribution to the art.

Goodyear invented the present straight-side tire.

Goodyear perfected the principle of cord tire construction underlying the high-mileage performance of automobile tires today.

Goodyear ingenuity fashioned the machines necessary to the production of this new construction.

Goodyear devised the All-Weather Tread, for maximum safety, traction, wear.

Goodyear pioneered the successful pneumatic cord truck tire.

Goodyear originated the Plant Analysis Plan of specifying rubber mechanical goods to the uses of industry.

Goodyear provided the indispensable rubber equipment for aeronautics in America, and itself established record after record in air navigation.

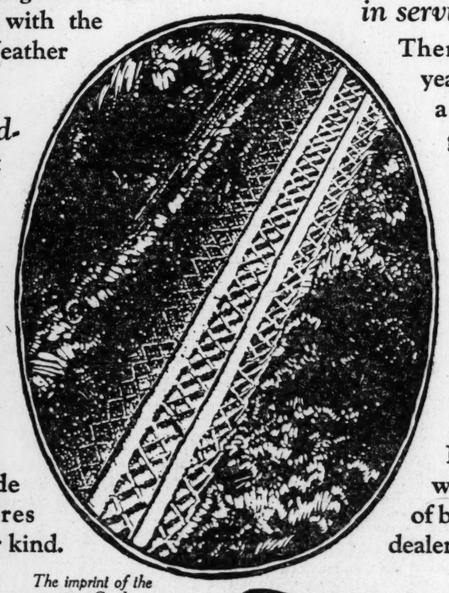
Goodyear developed SUPERTWIST, the extra-elastic, extra-durable cord fabric essential to the modern low-pressure tire.

Goodyear has just now announced the tractive, slow-wearing new Goodyear balloon tire with the new-type All-Weather Tread.

The name Goodyear is greatest in sales.

The measure of value in rubber may accurately be gauged by volume of sales, sustained public demand being the evidence of merit.

More people ride on Goodyear Tires than on any other kind.



The imprint of the new-type Goodyear All-Weather Tread

More people walk on Goodyear rubber heels than on any other kind.

More Goodyear rubber conveyor belting is used in industry than any other kind.

More Goodyear rubber equipment is supplied to commercial aviation and for national aeronautical defense than any other kind.

More Goodyear Tires—many millions more—have been made and placed in the service of motorists than any other kind.

More rubber is used by Goodyear—nearly one-seventh of all the crude rubber produced annually on the earth, almost 50% more than is used by any other manufacturer.

The name Goodyear is greatest in service.

There is in the Goodyear business method a fixed principle of the greatest service to the greatest number.

With the same care that it builds into its products the greatest possible value, Goodyear has provided the means to help users get all that value out.

It has covered the world with a network of branches, depots and dealer service stations for the prompt supply and expert servicing of Goodyear wares.

It has pledged its selected retail outlets to give the skilled assistance to owners that results in the enjoyment of the last ounce of usefulness built into the Goodyear product.

The name Goodyear is greatest in usefulness.

It is a fair statement to say that none of Goodyear's success has come to Goodyear unearned.

This is a young company—eager, alert, forward-looking—one of the youngest although it is the greatest rubber company of the world.

It has come along no royal road in its march to decisive leadership, but often through trial and travail like that which Charles Goodyear himself endured.

But it has had his conquering spirit in its heart.

And it has had the devoted service of thousands on thousands of loyal men who respond to that spirit.

And it has had the trust and good-will of the millions of people who have tested its work and word and found them worthy.

It will keep all these, because it knows whereof they spring.

In the beginning, by force of discovery, Goodyear was the greatest name in rubber.

By force of usefulness, to its own and to all people, Goodyear is the greatest name in rubber today.

Miss Betty Corby Becomes Bride Of William D. Hemenway Jr.

Ceremony Performed in Lovely Garden Settings on Terraced Lawn of Her Parents' Home on Price Road.

An altar of flowers at the foot of a broad sweep of green terraced lawn, with stately elm trees and madonna lilies as a natural background, gave the lovely setting for the wedding yesterday afternoon of Miss Betty Corby, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jerome B. Corby, of the Price road, and William Donaldson Hemenway Jr. As the wedding music, played by an organist supplemented by a stringed orchestra, was heard, the bridal party entered the garden from a pergola at the south entrance and walked into the sunlight to the steps leading to the marriage platform. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Francis J. O'Connor of Our Lady of Lourdes Church.

The bridal party presented a pretty tableau as they stood there, the bridesmaids in the rainbow shades of chiffon. Their gowns were in two-piece effect, with pin-tucked bodices and long sleeves, and trimmed simply with a chiffon drape caught at the left shoulder with a rhinestone pin. They wore large hairbraid hats with slippers to match and carried armfuls of spring flowers. The young women were Miss Mary Elise Lambert, Miss Ruth Curby, Miss Mary Frances Fisk, Miss Eugenia Howard and Miss Virginia Hemenway, sister of the bridegroom. Mrs. David Davis Walker III, the matron of honor, wore an imported frock of gold shaded chiffon and carried golden gate roses.

The bride wore a period gown of ivory satin with close fitting bodice and long tight sleeves, and a full shirred skirt cut in an uneven hemline. A long court train lined with georgette and tulle depended from her shoulders and was veiled in princess lace caught to her hair with a wreath of orange blossoms. She carried lilies of the valley, and wore as her only ornament a diamond bracelet, the gift of the bridegroom.

Palmer Clarkson Jr., was best man, and the groomsmen were D. D. Walker III, Edwin Wagner, Charles Rubicam, Kingman Lexington, Paul Gorisling, Rembert La Beaume and Frank S. Corby.

Mrs. Corby wore cream lace and chiffon with a hat of lace straw, and a corsage of orchids. Mrs. Hemenway was in a draped model of violet chiffon, with a hairbraid hat to match trimmed with fuschia toned flowers. A corsage of orchids completed the costume.

An out-of-door reception followed, with the guests scattered about the lawn, and at dusk the scene was illuminated by flood lights set in the nearby wood.

Mr. and Mrs. Hemenway have departed on a month's motor trip through Canada and the East, and in the fall they will occupy their new home in Picardy Lane, St. Louis County. The bride gave her attendants everning bags of pearls and rhinestones, and Mr. Hemenway presented the men of the party with fitted traveling cases.

Among the out-of-town guests were Mrs. Harry Lockman Street of Chicago, cousin of the bride; Mrs. Mary Maxwell of Indianapolis; Mrs. Herain Sweet of Chicago, and Mrs. Charles Buffum of Louisiana, Mo.

It was a pink wedding, with the chancel banked with baskets of pink roses, pink larkspur and snapdragons, against a background of palm. The bride's attendants, Miss Mary Delle Woods, Mrs. Randall Foster and Miss Beatrice Morse, were gowned in the same color with lace blouses and chiffon skirts. They carried arm bouquets of roses and larkspur. Miss Woods' gown was fashioned with a train, formed by sash ends and her flowers were roses and valley lilies. Immediately preceding the bride walked little Doris May Blanton, a cousin of Mr. Thomas, scattering rose petals pulled in the garden, as a pathway for the bride.

The bride wore ivory satin over flesh tinted silk, which gave a suggestion of a glow through the material. It was adorned with pearl-embroidered net, the long train, lined with pink chiffon and silver with trimmings of chantilly lace and orange blossoms, depending from an embroidered yoke. Her flowers were Easter lilies and she wore the groom's gift, a diamond and platinum bracelet. William T. Gives Concert in Paris.

Miss Carlota Kraus daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carlo Kraus, 3237 Longfellow boulevard, who is studying music in Paris, appeared Sunday, May 15, in a concert at the students Atelier reunions, Boulevard Montparnasse, Paris.

This young artist is somewhat of a rebel on the subject of the old masters and prefers to devote her youthful enthusiasm to the works of modern composers. Her playing of two groups by moderns was much applauded and warmly commented on for its dash and brilliance, as reported in Paris newspapers, and, as one critic put it, "for a musical intelligence quite unexpected in one so young."

FOR PERFECT PERMANENT WAVING

A tight or a loose Wave
-with Absolute Safety

More Circuline Waves are being given in America than all other systems of permanent waving combined . . . because women of fashion realize that not only is a Circuline Wave beautiful, naturally flowing, but it is, above all things, safe!

Circuline is absolutely free from lye, potash and ammonia—chemicals that are injurious to the hair structure. Circuline is gentle, too. It requires but seven minutes of temperate heat—100 degrees less than is required for a marcel wave!

But to be sure you are getting a Circuline Wave, make certain that your hairdresser uses authentic Circulines. You will recognize them—individually wrapped, and stamped "Nestle Circuline"—as she immerses one for each curl in clear, fresh water.

Because Circuline treats each head of hair according to its individual requirements, you may decide, in advance—from test curls made on your own head—just how tight, or loose, you wish your wave to be. With Circuline, you are assured in advance of perfect results! Write for booklet to:

Permanent Wave

There is distinction in an Estelle Permanent Wave that emphasizes your own individual type of charm and beauty. The trueness of the flat waves with the proper marcel effect rivals the natural wave. HELLRUNG & GRIMM

For greater cooking speed ...

Put Focused Heat on the job

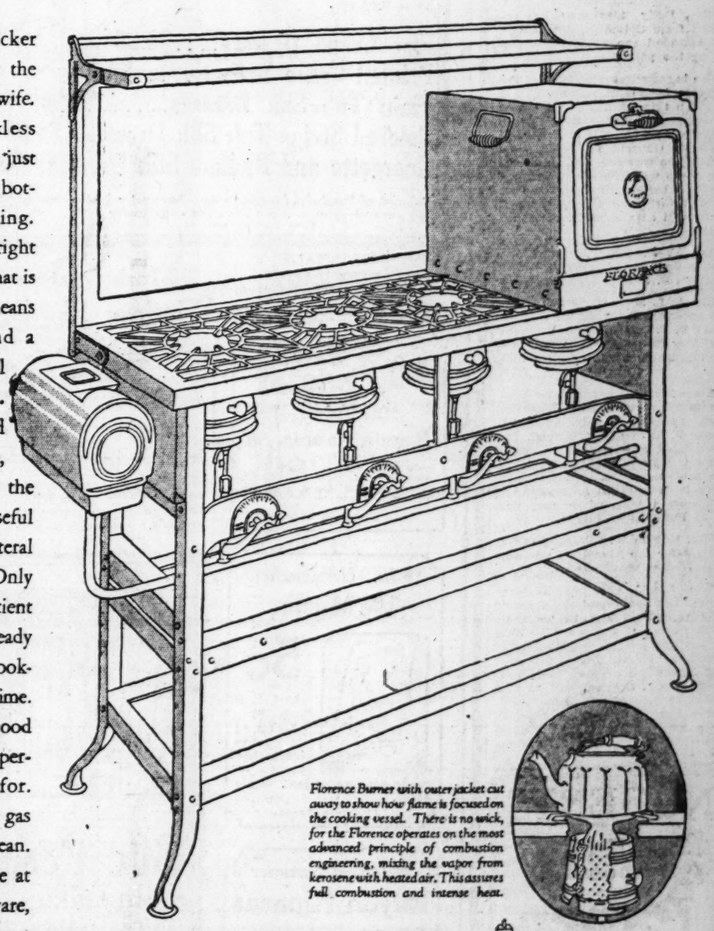
GRID-TOP MODEL WITH GIANT BURNER

Note the deep, roomy, all-grid top which runs the full depth of this stove. Cooking vessels may be freely moved about without danger of upsetting. Removable Florence Oven with baker's arch and patented heat spreader. Single Giant Burner heats the oven more evenly and more economically than two standard burners, leaving three burners free for top-stove cookery. In 3- or 4-burner sizes only. Other models in 2-, 3- and 4-burner sizes.

HERE is quicker cooking for the busy modern housewife. The short, wickless Florence burner is just 2½ inches from the bottom of the cooking. The heat is focused right on the cooking. That is why this stove means quicker meals and a kitchen always cool and comfortable. With the focused heat of the Florence, all the heat from the clear, gas flame is useful heat. There is no lateral heat, no waste heat. Only quick, willing, efficient heat, intensely hot, ready to do all kinds of cooking in double-quick time.

The Florence is good to look at, easy to operate, easy to care for. Lights as easily as a gas range. No wicks to clean. Inspect the Florence at your nearest hardware, furniture or department store.



Florence Burner with outer jacket cut away to show how flame is focused on the cooking vessel. There is no wick, for the Florence operates on the most advanced principle of combustion engineering, mixing the vapor from kerosene with heated air. This assures full combustion and intense heat.

A Clear Girlish Complexion

Skin that has become freckled, reddened or sunburned from the heated rays of the sun, can be easily cleared by using pure mercolized wax.

Procure an ounce from your druggist and use as directed. The wax absorbs the old discolored skin, removing freckles, tan, blackheads and all skin blemishes. With the disappearance of the outer cuticle, the underneath skin is revealed, clear, soft and smooth, with the velvety appearance and glowing cheeks of a young girl. Try it now. Mercolized wax brings out the hidden beauty.

Corns Stop hurting in 3 seconds

"Gets-It" the world's fastest corn ender

WORKS like magic on any kind of corn or callus, no matter how old, where it is, how bad it hurts. One touch and the pain goes. Almost unbelievable. Then the corn shrivels up and goes. FORTY-ONE TONS OF CLOTHING SHIPPED TO FLOOD SUFFERERS

Second Carload Collected By St. Louis Society to Be Loaded Tomorrow.

One carload of clothing collected by the St. Vincent de Paul Society of St. Louis was sent South last week for distribution among the Mississippi flood sufferers. A second car will be loaded tomorrow for early shipment, leaders of the society announced yesterday.

The clothing was collected at 80 sub-depots located throughout the city and transferred to a central station at Sixteenth and Pine streets for packing. The first carload contained 41 tons of clothing varying from infants' wear to the latest styles in feminine attire. Much of the clothing was practically new, a number of donations being delivered to the central station in the private automobiles of persons of wealth.

Although the collection was started by Archbishop Glennon, who sent a letter of appeal to all Catholic churches in the St. Louis Diocese last Sunday, public school children and Boy Scouts have assisted in delivering the clothing to the sub-depots. While the central station will be kept open indefinitely, it is the plan of leaders of the movement to close the sub-depots this week in order to relieve volunteer workers from further duty.

"The Man Who Married a Dumb Wife," a two-act comedy by Anatole France, was presented on the main quadrangle of Washington University last night by university alumni who had belonged to Thyrsus Dramatic Society, as part of the annual homecoming of alumni.

A satire, the comedy dealt with such topics as the high cost of living, servants, extravagance, fashions, pretended wisdom of the professions and loquacity of women. Colorful costumes of medieval design were worn by the actors, many of whom are known in the city's business and professional circles. Simple stage settings were used.

The cast follows:

Miss Poertner Directs Ballet.

Miss Poertner directed a ballet of seven young women. Miss Mignon Rosenthal was stage director. Mrs. Le Roy McMasters and Miss Josie Ryan handled properties, Carl Stoffregen arranged the lighting and Mrs. G. W. Lamke and Prof. Charles Hagenow provided music.

A reception by the faculty and a dance followed the play. Young women of the senior class served refreshments. Paper lanterns and the university colors decorated the quadrangle. The university orchestra played. Dr. Isaac Lippincott was chairman of homecoming arrangements.

There will be a baccalaureate service at Graham Memorial Chapel at 10 o'clock this morning. Tomorrow is class day, with various activities scheduled, and the annual dinner of the Associated Washington Alumni and Union will be held at Hotel Chase tomorrow night. With Senator Hawes and Dean Loeb of the school if business and public administration as speakers. The law alumni at the same time will gather at Century Boat Club.

At commencement exercises in the University Field House, at 10 a. m. Tuesday, Vice President Dawes will speak on "The New Diplomacy."

SAYS JEALOUSY CAUSED MATE TO SHOOT HER AND KILL SELF

Jealousy prompted Eugene Kaiser of Belleville to shoot his wife with a revolver and kill himself Friday midnight, Mrs. Kaiser said yesterday. Frequently, said Mrs. Kaiser, who is 23 years old, her husband showed his jealousy, and Friday night accused her without cause of being too friendly with a relative. When she disputed his assertion, he choked her, she said, and she started with their 2-year-old daughter, Bernice, to the nearby home of her parents.

Kaiser followed her from their home at 303 North Fortieth street, Belleville, firing three shots at her and then firing a bullet into his right temple which caused instant death. One bullet entered her left shoulder, but she was not injured seriously. Kaiser, 28, quit work as a coal miner when the coal strike began, April 1, and since had been employed to attend a natatorium lawn.

The Kaisers were married five years ago.

DRY AGENTS TAKE EXAMINATION, AND SO DO 100 OTHERS

Sit at School Desks, Just as They Did Years Ago, Questions Closely Guarded.

ONE WOMAN APPEARS TO TRY HER HAND

Grades of 70 or Above Required to "Pass"—Competition Is Simultaneous Over the Country.

The bootleggers missed a bet if they didn't have a lot of fun yesterday. All the prohibition agents were at school.

Along with more than a hundred applicants, who are trying to get their jobs, the Federal liquor sleuths of St. Louis and vicinity assembled at Roosevelt High School to take the competitive civil service examination required by a recent act of Congress.

For three or four hours they bent over their desks as they did in school days and wrote answers to hypothetical questions dealing with the problems dry agents have to face. When the questions, on printed sheets, were distributed at 9:15 a. m., 146 persons were in seats in the four classrooms set aside for the purpose.

The applicants, who ranged in age from 25 to 50, appeared to represent a wide variety of occupations. A dozen or more Negroes were in the group, and one woman came to try her hand at such questions as: "What would you do if you found an abandoned truck load of whisky on a lonely highway 20 miles from town at 9 o'clock at night?"

A pathetic figure was that of a man who had lost his glasses on the way to the school. He couldn't read without them and while others began the struggle with their papers, he paced up and down the corridor trying to borrow from all comers a pair of spectacles. He finally had to give it up.

Tests Are Nation-Wide.

The examination was open to all citizens of the United States who met the requirement of filing an application in Washington and presenting at the examining hall an identification card with photograph attached. The same test was given at all other district headquarters and at various other points designated throughout the country.

Passage of the written examination with a grade of 70 or above admits the applicant to the oral and character tests, to be given later, in which each applicant will be interviewed separately. Passage of these then permits present employes of the service to retain their jobs and makes new applicants eligible for consideration in the event of vacancies. The tests open the way to employment in any one of six grades—junior prohibition agent, at $1860 a year; prohibition agent, at $2400; junior prohibition investigator, at $2400; prohibition investigator, at $3000; punior alcohol and brewery inspector, $2400, and alcohol brewery inspector, $3000. There is no written examination for higher positions, such as those of administrators and zone supervisors.

Yesterday a separate written examination also was held for applicants for jobs as warehouse watchmen. Eleven men took this test, which was less difficult than the other.

Some Sample Questions.

Questions in the principal examination were closely guarded and the takers were warned against copying or divulging them. They came in two great sealed bundles from Washington and were opened in the presence of the applicants. After the test the question lists were collected and sent with the examination papers back to Washington, where the papers will be graded. Some sample questions, however, were announced as follows:

Sample 1. Which of these five is the best reason why fingerprints are a means of identification of criminals? (1) Fingerprints are easily obtained. (2) Fingerprints indicate the character of the individual. (3) Fingerprints are easily filed. (4) No two fingerprints are exactly alike. (5) Fingerprints may be obtained without the knowledge of the criminal.

Sample 2. An inspector of a bonded winery discovers that, on a large number of casks which were sealed for storage, the seals have been cut and glued together again. Which of the following is the best action for the inspector to take? (1) Have the seals examined to find out whether they are genuine. (2) Take a sample of the contents for a chemical test and then reseal the casks. (3) Weigh the casks to discover whether part of their contents has been removed. (4) Open the casks and, if they are full, have them resealed in his presence. (5) Open the casks and, if they are not full, have them destroyed.

Another part of the examination was the preparation by the applicant of a report of an investigation, such as a prohibition agent might make, from jumbled information supplied on the question sheet.

COUNTY SEWER LAW ATTACKED IN OUSTER SUIT

Action to Test Constitutionality of Statute Filed in Supreme Court by Attorney-General.

PLACES NO LIMIT ON BOARD'S SALARY

Litigation Names Webster Groves Supervisors as Defendants, Seeks Rejection of Appointees.

By the Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, June 4.—A suit to test the constitutionality of the Ralph Sewer district law for St. Louis County, passed by the 1927 Legislature, was filed in State Supreme Court yesterday by Assistant Attorney General Cunningham against the board of supervisors of Webster Groves, general sewer district number 1.

The bill was forced through the legislature, in the face of a hard fight in the lower House, where it was attacked as a "plum tree; every branch loaded with fruit awaiting the picking."

Representative A. C. Wilson, of St. Louis County, who led the fight on the bill, charged that it was loaded with jobs for lawyers and engineers, without limitation on the fees to be paid them. No limit was fixed on salaries to be paid by the board to its engineers and lawyers and the board was authorized to issue bonds without a vote of residents in the district.

The suit is in the form of a quo warranto proceeding to oust from office the three members of the board of supervisors, on the ground the law under which they were appointed is not valid. The supervisors are E. G. Curtis, George Barnett, and Joseph B. Ackfeld.

Another sewer district law for St. Louis County, also sponsored by State Senator Richard Ralph, of St. Louis County, was put through the 1925 Legislature, with somewhat similar provisions.

Former Law Invalid.

It was declared unconstitutional by the Supreme Court on the ground its provisions made it apply only to St. Louis County, contrary to the constitutional prohibition against local, or special legislation.

The petition filed by the Attorney-General charges the 1927 law is unconstitutional because it permits inclusion of parts of cities in such districts diminishing their corporate powers; that the title of the act is defective; that subjects residents of the district to taxation without proper hearings on assessments and reassessments; that is authorizes the board to issue bonds without approval of the two-thirds of the voters in the district, contrary to the constitution and authorizes issuance of bonds in excess of the limit of 5 per cent of the assessed valuation of property, fixed by the constitution. An emergency clause in the law, which made it effective as soon as Gov. Baker signed the bill on March 25, last, is attacked in the suit on the ground no emergency existed in St. Louis County, within the meaning of the constitutional provision covering emergency clauses in legislative acts.

Amendment Failed to Pass.

The Webster Groves general sewer district No. 1 was formed on May 16, last, after the bill became effective under the emergency clause. Without an emergency clause the bill would have become effective on July 3. The district was formed by a decree of St. Louis County Circuit Court, as provided in the law.

When the measure was pending in the Lower House, Representative Wilson and others, opposing the bill sought to amend it to place a limit on the fees and salaries that might be paid, to give the Circuit Court more discretion in determining if organization of a district was necessary; to provide for full hearing for objectors; and to require an election on proposals to issue bonds, instead of leaving the bond issues to the discretion of the Board of Supervisors.

The amendments were voted down by a combination of groups supporting several other bills following the sewer bill on the calendar.

He Now Owns 100-Foot Site There and Also 153 Feet Across Street, Available for Improvement.

SYNDICATE ALSO BUYS ON OLIVE

Land Formerly Occupied by Grand Av. Presbyterian Church Leased to Fox Film Corporation.

By Berry Moore.

Sidney M. Sroenberg yesterday bought 50x109 feet on the north side of Olive street, just west of Sixteenth street, owned by the Temple Realty Company, a holding corporation of Washington University. The plot adjoins the northwest corner of Sixteenth and Olive streets, 50x109 feet, which Shoenberg had previously acquired.

These acquisitions have an aggregate frontage of 100 feet on Olive, with a depth on Sixteenth of 109 feet. Negotiations for both purchases were handled by Thomas G. Watts.

The southwest corner of Sixteenth and Olive streets, 80x69 feet, and an adjoining 73x109 on Olive were purchased sometime ago by Shoenberg. These plots have a total frontage of 153 feet on Olive street by a depth on Sixteenth of 109 feet, which will be reduced to 80 feet when Olive street is widened. Watts also conducted the negotiations for these parcels. The corner was owned by the Dolph estate, and the inside plat held by Dr. Goebeler.

Amounts involved in the acquisition of the above mentioned corners were not made public. Titles to the parcels were taken in the name of the Sidney Realty Co., of which Shoenberg is president, and which was formed by the late Moses Shoenberg, vice-president of the May Department Stores Co., which operates the Famous-Barr Department Store.

With the adjoining ground acquired, these corners are now available for improvement on a large scale.

Old Church Site Leased.

The Sidney Real Estate Co. owns the site of the former Grand Avenue Presbyterian Church, on the west side of Grand boulevard, south of Washington boulevard, which, with ground on Washington, has been leased by the Fox Film Corporation for a new theater to be surmounted eventually with a 17-story office building. This site, which has 147 feet on Grand, was purchased 11 years ago by the late Col. Moses Shoenberg for about $200,000.

The lease to the Fox Film Corporation provides for an annual net rental of $60,000, or 5 per cent on a valuation of $1,200,000. When the new office and theater building is completed, Watts ventures the prediction that the fee to this property could be sold on a 4 per cent basis or $1,500,000.

The Fox Film Corporation, coincident with the acquisition of the 99-year lease from the Sidney Real Estate Co., purchased the adjoining Humboldt Building, a 6-story office structure, at the southwest corner of Grand boulevard and Washington avenue. The latter was owned by a syndicate composed of Marion S. Fuqua, Barney and Otto Dieckmann and Joseph Darst Jr., which had purchased it before the big uplift in prices on Grand boulevard.

Owns Victoria Building Fee.

The Sidney Real Estate Co. recently purchased the fee to the Victoria Building, Eighth and Locust streets, and its Olive street investments emphasize its faith in real estate in the business section of the city.

While the weather has had rather a demoralizing effect on real estate as a whole, returning both purchases and building operations, modificatiins are that activities will be resumed with vigor with the return of favorable conditions.

Contracts were concluded during the week for the purchase and the control through 99-year leases of several prominent downtown and uptown corners.

GIBSON REALTY COMPANY REPORTS TWO RECENT SALES

The John W. Gibson Realty Co. reports the following sales: 4722 McPherson avenue, 10-room brick residence, to a client; 3725 Bernard street for Hazel Green to a client.

FIRST NATIONAL CO. ENTERS REALTY FIELD

Forest K. Woodruff Chosen as Manager of Division to Bring Industries Here.

The First National Co., the investment division of the First National Bank, has established an estate department with Forest K. Woodruff as manager. Efforts of the new department will be concentrated largely in locating new industries in St. Louis. The leasing of business property will also be made a specialty. Woodruff, for the last seven years has been the Industrial Commissioner of the North Kansas City Development Co., which has been an important factor in industrial expansion in Kansas City.

Woodruff views St. Louis as the pivotal city of the Mississippi Valley, with the advantages of superior railroad facilities, comparatively low freight rates and favorable climatic conditions. Because of its dominant geographical position he believes St. Louis is the logical location for industries on a national scale. This applies especially to the territory embracing the southwestern states as well as the south, for which St. Louis is the most convenient source of supply.

Many Inquiries Made.

Several nationally known concerns have been in correspondence with the First National Co., with inquiries as to the advantages of St. Louis. In response to this the First National Co. established the new department, but more as a service department for the combined institutions—First National Co., First National Bank and St. Louis Union Trust Co.

The desirability of St. Louis as a location for new industries, and for investment in real estate, is shown in a book entitled "The Location of Business, Achievements in St. Louis," prepared by the Washington University in connection with the St. Louis Real Estate Exchange, which is bearing the cost of the publication.

The author of the book, which is now in the hands of the publishers, is Prof. Louis Francis Thomas, Phd. The book will be a survey and an analysis of industrial St. Louis, and is being issued as a guide to concerns seeking locatiins for plants.

The Melrose Apartments will be remodeled into 42 efficiency apartments.

W. B. SHELP & CO. CLOSE TWO APARTMENT SALES

W. B. Shelp and Co. announce the sale of two west-end apartment buildings and a flat building for a total consideration of $98,500.

Shelp to Fred Harris. 6683 Washington boulevard on the corner of Adelaide avenue, containing six apartments of six rooms each was sold to John W. Tomes, for the account of Joe Rotman. 6038 Pershing avenue, two-family apartment of eight and nine rooms was sold for a client of Hemmelmann-Spackler Real Estate Co.

CONTRACT LET FOR NEW FILTER HOUSE

Additions to Water Works Station at Howard's Bend to Cost Less Than Estimate

The contract recently has been awarded the Dunham Construction Co. for the filter and head house of the new Water Works Station at Howard's Bend on Missouri River. This is the third large contract recently let by the city from plans drawn by Study & Farrar, architects, and by the city's Water Department engineers. Much of the three large contracts have been let considerably below the estimates. The architects and the engineers have saved the city more than $300,000, having planned to obtain the results at the minimum cost.

The buildings, semi-monumental in character, are to be laid in rubble stone with Bedford stone trimmings. They are to be built in conformity with the style of the other buildings at Howard's Bend, now under construction.

The filter house is a large structure 232 feet long and 253 feet wide, containing 120 latest type filters for washing and cleaning the city's water. The head house, attached to the filter house, contains the laboratories of the city chemist, where analysis of the water is made daily. The laboratory has been laid out with the most up-to-date equipment, and will accomplish scientific experimenting with city water.

W. T. HARTWELL BANQUET GUEST OF HEMMELMAN CO.

W. T. Hartwell was given a banquet by the Hemmelman-Spackler Real Estate Co., Tuesday evening at the Missouri Athletic Club. The occasion was his retirement after twenty years service with the company as salesman and secretary. The entire personnel of the company was present. Theodore Hemmelman, president of the company, as toastmaster, presented Hartwell with a handsome watch and a knife on behalf the concern. Hartwell will depart shortly with his family for a tour of Europe.

The Hemmelman-Spackler company is one of the foremost concerns of its kind in the city, and as the source of large building loans, has been a factor in the physical development of the city. MORTGAGE TRUST CO. LEASES NEW OFFICES

Real Estate Banking Firm Will Move to the Telephone Building.

A lease on two units of the northeast corner of the new Telephone Building, together with the mezzanine space above, has been signed by the Real Estate Mortgage Trust Co., which will occupy the space on or about Sept. 1.

The company, which deals in real estate, first mortgages and bonds, was organized in 1924 under the banking laws of Missouri and took two small offices in the Federal Commerce Trust Building. The first move of a sound policy was to elect 15 directors, prominent authorities on banking, construction or real estate, to approve every loan. In three years the firm was occupying half of the twelfth floor.

The company was organized to meet the demand for a completely equipped mortgage bank, specializing in loans on improved city real estate in St. Louis and the growing south and west. The original cash capital of $200,000 was increased to $600,000 in October, 1925. Agencies are now maintained in Kansas City, Dallas, San Antonio and other cities of the South and West. The company is exclusive representative of five large life insurance companies.

Members of the present board of directors are Paul Bakewell Jr., Harland Bartholomew, Albert E. Black, Herman W. Donforth, Lionberger Davis, James L. Ford Jr., Repps B. Goodson, Lewis S. Haslam, James C. Jones, Lawrence E. Mahan, M. H. Rodemeyer, Boyle O. Rodes, E. J. Russell, Geo. F. Steedman and W. L. Wimmer.

One of the main objects in selecting the Telephone Building as the new home of the company was to take advantage of its proximity to the offices of title examiners and real estate companies and to the City Hall and shopping district.

Extensive alterations will be begun at once. The lease on the space was closed by Isaac T. Cook & Co., Inc., agents for the Telephone Building.

ST. LOUIS TRAFFIC INCREASES 100 TO 900 PCT. IN 11 YEARS

Comparison of traffic crossing important viaducts in the city in 1916 with the present volume, demonstates the great growth of vehicular movement. Viaducts, City Traffic Engineer Hoffmann pointed out, afford a chance to study through traffic, unmixed with local movement as on open streets. The figures, for daily number of vehicles:

Viaduct	1916	1927
Grand boulevard	3850	10,350
Jefferson avenue	1929	3670
Twelfth boulevard	2330	8245
Compton avenue	853	3640

Comparison on main streets between 1916 and 1927 traffic, show increases of 100 to 900 per cent. Chouteau avenue, at Grand boulevard, for instance, rose from 621 vehicles a day to 6400. Market street, west of Grand boulevard, showed a decrease because of the paving of Forest Park avenue.

The daily traffic at the Wabash Railway-Delmar boulevard grade crossing was 358 vehicles in 1909, but now it is 990 per hour during the day. Plans are under way for a viaduct there, following withdrawal of Wabash opposition. Daily traffic over the Rock Island grade crossing at Skinker boulevard during day hours is 15,500, compared with 855 in 1909. This is 950 per hour, or almost as heavy as at the Delmar crossing. On Sunday, the Skinker traffic rises to more than 1000 hourly, and even between 6 p. m. and midnight averages 920 every hour.

Constructive Ideas on Materials Methods and Home Plans

ST. LOUIS IS CREDITED WITH 128,731 HOUSES

New York Leads With 398,899; Philadelphia is Second and St. Louis Seventh.

As far as concerns congestion of population in residences in this country, greater New York occupies first position and St. Louis fourth according to figures compiled by the Longacre Engineering and Construction Co., in a survey of real estate and building conditions in the leading cities of the United States.

Los Angeles and Chicago occupy second and third places in regard to congestion of population in residences. St. Louis occupies fourth place, followed by Philadelphia and Baltimore.

According to the survey in the 25 leading cities of the country there are now 2,946,229 dwellings, assuming that the number of residences has increased since the last census in the same proportion as the population.

Robert Beck, president of the Longacre Co., in discussing the findings says: "Greater New York has 398,899 dwellings. Chicago, second in population, has about 46,000 fewer dwellings than Philadelphia, which is the third metropolis in respect to the aggregate of inhabitants.

"After Chicago came Detroit with 167,994 dwellings, Baltimore with 148,293 and Los Angeles with 136,254. This makes the California city sixth on the list, although it is fourth in point of population. St Louis stands seventh with 128,731.

"An apartment house is considered as one dwelling, although it may shelter hundreds of tenants, and the total are made up on the basis of population gains."

NEW TYPE OF HOUSE IS BUILT FOR L. W. THOMSON

The house recently completed for Louis W. Thomson on Wydown boulevard, opposite DeMun, is an adaptation of St. Louis' native architecture to modern needs. The precedent for the gable ends is to be found on most of the old houses still standing anywhere east of Broadway.

Beyond the entrance vestibule is a circular hall lighted from a domed skylight, in which a stairway curves to the second floor, and beyond this, through the brick-paved garden room, lies a square formal city garden, backed by a high trellised well. To the right of the hall, through a high pedimented door, is a long white drawing room, designed as a background for Mrs. Thomson's collection of early American furniture, and to the left, the dining room with a bay window for flowering plants, and a pantry and kitchen. On the second floor, opening from a circular gallery are four main sleeping rooms and two baths, and on the third, reached by a stairway of its own, is a kind of ship's dormitory and study for boys. Ralph Cole Hall and Victor Proetz were the architects.

JOHN A. WATKINS CO. SELLS FLAT ON SHAWMUT PLACE

John A. Watkins & Co. reports the sale of a four-family brick flat building at 1344-46 Shawmut place sold for Max and Beckie Goldman and A. Louis and Ruth Goldman to Sophie Greenspoon, consideration $14,000.

The company also reports the following loans: $25 on two flats on Enright, near Whittier; $2700 on residence on Finney avenue, near Grand boulevard; $3000 on two flats on Evans avenue, near Sarah street; $5000 on two flats on Suburban avenue, near Hodiamont; $6500 on three houses on Hebert street, near Twentieth street; $7000 on four flats on Shawmut place, near Ridge; $9000 on two stores on Delmar boulevard, near Walton; $10,000 on four flats on Belt avenue, near Ridge; $10,000 on eight three-room flats on Cote Brilliante avenue, near Clara; $12,500 on six apartments on Westminster, near Laurel.

Living Room Combination Features This Bungalow

The Chimney in the Front Is Handled With a Great Amount of Individuality and the Entrance Is Picturesque.

Bungalows have suffered more perhaps from poor design than any other type of residence. The one, illustrated here, however, is such as to make one wish that all houses were bungalows.

This house is most charming and is a good solution of the problem of getting beauty into the small house. The interior is just as distinctive as the exterior.

The chimney in the front is handled with a great amount of individuality. The large pots at the entrance are charmingly picturesque.

French doors open onto the terrace in front from the large living room. This is an interesting feature of design. The arched entrance to the loggia and the triple arcade are unique as well as characteristic of the style. As one enters from the loggia into the living room one cannot help being pleased with the interior fenistration. The large fireplace sets in the front wall balanced by a pair of French doors on each side. A coat closet is a convenient feature, and a door opens from the living room to a small hall at the rear.

A large plaster arch connects the living and dining rooms, while the sunroom is in front of the dining room. The connection of these three rooms gives the impression of spaciousness as well as roominess. It also allows freedom of ventilation. The sunroom is an efficient type of room because it is designed with a bed closet. The maximum amount of air and sunshine can come through the large windows. The rear of the house is devoted to the service and bedroom. The kitchen is directly connected with the dining room and the sink and icebox are recessed from the kitchen in a desirable way. Built-in cases are a nice feature of the planning. The room has cross ventilation as well as vent for the kitchen stove.

A bedroom is reached by passing through a short hall from the kitchen. It is a moderately large bedroom and is well lighted and ventilated by a double window. A large closet for the room sets over the stairs to the basement. This room opens into a small hall, which has been previously spoken of. There is a small linen closet in this hall and another bedroom and bath opens from this little hall. The bedroom has windows which permit cross ventilation. A large closet is a desirable feature.

The basement is equipped with a laundry and all the fixtures desirable in a modernly equipped home.

The house is suitable for either an inside or corner lot, though it would require a 60-foot plot to enable its full beauty to be seen.

Further information concerning this bungalow plan (No. 6-B-203) can be obtained by writing to the Building Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

SANITARY TILED KITCHENS

To Have One Is to Appreciate Its Neatness and Efficiency.

Because tiled floors and walls are clean and easy to keep clean, and because they are attractive in an unobtrusive and restful way they are the proper thing for the kitchen, where ordinarily so much cleaning has to be done every day. A few minutes of attention cleans tiles and restores their proverbial newness.

Tiling the kitchen contributes to the peace of mind of the woman who has to be in it at least part of every day, and increases the selling value of the property.

The tiled kitchen is an attraction to servants also, of whom the desirable know the proper thing and prefer employment where equipment is of the best.

Tile comes in an almost inexhaustible variety of textures, colors and designs. From rich, dark color-tones to gleaming pastel shades there are tiles to beautify every room of the home.

Advice to Home Builders.

Before you build or buy is the time to make sure your house will be comfortable and saving of fuel. You can paint or remodel later, but comfort and fuel saving must be built in.

If your window frames are not accurately made, your home will be uncomfortable. Unless each part fits exactly the frame permits cold air to enter the house.

Plant a Shrub Border.

Few improvements add more to a residence than planting a shrub border along the street and the property lines. These hedges may be used on large lots or small lots and when carefully trimmed and attended to they add to the attractive appearance of the home and to the valuation of the property.

An Improvement Hint.

You can give that porch floor a handsome appearance by laying an interior rectangle of tile-red concrete.

Modern Home Construction Includes Waterproofing

Proper Precaution in Using Waterproofing When Building a Home Will Prevent Wet Walls and Damp Basements.

Householders and prospective house owners have had brought home to them, during the past several weeks, the necessity of having waterproof houses and basements, waterproof roofs and waterproof walls.

Suggestions on waterproofing houses should be appreciated at this time and in line with this reasoning, William H. Eaton, a local waterproofing expert, has outlined in the following article the main points in waterproofing houses.

In waterproofing homes, the main uses come in waterproofing the basements, because as a general rule that is where people have the most trouble.

There are numerous ways of waterproofing basements. One of the best is the integral method of waterproofing. By this method a certain amount of waterproofing is mixed in with the concrete at the time of pouring the basement walls and basement floor slabs. In this way sufficient water repellency is provided to overcome the capillary attraction of the concrete.

Quite frequently people do not realize that waterproofing is necessary until after the house is built, then it is too late to use the first method of waterproofing. There are two practical methods that can be used at this time. One of the main ways is by applying a brush coat of bitumen paint on the outside of basement walls below the grade line. Have this extend about three inches above the ground. This will keep out any water which is trying to force its way through the concrete. The paint being applied on the outside masonry is reinforced by the concrete to which it is applied, and in that way water cannot displace the paint.

Another method that can be used and which will give a smooth surface on the inside walls, would be to take waterproofing and mix it with the cement, or better, take a waterproofed cement and give the inner wall of the basement a plaster coat of two coats, each three-eighths inch thick. In this way a smooth interior wall will be obtained. Waterproofed cement plaster three-quarter inch thick is enough to withstand a head of water or any seepage water that may be trying to work its way into the basement.

In using the latter method it is necessary to prepare the wall surface for the plaster coat. First, hack the wall and make sure it has a good rough surface, so the plaster can stick to the wall. After making it rough, go over the wall with a wire brush, removing all the film which was left there by the cement and water when the concrete wall was poured.

After this operation go over the wall with a wash of one part muriatic acid and 10 parts of water, using a fiber or acid brush. Allow the acid solution to remain until the acid exhausts itself, approximately 10 minutes. Then wash the surface with water from a hose, being careful to remove all the acid solution.

Follow the wash with a mixture of cement and water, mixed to a cream-like consistency, working this well into the holes and crevices in the wall, going over the entire surface with this grout. Before the grout has had a chance to dry, go over the wall and put on the first coat of waterproofed cement ⅜ inch thick.

The first coat should be scratched with a "scratcher"—do not use nails or trowel and do not scratch too deep.

As soon as the first coat has set hard enough, sprinkle with water and apply the second coat ⅜ inch thick. Trowel the plaster with sufficient pressure to obtain maximum density to close the surface pores, leaving a tight, close-grained finish.

The final coat should be troweled down to whatever finish is desired, using an ordinary wood float will give a satisfactory surface.

The proper mixture to use on the cement plaster is one part waterproofed cement, and 2½ parts sand. If it is not possible to get the waterproofed cement, the waterproofing powder should be mixed in the proportion of two pounds waterproofing powder to one sack of cement.

If the waterproofing powder is mixed in the cement on the job, the best way to see that the waterproofing powder is incorporated thoroughly with the cement and sand, is to dampen the sand before adding the cement and waterproofing. Mixing in this way, the waterproofing powder will not separate and come to the surface of the water. The material should be mixed to a stiff, workable consistency, adding the water slowly, using the minimum volume of water necessary to get a plastic mix.

The above methods of waterproofing basements are generally used at the present time and they are giving the utmost satisfaction.

As a final caution, if the person who is contemplating building would see that waterproofed cement was used in the basement walls, he would find that there would be a great deal less grief and extra work encountered at a later date.

LIGHTING THE KITCHEN

A Poorly Lighted Kitchen Affects the Cook's Nerves.

Let us look to the lighting in the kitchen.

Lighting engineers recommend deep bowl or indirect lighting, or porcelain enamel steel reflectors. This may sound too pretentious for a home kitchen, but this type of lamp may be procured for small rooms as well as for large.

Remember that the color of the wall finish has something to do with lighting. If your kitchen is in a so-called modern apartment house with no outside windows, or a very small one, white gloss has the highest reflecting value, with flat white and cream and silver gray next in order. If, on the other hand, you have a sunny, well lighted kitchen, choose a good wall finish as for example light gray or buff.

To return to the matter of lighting. Take first the question of waste.

No one can work under an inefficient lighting system without feeling excessive fatigue, eyestrain and nervousness. When the mistress of the home laboratory suffers from any one or all of these handicaps, it is unavoidable that the quality of the food will suffer. She cannot properly prepare even the daintiest food, and it is an easy matter to trace the final results. Good spirits may be the first to suffer; digestion will presumably flag, and practically everyone knows what incomplete digestion will do if it continues over any considerable period of time.

Aged One Thousand Years.

The durability of hardwood is excellently illustrated by a redwood log which has recently been cut up into lumber in California. The log which had lain on the ground for a thousand years, as proved by the annual rings in a tree that had grown up astraddle of the log, was cut up into sound and useful lumber within the past few months.

Garden Walls and Vines.

The householrer who is planning to surround his lot with a wall covered with vines is reminded the best kind of garden wall is one with cracks and crannies. Into these one need only rub some fine soil, sow the seeds and cover them with earth so that the birds will not readily make away with them. Nature pretty will takes care of the rest.

For Bridegrooms.

Now that the month of weddings is near there is something a prospective groom can promise his bride-to-be which will prove the best of all gifts, a home.

Besides the money valuation put upon the house itself, aside from the investment features, nothing could be sounder or more wholesome for a young man than to set before him, as a fixed aim, the accumulation of a home building fund. It will balance and steady him; it will make more of a man out of him; it will make him a better husband, father, citizen, friend.

MAKE KIRKWOOD YOUR HOME
The natural beauty of KIRKWOOD, lying on the outskirts of the city, away from the smoke and din of commercial enterprise, with attractive homes, old and new, set in the midst of the shrubs and trees that form its environs, the schools of all grades for your children, surpassed by none, with a competent corps of teachers, the progressiveness of the city, foster a wholesome, democratic life free from the soft drink saloon and dance halls, all invites the homeseekers to look to Kirkwood for their future home in preference to all others. We will be pleased to have you call or come out to KIRKWOOD and let one of our representatives show you our city and the homes we have to offer.

WHAT THE FAMILY WANTS

Mother wants beauty in house and garden, safety for self and children, and nice neighbors to associate with. Also shopping and marketing convenience, nearby transportation, churches and schools. And above all, a new home easy to housekeep, and preferably all on one floor. The children want air, light and sunshine, other children to play with, and the best of amusements, such as motion pictures, boy scouts, etc. All of these requirements are provided in Pasadena Park, that beautiful and exclusive residential park where you can select a 5, 6 or 7 room bungalow to meet your ideals at a reasonable price. See the furnished display bungalow at 810 North Hills Drive.

TWO WOMEN TAKE STAND AT INQUIRY ON ENSIGN'S DEATH

Naval Board Seeks Additional Facts After Previous Verdict of Drowning.

By the Associated Press.

SAN PEDRO, Cal., June 4.—The inquiry by a naval board into the death of Ensign Julian J. McShane, whose body was found by divers in the harbor here last October, will be resumed Monday on the high seas. The U. S. S. Tennessee, aboard which the board is sitting, will sail at midnight Sunday for San Francisco.

Miss Lorena Lynd and Miss Hope Murphy, both of Long Beach, one of whom was said to have been well acquainted with McShane testified today. Both previously told interviewers two officers came to their apartment looking for the ensign shortly after his disappearance and before his body was found. The officers told them McShane had left an officers' party at a yacht club with another officer, who returned to the Tennessee about 6:30 the morning the ensign was seen last. McShane's face, the women said the two officers told them, bore evidence of a fight.

Attorneys for Mrs. Maria McShane of Ellicott City, Md., mother of McShane, at whose instance the second investigation was begun, also took the stand. Mrs. McShane was dissatisfied with the court's original finding that the ensign drowned accidentally.

KILLS MAN THEN ENDS LIVES OF DIVORCED WIFE AND SELF

GRANTSBURG, Wis., June 4.—After killing Lester Anderson, 27 years old, a railroad telegrapher, John Erickson, 40, today went to the home of his divorced wife, shot and killed her in the presence of their 7-year-old son and then killed himself.

Mrs. Erickson obtained a divorce, charging desertion, last April.

Erickson killed Anderson at the Northern Pacific Railroad station. At the home of his former wife, where he forced an entrance through a window, he shot and killed her as she attempted to telephone to the Sheriff for help. Mrs. Erickson had warned the Sheriff some days ago that she feared violence at the hands of Erickson.

Lost Boy Found Dead in Airshaft.

NEW YORK, June 4.—Otto Paolini, 17 years old, plunged to his death six months ago in the heart of teeming Manhattan, but had the tragedy occurred on a lonely peak in the Alps, the mystery could not have been deeper. William Smith, janitor in a tenement, yesterday spaded into a pile of debris in an airshaft. It was then that the disappearance of Paolini, reported to the police Nov. 11 last by his father, was cleared.

up to 564,000 persons and by the time the flood has passed out of Louisiana the total will be more than 600,000."

From Little Rock, Secretary Hoover will go to Jackson, Miss., Vicksburg, Miss., and then to Alexandria, Lafayette and Monroe, all in Louisiana, to complete his survey of the flood damage and reconstruction needs. When his work is finished, he will submit his report to President Coolidge. He will stay on the relief job until it is finished, he said.

Robert E. Bondy of Memphis, acting chief of rehabilitation of the Red Cross, will attend the meeting at Hotel Statler this afternoon in place of Earl Kilpatrick, who was killed in an airplane crash near Baton Rouge, La., Monday. Kilpatrick had his headquarters at the Midwest Division offices here and lived in Webster Groves.

MANUFACTURER'S SONS TAKEN AWAY BY THEIR MOTHER

Court Gave Divorced Wife of Nashville Man Custody of Boys, Detectives Say.

By the Associated Press.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., June 4.—The bundling into into an automobile of George, 6 years old, and Lehman Keith, 4, sons of George Keith, manufacturer, was interpreted by private detectives tonight as a mother's successful move for recovery of her children.

The mother, Mrs. Horace D. Jackson, formerly of Hollywood, Cal., was said to have been acting under a court order. If so, it was issued in another state, and Keith never was served, it was said, Mrs. Jackson is Keith's divorced wife.

Alex Bartnell, head of the Bartnell detective agency, told newspaper men Henry Pierce, an investigator, had accompanied Mrs. Jackson and another woman to the Keith home to protect them in their efforts to see the children. There was no kidnaping involved, he asserted. A warrant for Pierce's arrest was issued.

Alfred S. Levine, attorney for Keith, said the couple had been divorced in another state with no provision for custody of the children. The mother took them for a while, he understood, turning them over to her family who in turn delivered the boys to their father. He was given permanent custody under a decree by Judge Barton Brown of Nashville Juvenile Court in April, Levine said.

Mrs. Keith, the stepmother, said she saw the boys, screaming and struggling, being put into the car. When she leaped on the running board and endeavored to seize them, some one cried, "Push her off," she said. After riding a short distance, she said, she was shoved to the ground.

$1,000,000 FIRE RAZES 23 BUILDINGS IN MONTGOMERY, ALA

Four Men Injured in Blaze Brought Under Control by the Use of Dynamite.

By the Associated Press.

MONTGOMERY, Ala., June 4.—Twenty-three downtown buildings were destroyed and 11 damaged by fire here late today at a loss estimated at more than $1,000,000. Four men, Arthur Johnson, George Wilson, M. W. Kimbrough and J. W. Willbanks, were injured, but not seriously.

The flames started in a pile of rags in a junk yard near the Cudahy Packing Co.'s building on Commerce street and for a time threatened the wholesale district. After destroying buildings on the west side of the street, the flames leaped across, burned the Imperial Hotel and continued east, destroying stores on Bibb street from Commerce to Lee.

Dynamite was used to bring the fire under control. The fire departments of Birmingham, Mobile, Opelika, Wetumpka and Selma sent detachments of men with equipment. Soldiers from Maxwell Field, the Army flying field near Montgomery, aided local firemen.

The top of the City Hall caught fire from flying sparks, but the blaze was extinguished. The building occupied by the Western Union was damaged and the company's employes forced to vacate. Prisoners were taken fro mthe city jail for safety. The Gay Teage Hotel was damaged by smoke and water.

COOLIDGE VACATION TO COST SOUTH DAKOTA $200 A DAY

Private Citizen Holds Lease on Game Lodge and Tract Which President Will Occupy.

By the Associated Press.

SIOUX FALLS, S. D., June 4.—President Coolidge, as a guest of South Dakota while on his summer vacation, will cost the State $200 a day rent for its own property, the State Game Lodge, near Rapid City, S. D.

The State Game Lodge was built by the State on a tract comprising about 125,000 acres. But soon after the fine lodge was completed, the whole tract was leased to a private citizen who still holds his lease.

South Dakota fishing licenses today were sent to Washington for President and Mrs. Coolidge by Mrs. Caryll Hoffman, Deputy Game Warden and one of the few women game wardens in the United States. The licenses, issued for the period the President will spend in the Black Hills at the summer White House, gives the Coolidge's free rein to angle in the trout streams and lakes of the region. Assurances that generous catches will reward their efforts is implied in its issuance, Mrs. Hoffman said.

THREE DIE IN PLANE CRASH

Student Flyer and Two Friends Killed at Fort Worth.

By the Associated Press.

FORT WORTH, Tex., June 4.—The impetuosity and inexperience of youth, eager for a thrill, was blamed for the airplane tragedy near here today which killed three Fort Worth young men.

Marvin Johnson, 24 years old, Kearney Wright, 21, and Harry Cozby, 21, were burned to death when the airplane in which they were riding went into a tail spin at a height of about 600 feet and plunged to earth, bursting into flames as the gasoline tank exploded. Johnson, who was piloting the plane, had been a student of flying under George Bischoff, owner of the plane, for several months, had taken passengers aloft a number of times, but could not be termed experienced, Bischoff said. Wright and Cozby were friends of Johnson. Bischoff said he had warned Johnson, who had done repair work on the plane during the morning not to fly the machine, and had even removed some of the engine parts, which evidently had been replaced to make the plane fly.

NEW YORK'S FIRST GREAT SKYSCRAPER FIRE

Painted by Leo Kober

THIS painting is an artist's impression of the recent blaze which burned out the scaffolding of the thirty-eight story tower of the nearly completed New Netherland Apartment Hotel at Fifth avenue and Fifty-Ninth street, New York. It was the first big conflagration in a New York skyscraper. The fire, because of its altitude, was inaccessible to fire apparatus; it finally burned itself out after showering the surrounding streets and rooftops with cinders and sparks for ten hours. Perhaps the most spectacular blaze in the history of New York City, the damage relatively was little, confined as it was by the Fire Department to the scaffolding and the tower.

THE DANCE of LIFE OVER for MAURICE

Maurice and his last wife, who was Eleanora Ambrose of Kansas City.

NEW YORK.

THE dance of life has come to an end for Maurice.

Having found his ideal in his fifth dancing partner, Eleanora Ambrose, whom he made his second wife, Maurice died a few days ago in a Swiss tubercular resort after less than a year of life with her.

"The girl whom I dreamed about. The girl whom I sought for 20 years," Maurice said of her.

All his life Maurice danced. Three continents knew his lithe, swiftly moving body, his flashing patent leather-shod feet. At Sheppard's Hotel in Cairo, or the Trocadero in New York, the Kit-Kat in London, or the Cafe de Madrid in Paris, it was all the same to Maurice. He danced.

And he searched, too, for a partner. One was married, another developed temperament, he quarreled with a third. And so on and on. Until he met Eleanora Ambrose, whose real name was Pucket and whose horizon was bounded by the Main Street of Newton, Kansas, until she went away to become a dancer.

MAURICE danced first to the noisy rhythms of a hurdy-gurdy in New York's East Side, while passersby pitched pennies at him. Few ever knew that he was born in a tenement to Belgian immigrant parents whose name was Mouvet.

It is difficult to trace his fame to its origin. He attended school for a time in New York, later entering Chatham College at Rochester, England. He then went to Paris, became a page in a hotel and at the Automobile Club, then a chauffeur and finally emerged at 18 as Maurice, the dancer, in the Montmartre in Paris.

It was not long before his swift, grace won him some measure of notice throughout Continental Europe. He danced in Paris, Vienna and Monte Carlo, all the time acquiring that urbane polish that distinguished him, leaving farther and farther behind the sidewalks of New York and the tenement house of his boyhood.

Maurice came to New York in the early days of the tango, when the Vernon Castles were demonstrating the grapevine; the camel walk was considered vulgar and the Charleston and Blackbottom were still restricted to Beale street, Memphis, and points south.

He brought with him as his partner Madelaide, a French dancer, and together they tangoed at Louis Martin's restaurant. New York took them up in its own sudden, miraculous fashion. Their success was immediate. He taught the smart set the complicated new steps. And his fees were high.

Thereafter it is not difficult to follow the succeeding steps in Maurice's career. They are marked by five lovely women, each one distinguished in her own particular fashion. And the last one was the Kansas girl, with whom Maurice avowed he could dance forever.

Joan Sawyer was the first choice. She was a striking brunette type, with a clear, firmly molded profile. For a time everything was perfect. Nightly the crowds increased, and so did the salary checks. Maurice and Joan were a sensation, a riot.

And then Joan Sawyer was married. She added a breach of promise suit or two for good measure. But it was all the same to Maurice, because she stopped dancing.

Maurice was out of a partner. Out of a job, too. For he couldn't dance alone very well.

Florence Walton was the next choice. She was rather darker than Joan Sawyer, more of a Latin type, and she already had something of a reputation as a dancer. Maurice taught her a great deal more, gave her a long and arduous training.

Joan Sawyer's marriage had been discouraging and Maurice began to wonder what would happen if he should lose another partner in the same way. To remove all doubt, he married her himself.

Maurice and Florence achieved a success that outshadowed that of Maurice and Joan. The dance craze was just getting a fairly good start and Maurice was its principal prophet.

BUT even marriage didn't assure Maurice of a partner. It seemed that he wasn't so ideal a husband as he had been a dancing partner. At any rate, Florence Walton divorced him. The divorce would have been easier to accept if it hadn't meant an end of the team, "Maurice and Florence." But it did, for Florence wanted to marry another man. And again Maurice faced the world without a means of livelihood.

An interlude followed when he wore for a while the uniform of an ambulance driver with a French unit, but still found time, it is said, to dance off and on with various partners at the Ritz-Carleton in Paris.

Maurice's greatest post-war problem was to find a new dancing partner. He tried modern advertising methods, and flocks of ambitious girls appeared before him, danced with him, and left disappointed.

It was by the sheerest good fortune—or so it seemed at the time—that he met Leonora Hughes of Brooklyn. She had no reputation on the stage—or at best only a slight one—but the very fact that she was Maurice's partner was enough. Many of Maurice's followers thought that she was lovelier than either Florence or Joan. She was small, with bobbed hair, very much in the modern manner, and she wore clothes with distinction. Too, she was an exceedingly clever dancer.

The fame that had been Maurice and Joan's, Maurice and Florence's, now became Maurice and Leonora's. They danced all over Europe, St. Mortiz, Biarritz, Paris, Montreaux, the Riviera, Deauville and in New York.

For five years they danced, and their contracts are said to have grown fabulously larger.

But just as Maurice had begun to believe that he had found the ideal partner, his worries at an end forever, Leonora met in Paris a millionaire from the Argentine, one of those suave, handsome gentlemen whose lives seem to be divided between the Ritz in Paris and the Riviera with occasional interruptions to return for refinancing from the family coffers.

This particular Argentine millionaire's name was Carlos Ortis Basualdo. As before, the blow fell just as Maurice had begun to feel most secure. Shortly after meeting Carlos, Leonora called Maurice up to tell him to come right over to St. Patrick's Cathedral if he wanted to see her married. Carlos, it seemed, had followed them to New York on the next boat.

Maurice wept, the eye-witnesses reported. So did Leonora. And, incongruously enough, Leonora and Maurice drove off together after the ceremony, leaving Carlos to follow in a taxicab.

Maurice saw them off for Paris, watching the work of five years slip away. As if this wasn't enough, illness followed and for a while Maurice's name almost slipped out of notice. Almost, but not quite, for there was always an excellent publicity agent in the background. And, too, he was named as co-respondent by Lord Furness, who sought to divorce his wife, Fay Marx, an actress.

NUMBER FOUR in the series was Barbara Bennett, the daughter of Richard Bennett, the actor. Again Maurice sought to take a comparative unknown and raise her from obscurity by the glamor of his name. Barbara was still another type, dark, too, but very youthful and fresh looking, almost childlike in appearance, with a mass of wavy bobbed hair.

The whole process repeated itself. The training. The contracts. The publicity. The preliminary tour of Europe.

Quite early Barbara showed signs of temperament. She cabled her mother, who is also an actress, from Paris as follows:

"Mother dear, I'm so lonesome. Maurice is rehearsing me to death. I'm unnerved and tired of it all. If you don't come I shall probably commit suicide. I can endure this no longer."

Mrs. Bennett said she didn't believe Barbara really intended to commit suicide, but nevertheless she left the play in which she was acting and went to Paris. And as a result Barbara kept on dancing.

They were about to open at the Club Lido in New York, Maurice and Barbara this time, when suddenly everything went wrong. Barbara said she had heard he was rehearsing with another partner. Her professional pride could never stand that. New York was never to see Maurice and Barbara.

By this time Maurice was getting pretty well discouraged. The only thing he could do was dance. And he could do that very well. But it began to look as though he would never find anyone who would dance with him for very long at a time. Although by this time he was quite adept at it, training new partners was expensive and something of a bore.

There were other women in his life, but no dancing partners. Desultory little incidents that crept into the news, a reported engagement to Suzanne Lenglen, the tennis star, which was probably only another one of the many stories that circulated about Maurice from time to time. With Eleanora Ambrose it was different from the start. In the first place she was blonde and all Maurice's other partners had been brunettes. She was tall, lithe and marvelously graceful. She adapted herself to his steps much more readily than the others had done.

The publicity agents did their work. They announced that Eleanora's father was a wealthy Kansas City oil man. Papa Pucket, who happens to be a policeman in Newton, wouldn't hear of this. Publicity or no publicity, he wasn't a wealthy oil man.

Their first appearance together was notably successful. They went to Chicago to dance just once at the Opera Club for $5000, said to have been a record for a single performance by a dancing team.

Then Maurice let it be known that he was in love. Not merely with an ideal dance partner, but with blonde Eleanora Pucket from Kansas. This was the real thing, Maurice said. It wasn't love for a livelihood.

VERY little is known about his last illness. It is believed that incipient tuberculosis developed rapidly to a serious stage, and almost before he was aware of its seriousness the dancer was stricken. His life had not left him sufficient reserve strength.

He collapsed while en route to London to dance before the King and Queen. It was too late for the health cure at Lausanne, Switzerland, to be of any avail and two months later, with only Eleanora with him, he died.

There are those who are cynical enough to intimate that, if Maurice had lived, still another dancing partner would have succeeded Eleanora. In answer there is only Maurice's own word that it was Eleanora forever.

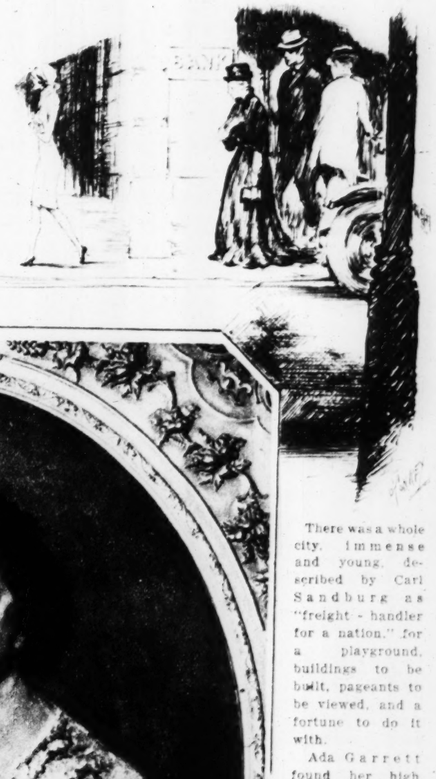
Rich Woman Saved From Self-Imposed Starvation

Why Eccentric Millionaire, Ada Sawyer Garrett, May Have Her Affairs Taken From Her Hands.



By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine

CHICAGO, Illinois.

ADA SAWYER GARRETT, 50 years ago a belle of pioneer Chicago and a daughter of one of the proudest families in Illinois history, had a million dollars, some 20 years ago, after the death of her father and husband. Now she has several times a million, and owns more real estate than any woman in Chicago except the daughter of John D. Rockefeller.

She was found in her room in a cheap downtown hotel the other day, suffering from pernicious anaemia, brought on by insufficient food. And as her slight, shabby form was carried gently downstairs on a hospital stretcher the bellboy stared open-mouthed and muttered:

"Her have a million dollars? Gee!"

THEY say she preferred automatic food shops where she could drop a nickel and get a cup of coffee and perhaps a roll. Physicians believe that she has been starving herself for years, until at last she was overcome by weakness.

Fearing automobiles, Mrs. Garrett refused to ride in anything but street cars. As she grew older, this became more difficult, and with increasing age and weakness she ventured less and less out of the routine of her day, between bank and hotel.

And yet her gifts to charity totaled, it is estimated, $5000 a month, a fact she always tried to keep secret. When it was a question of charity, she was never penurious.

An iron bed, an oak dresser and an old leather chair comprised the furnishings of the hotel room from which she was removed to the hospital. The floor was covered by a worn and frayed carpet. Often, it is said, she prepared her own frugal meals over a gas flame in her room.

The wardrobe which was found in the single small closet of the room consisted of but one other dress than the one she wore. It was of the same ancient black vintage.

Every day for 15 years a rusty black bonnet has been seen among the gray fedoras and top hats in the financial section of the loop. A shabby black cape has struck an incongruous note among the carefully tailored shoulders that distinguish habitues of Chicago's Wall street. Trailing black skirts have swept along the sidewalks of La Salle street for many years, and men have stared curiously at the figure of a little, dowdy old lady.

But only a few of her closest friends, or those who remembered the face that used to be a magnetic center at balls of the Four Hundred in the days of old Chicago knew that the strangely out-of-place little figure was that of Ada Sawyer Garrett, who could have bought most of the carefully tailored La Salle street shoulders several times over, but preferred to follow her own bent in a cheap hotel bedroom and wear a hat she bought in 1910.

NOW the men at her bank, the only ones who saw her often, chuckle with genuine amusement and affection at the thought of the determined and independent small figure in black that used to pay their office a daily visit, and pay her the tribute of respect that one shrewd business man accords another.

Mrs. Garrett is the granddaughter of Justin Butterfield, an impressive figure in early Chicago history, who came to the lake town in 1834 and watched its growth for half a century. As a young lawyer, he came to Chicago from New York State, and was soon recognized as the ablest of his profession in the West. He formed a partnership with James Collins, and in a short time had laid a firm foundation for the social and financial prestige of his family. It was young Butterfield who defeated Abraham Lincoln in the contest for appointment as Land Commissioner under President Taylor.

MRS. GARRETT'S mother was Elizabeth Butterfield, who married Sydney Sawyer and lived in the old family home at Rush street and Austin avenue, which before the fire was the center of gaiety for most of the great names of Chicago society.

"We played together, made mud pies and paper dolls, and later compared dance programs throughout our childhood and girlhood," said Miss Bessie Forest of 321 Center street, a cousin of Mrs. Garrett, and one of the few friends with whom the old lady kept in touch after her withdrawal from society. "Addie didn't care much about clothes even then. But the family entertained a great deal, of course, and one had to be gay.

"Those were the days," continued the alert, bright-eyed gentlewoman, whose white hair accents the freshness of her features, "when the street car waited at the corner until mother finished dressing all the children. The horses that pulled it were glad of a rest, anyway, and besides, nobody was in a hurry then." She looked rather ruefully out of the window at the whizzing motor cars, the clanging street cars and the lumbering busses that made a kaleidoscope of swift, shifting color on the boulevard.

Ada Sawyer was married in the '80s, to T. Mauro Garrett, and they lived with her parents in the home at Cass and Ontario streets, the heart of Chicago's famous "gold coast," built just after the fire.

Buggy whips cracked in those days, and yellow gloves were as brave as the curling mustachios of the dashing beaux. But even then young Mrs. Garrett liked to look after her own business affairs. After the death of her father she attended to all her own investments, and, when her husband died, about 20 years ago, she assumed full control of the Butterfield-Garrett estate, which included real estate all over Chicago, and was estimated at about $1,000,000.

OLD Justin Butterfield had said to each of his sons and daughters, "Buy land!" And his business acumen and foresight began to bear fruit most richly during the life of his granddaughter.

As her taste for business grew, Ada Garrett took less and less interest in teas and balls and the polite duties of social intercourse. One by one she discharged the staff of servants kept by her family for years, until at last she was alone in the great house. Finally she closed it, and moved to the Auditorium Hotel, where she could keep in closer touch with her bank.

For clothes she cared not at all. When the granddaughter of Justin Butterfield moved to the Auditorium Hotel it is doubtful, indeed, if anyone connected the name she wrote on the register with the one so famous in the social register a generation ago.

If her rusty black bonnet was changed during the years, it was only for another quite as nondescript. Fur coats and limousines interested her not at all.

Every morning saw her black-clad figure bound for La Salle street and the Illinois Merchants' Trust Building, or boarding a street car to go and appraise some real estate holding.

A typical deal was reported three years ago when "Chicago's Hetty Green" sold nine acres of land in Logan Square, which her grandfather, Justin Butterfield, had bought in 1843 at $1.25 an acre, for $850,000.

Ada Sawyer, at the age of 16.

Those who would have pitied the shabby and apparently lonely old lady were advised by those who knew her to save their trouble.

"HER ONE recreation, her one joy, was big business," said her chief financial adviser, Leon H. Loehr, vice president of the Illinois Merchants' Trust Company, "and she tasted that joy to the utmost.

She took her own counsel, and could not be cajoled into any deal she hadn't already decided on. Where others were rashly impulsive in buying and selling, she was ever cautious. Her one rule was to sit tight until the right profit was offered, and then sell."

Years of apparent self-dential passed for the heiress to the Butterfield fortune, and Ada Garrett centered her interests more and more on stock tickers and bonds.

As the city's skyscrapers grew up on the land where her father's cows use to graze she became imbued with the vision of an empire in the making. Bridge parties and drives in the park became less and less important to her. Here was work to be done, interests to be guarded, vital forces to be met and conquered.

She was not talkative, but it is apparent to those who knew her that there was infinite romance for Ada Garrett in the masses of brick and steel, the ever-changing skyline of Chicago. The ugly bulk of the freighters chugging down the Chicago River, the spectacle of a new city having its growing pains, the harsh beauty of steel girders and mounting masonry—these were the things that filled the life of one who might have seemed to be loneliest woman in Chicago.

There was a whole city, immense and young, described by Carl Sandburg as "freight-handler for a nation," for a playground, buildings to be built, pageants to be viewed, and a fortune to do it with.

Ada Garrett found her high adventure in the clang and clatter, the rush and crush of the loop. Matching her wits against seasoned financiers, buying and selling land, feeling the current of big business about her—what higher glory, could anyone want? asked Ada Sawyer Garrett.

When people used to cast commiserating glances at her threadbare clothing, the scanty cape that was her only wrap even in the dead of winter, the adventurous granddaughter of Justin Butterfield, as alive at 70 as she was at 20, probably chuckled impishly and inwardly. It is certain that she found infinite amusement in concealing her identity, in doing as she pleased in the face of horrified society.

After a time it seemed to the feminine financier that the walk from the Auditorium Hotel to her bank was too great a waste of time, so she moved to the La Salle, only three blocks from the Illinois Merchants' Trust Building. Here she lived for two years, more completely unknown, if possible, than ever before.

Once in a while she paid a visit to her lifelong friend, Miss Forest, but few of her other relatives and former friends saw her from year to year.

A FEW weeks ago officials at the bank missed the daily visits of the familiar figure, and went to her most recent home, the Victoria Hotel, 334 South Clark street, only a block from the bank, to investigate. They found her confined to her bed, and on the advice of a physician removed her to St. Luke's Hospital, where she is now recuperating, idling away the days for the first time in her busy 70 years.

A petition has recently been filed through Chicago attorneys to appoint a conservator for her estate, on the grounds that she is no longer mentally competent.

And so the former social belle of old Chicago, in the days of high-stepping horses and higher-stepping pride, the days of blue blood and red velvet, is to spend her last days in complete rest and, curiously enough, in peace.

The fever of excitement over finance which motivated all her days is gone now, and she drinks obediently the fresh milk that is brought daily from the Lake Bluff farm of Mrs. Scott Durand, a sister-in-law, and looks uncomplainingly out the window at a Chicago inextricably intertwined with the history of her family.

Whether she will be indefinitely contented with the enforced inactivity and to have her affairs, so long in her own hands, managed by others, remain to be seen.

"You look," murmurs Miss Bessie Forest, at her side, "just like you did when you were 16, Addie, and we went to New York to have our pictures taken at Sarony's."

Britain's Super-Spy Was a WOMAN

The Amazing Magnitude of Louise de Bettignies' Operations Was Kept Secret, Even When She Was Imprisoned By The Germans, Until After Her Death.

THE Croix de Guerre and the cross of the Legion of Honor. To the heroine of the British intelligence service the homage of France and England. To the faint-hearted maid of Saint-Armand—the Edith Cavell of France—this station.

"For having voluntarily devoted herself for many months, impelled solely by the highest patriotism, to the service of her country; for having performed, with an inflexible courage, the perils and difficulties of this great work; for having surmounted, thanks to her exceptional qualities and devotion to the national defense, the greatest obstacles, risking her life continually and unstintingly during the whole of her services tremendous responsibilities; in a word, displaying a heroism which has rarely been surpassed."

This recognition by two nations marked the name of Saint-Armand as a heroine of the great war. But it did little more than suggest the magnitude of the heroism of this fair-eyed French woman, to whom a monument soon will be unveiled in Lille. Her work was so surrounded in silence during the war that few persons outside of the French and British military staffs knew who she was. There was, however, good reason for the silence.

Louise de Bettignies was a spy and a great one. She risked her life daily in the service of the British army back of the German lines. She was more than a spy. She was an organizer and a director of spies—the most able the British had. In the early part of 1915 she developed the network of secret agents who furnished twice a week reports of German troop movements, munition dumps, future operations, supplies, train movements and casualties in the district surrounding Lille. At one time more than 100 informers worked under her—priests, policemen, school teachers, doctors and railway men. Day after day disguised as a peddler of cheese, tobacco or lace, she went from village to village to gather reports. Besides this hazardous duty, she led hundreds of struggling—escaped prisoners and peasants—safely out of the occupied areas of Belgium and France into Holland to swell the ranks of the allied armies. She ran gauntlets of German sentries and threaded her way through intricate mazes of electrically charged barbed wire in the Holland frontier.

CAPTURED ultimately and sentenced to death by the Germans—a sentence later commuted to life imprisonment—she was dead from exposure and hardships before the majority of her countrymen had even heard of her. It took time, after Government recognition of her services, for details of her achievements and suffering to find their way to the popular ear.

At last, nearly six years after her death, there appeared in France the first comprehensive account of her exploits and her fate. It was "The Story of Louise de Bettignies," by Antonine Redier. The French public, ever ready to honor its heroes, was quickly aroused to a sense of gratitude and reverence by its publication. Now the work has been translated from the French by Clive Hall, the English version having come recently from the press of Hutchinson & Co., Ltd., of London. Of her exploits across the Holland frontier in the night with fugitive prisoners; of her capture and the unfortunate incident which involved her in the firing squad, and of the continued operation of her secret service after she was imprisoned, the book tells a graphic tale. In its pages the courageous and light-hearted maid of Saint-Armand lives again, disarming the German sentries with her ready chatter and her wide, innocent eyes.

Born in 1880, Louise de Bettignies was young, but to anger quite a girl when her war career began with the German invasion of Lille in October, 1914. Fate had fitted her well for the part she was to play. Of aristocratic lineage, she had had means and education. She had read much and traveled much. She was ambitious. After England and Italy she had made acquaintances with Germany and also with the other German-speaking countries. She spoke English and German with fluency. Besides these qualifications, she was able-bodied. Writes the author:

"Physically she was strong; she had retained her little girls' liking for sport. Excelling in riding, golf, swimming and walking, she struck one as a woman capable of self-command and command of others. The chief beauty of the daughter of Lys was a glorious head of hair, abundant, silky and of a dark brown chestnut, which showed up well against her fair complexion."

SUCH, then, was the potential heroine when Fate came along and pointed the road to her destiny. It came with the German invasion which found her in Lille. She left Lille to go to her mother at St. Omer at Folkestone, England, on the way she told the British port officials so much about German activities in the occupied area that they were quick to see her possibilities. They needed more of such information and proposed that she be the one to bring it from the front. Where others might have shuddered and refused point blank, she shuddered and accepted. And all for the glory of standing before a firing squad some gray morning at dawn.

To her everlasting credit, it is said she knew what was before her. She was to be a spy. Capture of a spy by the enemy meant but one thing, whether the spy happened to be a woman or a man and whether the enemy happened to be German or something else. She knew that. It is the rule of warfare that spies shall be shot, and so it cannot be said that the sentence ultimately passed upon her by the Germans was unusually harsh.

It was not until after she had agreed to enter the service that she learned the full magnitude of the mission intrusted to her. She was to do more than glean and carry information. She was to build up an intricate mechanism over a wide area. Lille was to be her headquarters.

Assuming the name of Alice Dubois, she threw herself heart and soul into the hazardous business of being a spy and an organizer of spies. She came into contact, incognito, with those who could best serve her purpose and formed a team of collaborators, some to collect information, and others to send it on to Holland. As her chief lieutenant, she appointed a sensitive, modest-looking girl named Marie-Louise Vanhoutte. Marie-Louise was to be known as Charlotte. In her Louise saw the essentials of greatness, and she was not deceived.

During the summer of 1915, Louise, assisted by Charlotte, served her hardest blows for the allied cause. Hundreds of French and Belgian peasants or escaped prisoners fled from the invaded territory along different routes into Holland. These they had to conduct in small groups through areas closely watched. They had not only to talk and manoeuvre their way past the German sentries they had to teach their blundering charges to maintain, by their demeanor, an appearance of a stupid but innocent working party. Other girls, recruited by Louise and Charlotte, performed the same service. Most of them did their work well. Many were amateurs who fell easily into traps and were shot, thus losing themselves in the cause for which they bravely died. No fewer than 126 men and women in the service of the British in Belgium and France were caught and shot during that terrible period of German temporization. But Louise never trembled. To the English representative in Holland the author attributes the statement:

"The services Louise Bettignies rendered are inestimable. Through her we carried with a precision, a regularity and rapidity that was never surpassed in any other organization, all the movements of the enemy, the exact position of their batteries and a thousands details that were of great help to our headquarters. Possibly, during the course of the war, experience having perfected the method of working, one or two services equaled hers. Not one has ever surpassed it. Here, Monsieur, we admired, almost revered, this young French girl. We adored her."

Louise de Bettignies.

WHAT superhuman strength she must have needed to have driven up twice a week reports which took the officers at Folkestone several days to decipher! But she did this between sorties across the frontier—mostly nocturnal trips in which she waded canals, picked her way through the woods, crawled on the ground and, in villages, rubbed shoulders with trunkards, ate off dirty tables, breathed foul air, listened to vile language and slept in stuffy attic rooms.

"The information it was her business to collect was of two kinds," the story sets forth. "For one, perseverating, meticulous people sufficed. For the other, it was necessary to secure the co-operation of shrewd brains. She took the greatest pains to find trustworthy men living near the railway lines, the ever crumblings and the crossroads. These men had to keep a list of the number of trains or convoys that passed, the number of carriages in each train, with any indications that could give enlightenment as to the nature of the goods conveyed. This is an example which will show the utility of such information. During April and May 1915, we carried the exact number and contents of the trains of wounded that the Germans sent back from Mount Kemmel. We already knew how many divisions had been successively engaged in this death trap; so these figures sent to the Allies revealed the fact that there were scarcely any valid men left in the reinforcements. We learned that the affair which had been a costly one for us amounted to a disaster for the enemy. This news was of the greatest practical value to Foch, and raised the spirits of our troops considerably."

LOUISE and Charlotte gathered the reports. Sometimes they used forged passports, which might have been discovered at any moment. Sometimes they made their passage in carts loaded with hay—hay into which the German guards poked their bayonets. Again they posed as peddlers. They hid their messages in balls of yarn, umbrella handles, shoe laces, corsets and in lighted candles in cart lanterns. Sometimes the message was rolled into a tiny ball and attached to a black thread. If they became frightened as they approached a sentry they pulled out the thread and then drew it in again after passing the danger. Sometimes the final message ready for England was photographed in a small transparent film which was pasted in an eyeglass. They could put 3000 words on a pair of glasses, and all the British intelligence officers had to do to read them was to throw the messages on a big screen. The information thus supplied was so accurate that the Allies were able to destroy the German batteries in the Lille district three times between May and August, 1915.

BUT with all her courage and sagacity, it was almost a certainty that Louise de Bettignies sooner or later would reach the end of the road. She did, late in 1915. The story continues:

"Dressed by Major Cameron of Folkestone, she decided, in August, 1915, to extend her work toward the southeast and enlarge her network of spies at Valenciennes and Mezieres. But in September, 1915, her courage began to desert her; she felt a premonition of what was to follow and a great longing to see her own people. On September 3 she went to France on a farewell visit to her mother and two sisters. 'I wanted to see you all for the last time,' she said sadly. 'For I feel the end is coming. I shall be arrested and shot.'

The arrest came sooner, perhaps, than she had anticipated. In September 24, Charlotte, who had been watched stupidly by the Germans, was arrested in Brussels. Her arrest naturally brought Louise under suspicion, for the two had worked together. The Germans set watchers on her and were close on her trail when she was arrested, quite by chance, by German guards while she and another woman were attempting to cross into a neutral area on the passport. They escorted her to the guardhouse, but didn't realize they had a matter of importance until they caught her chewing up a secret message. They didn't get the message back, but the slip marked her as a spy.

There followed an inquiry lasting five months. By subterfuge at first and then by third-degree methods the Germans tried to gain from the twenty-nine French girl some bit of information about the British intelligence organization or its workers. From her they found out nothing. They tried the expedient of stirring up strife between Louise and Charlotte by representing each had denounced the other. That failed also. These women had fur in subterfuges.

WITHOUT discounting the work of Edith Cavell, it may be remarked that the British cause was susceptible to subterfuge. Under the grilling of skillful investigators she was easily duped. Left to believe other prisoners had given her away, she told everything. She told the truth even to her enemies, not realizing that a part of the technique of a spy, as de Bettignies made the most of it, is to lie. She parried the questions with such cleverness that for months they kept up the search for the head of this amazing intelligence organization, never once suspecting they had that leader in their grasp. Meanwhile that organization functioned smoothly without her. She made that possible by her silence.

Louise de Bettignies taught her workers this principle of noncommunicativeness and she was true to her teaching. "One may have anything one's self by denying, and one may others," she used to say. "The only way to avoid the betrayal of others is to deny or repeating I know nothing. I don't know this person. I know nothing. I don't understand what you are talking about.' This kind of defense, of course, does not deceive the enemy, and often exasperates him, but at all rate, it saves implication of others. That was the best the maid of Armand hoped to accomplish, and she did accomplish that. When, on March 15, 1916, she was condemned to death at Brussels, she raised her face proudly and felt the joy of having won a lasting victory. The sentence against her had been won. She had been condemned to death in reality for having refused to speak.

Along with tear drops there was a note of satisfaction in the farewell letter she wrote to her mother. The penciled missive which has been preserved, continued:

"My Reverend Mother: I have been condemned to death by the Council of War. I should like to see you before starting on the great journey. I accept my sentence with what courage I can. A long time back I contemplated death calmly and without fear. Today I am a mass of joy and pride."

The Germans reprieved Louise de Bettignies a few days after the sentence. They did it because they wanted her to live so they could confront her with others of the service, who might fall into their hands. That, and not the Spanish Ambassador's intervention at Berlin, was the real explanation of the commutation of sentence to life imprisonment, which came on March 21. Imprisoned at Siegburg, she suffered, as did the other prisoners, from exposure, hunger and lack of medical attention. She came down with attacks of influenza and pneumonia. For two years she was virtually an invalid. On April 27, 1918, suffering greatly and feeling that the end was near, she wrote to the Superieure in Clermont:

"I am weak enough to rebel against my lot and regret I was not shot."

A pleural abscess following a severe attack of pneumonia in the winter of 1917-18 was the ultimate cause of her death. After neglecting her case for months, the prison doctor sent her in almost a dying condition to Lille to undergo an operation. She never returned, though she lingered between life and death for several months. The end came early in the fall. When the British entered Lille the following February they found her grave marked by a little white cross.

"Louise de Bettignies," said the inscription, "died Sept. 5, 1918."

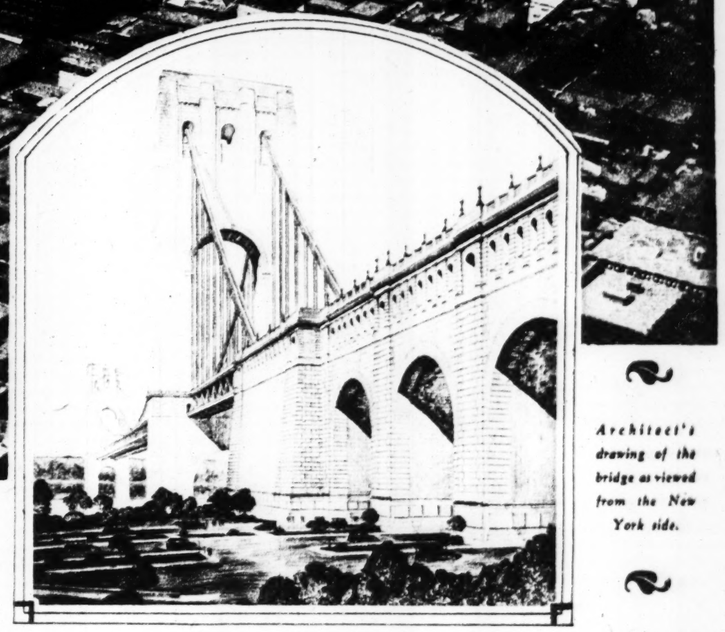
World's Greatest Bridge Will Span the Hudson

With Towers Higher Than the Tallest Building in St. Louis, This Structure Will Connect Upper Manhattan With New Jersey.

Photo-diagram showing how the central span of the new Hudson River Bridge would look if set down along Washington avenue, St. Louis.



Architect's drawing of the bridge as viewed from the New York side.

SUPPORTED by two towers almost half as high again as the tallest building in St. Louis, the world's greatest bridge is to be built across the Hudson River. Contractors now are assembling the necessary machinery and supplies on either side of the river, at the upper end of Manhattan Island.

The tremendous bridge, which is to be of the suspension type, will reach from 179th street, New York City, to Fort Lee, in New Jersey. The first stage of construction, with roadways sufficient for the initial traffic expected, will cost $50,000,000. More roadways and four lanes for rapid transit purposes will be added later, at a cost of $25,000,000.

Although the Hudson bridge and its approaches will have a total length of 9000 feet, or one and seven-tenths miles, it cannot be called the greatest of all bridges on that score. There are longer bridges, such as the one completed last year across the Delaware River between Philadelphia and Camden, N. J., which has a length over all of 9570 feet.

The new bridge is notable for the massive scale upon which it has been planned. The course of the next five years will see the virtual completion of a stupendous structure.

The main span of the bridge will be 3500 feet long, or two-thirds of a mile, which is to be the distance between the two towers already mentioned, forming the longest channel span ever attempted.

How gigantic are the dimensions of the Hudson bridge can be grasped more easily by comparison with structures already built. For example, the clearance between the bridge and the water beneath is designed to permit the largest steamships to pass under the bridge, and the distance is 196 feet. The water tower which soars skyward in Compton Hill Reservoir Park, St. Louis, measures 179 feet from the sidewalk level to the pinnacle stone of the cupola. Thus, if the tall water tower could be sliced off even with the ground, set upright on a raft and floated down the Hudson, it could pass underneath the new bridge easily, with 17 feet to spare.

THE floor of the Hudson bridge will be 240 feet above average water level. The figure seems impressive, in a vague sort of way. Yet, if a man were to lie flat on the roof of the Railway Exchange Building, St. Louis, with his head sticking over the edge, and look downward through the dizzy depths, the sidewalks would be only 10 feet farther away from him than the waters of the Hudson will be from the new bridge's floor.

The 3500-foot length of the central span can be illustrated as follows: If a man were to walk from the end of the Eads Bridge approach, at the east side of Third street, St. Louis, proceeding west along Washington avenue, he would not complete an equivalent distance until he had arrived at the middle of Fourteenth street.

The distance from anchorage to anchorage of the Hudson bridge will be 4800 feet, or nine-tenths of a mile. To cover this distance the Washington avenue pedestrian must walk from Third street to the eastern side of Seventeenth street.

And if the same man walked on Washington avenue a distance equal to the whole length of the new bridge and its approaches, his experimental stroll from Third street would take him to a point half way between Beaumont and Leffingwell avenues.

BUT the two towers will be the most picturesque, as well as the most monumental, feature of the bridge. They are to have a height of 600 feet above the water, which suggests interesting comparisons. The new Bell Telephone Building in St. Louis, the tallest yet built here, is 358 feet high from the sidewalk level to the topmost roof. Or, if measured from the sidewalk level to the top of the smokestack, it is 402 feet high. Even taking the latter figure, it is plain that the Bell Building would have to be almost exactly half again as high to equal the above-water portion of the Hudson towers. The Railway Exchange Building would have to be two and two-fifths times its present height to bring its roof level with the top of the towers. And three and one-third towers of the same height as the water tower in Compton Hill Reservoir Park could be piled one on top of another, and still the pinnacle stone would be four feet lower than the top of the new bridge towers.

The height of the National Capitol at Washington, from base to summit, is 288 feet and the building ranks as one of the stateliest in the world. Yet if another capitol could be balanced on the dome of the present one, the uppermost point of the second building would still lack 24 feet of being as high as the top of the Hudson bridge towers.

The Washington Monument, in constructing which blocks of stone were used from every state in the Union and from practically every country in the world, stands 555 feet high. But even this monument, renowned for its height, is 45 feet lower than the bridge towers.

The Eads Bridge at St. Louis, completed in 1874, still ranks among great achievements in bridge engineering. It is not a suspension bridge but of the steel arch type, with three spans. From west to east, the spans are 537 feet, 553 feet and 537 feet in length, or a total of 1627 feet. The channel span of the Hudson bridge will be twice their combined length and then some—namely, 246 feet.

The western approach to the Eads Bridge is 1128 feet long, the eastern approach 3677 feet long, so that the bridge has an over-all length of 6442 feet, or 1.22 miles. The 9000 over-all length of the Hudson bridge is equal to 1.70 miles. Thus the difference between the two bridges is 2558 feet, or within 82 feet of half a mile.

AMONG suspension bridges, the nearest rival to the Hudson project is the bridge completed last year across the Delaware River at a cost of about $37,000,000. The Delaware bridge is 570 feet longer over all, but otherwise not on such a massive scale. Principal dimensions are as follows: Main span, 1750 feet; distance from anchorage to anchorage, 5330 feet; clearance above mean high water, 135 feet; height of towers above water, 385 feet. The channel span of the Hudson bridge is just twice as long as the Delaware bridge's channel span.

The upper deck of the huge bridge across the Hudson will be put in service first, for pedestrians, private vehicles, busses and trucks. The lower deck will be completed later, with four lanes for rapid transit trucks or for bus lines, which-ever then may seem more desirable.

Another idea of the bridge's size may be had from computing the number of gasoline-driven vehicles which would be able to use it at the same time. The length over all of the busses used by the People's Motorbus Company, St. Louis, is 27 feet. Carefully driven, a line of them can proceed with three-foot intervals between, or an allowance of 30 feet for each bus.

THUS, on the channel span alone there would be room enough for a single line procession containing 117 busses. With four roadways in use on the channel span it would accommodate 468 busses. From anchorage to anchorage one line could accommodate 160 busses and four lines abreast could contain 640 busses. One line extending from end to end including the bridge proper and the approaches would contain 300 busses, and four lines abreast 1200 busses.

There will be space for an even larger number of trucks which, according to officials of the Automobile Club of Missouri, average about 16 feet in length. Adding three feet for the intervals between, it is clear that a line of trucks on the channel span could contain 184 trucks, and four lines abreast, 736 trucks. In the same way, one line from anchorage to anchorage could contain 252 trucks and four lines 1008 trucks. From end to end of the bridge, one line could contain 473 trucks and four lines 1892 trucks.

The average length of passenger cars is 12 feet. Making the same allowance for intervals between, one line on the main span could contain 233 cars and four lines 932 cars. One line from approach to approach could accommodate 320 cars and four lines 1280 cars. From end to end of the bridge, one line could contain 600 cars and four lines 2400 cars.

THESE figures are based on the capacity of the upper deck only. It seems reasonable to assume that completion of the lower deck would double the theoretical capacity. And while the bridge probably will not be used by railroad trains, it is enlightening to see the possibilities in that direction.

Engine, tender and 10 coaches (baggage, chair car and Pullman) may be taken as at least an average passenger train. The combined length of engine and tender varies widely with different kinds of engines, ranging from 55 to 81 feet. Perhaps 75 feet would be right for engine and tender and space between the coaches. The usual length of passenger cars is 80 feet.

Then a 10-coach train would occupy 875 feet, and there would be just enough room on a single track of the central span to accommodate four such trains. Between the anchorages, five such trains could stand, with room for five extra cars, and from end to end of the bridge there would be space for 10 trains and three extra cars. With four tracks in use, the figures would be correspondingly larger, making the largest possible number for the whole deck come to 40 trains and 12 extra cars, or 41 trains. For Pullman cars alone, four tracks on one deck of the bridge would afford sufficient space for 450 of them to stand there at one time.

Freight cars are considerably smaller than passenger coaches, averaging 40 feet in length. An ordinary freight train may be considered as made up of 50 cars, although there have been freight trains with as many as 150 cars. With engine, tender and 50 cars, a train will occupy 2075 feet of track.

Thus, a single track on the central span would have room enough for a whole train and 1425 feet to spare, on which another 35 freight cars could stand. Between the anchorages, two average freight trains could stand, with 650 feet of track empty, enough for 16 additional cars. From end to end, a single track could accommodate four ordinary freight trains, with 700 feet of track unused, sufficient for 17 more cars. Four tracks would quadruple all these figures, rendering possible on the full length of one deck 16 ordinary freight trains and 2800 feet of track, or 17 trains and track enough for 18 extra cars.

Upon four tracks of one deck of the bridge there would be sufficient space for 900 freight cars to stand.

THE new bridge is not expected to supersede the ferries now in use nor the vehicular tunnel, but to supplement them in the steady growth of traffic. It will afford a main highway connection for auto travel between New England on the one hand and New Jersey, Pennsylvania and the South on the other, which will make it possible for travelers to avoid the congested districts of the metropolitan area.

Traffic from the South, along the Lincoln highway, will pass around Newark by a route to be constructed soon, cross the new Hudson bridge to Manhattan and by means of the Washington bridge go across the Harlem River to the Bronx and the Boston post road.

The bridge also will open up a tremendous area in New Jersey as a suburban district for New York. Real estate developments of various kinds already are under way.

The bridge is to be built and operated by the Port of New York Authority, an independent, nonprofit corporation organized by joint action of the Legislatures of New York and New Jersey. Its affairs are administered by a board of six commissioners, three from New York and three from New Jersey.

The Round-Up of the Hoosier Gang

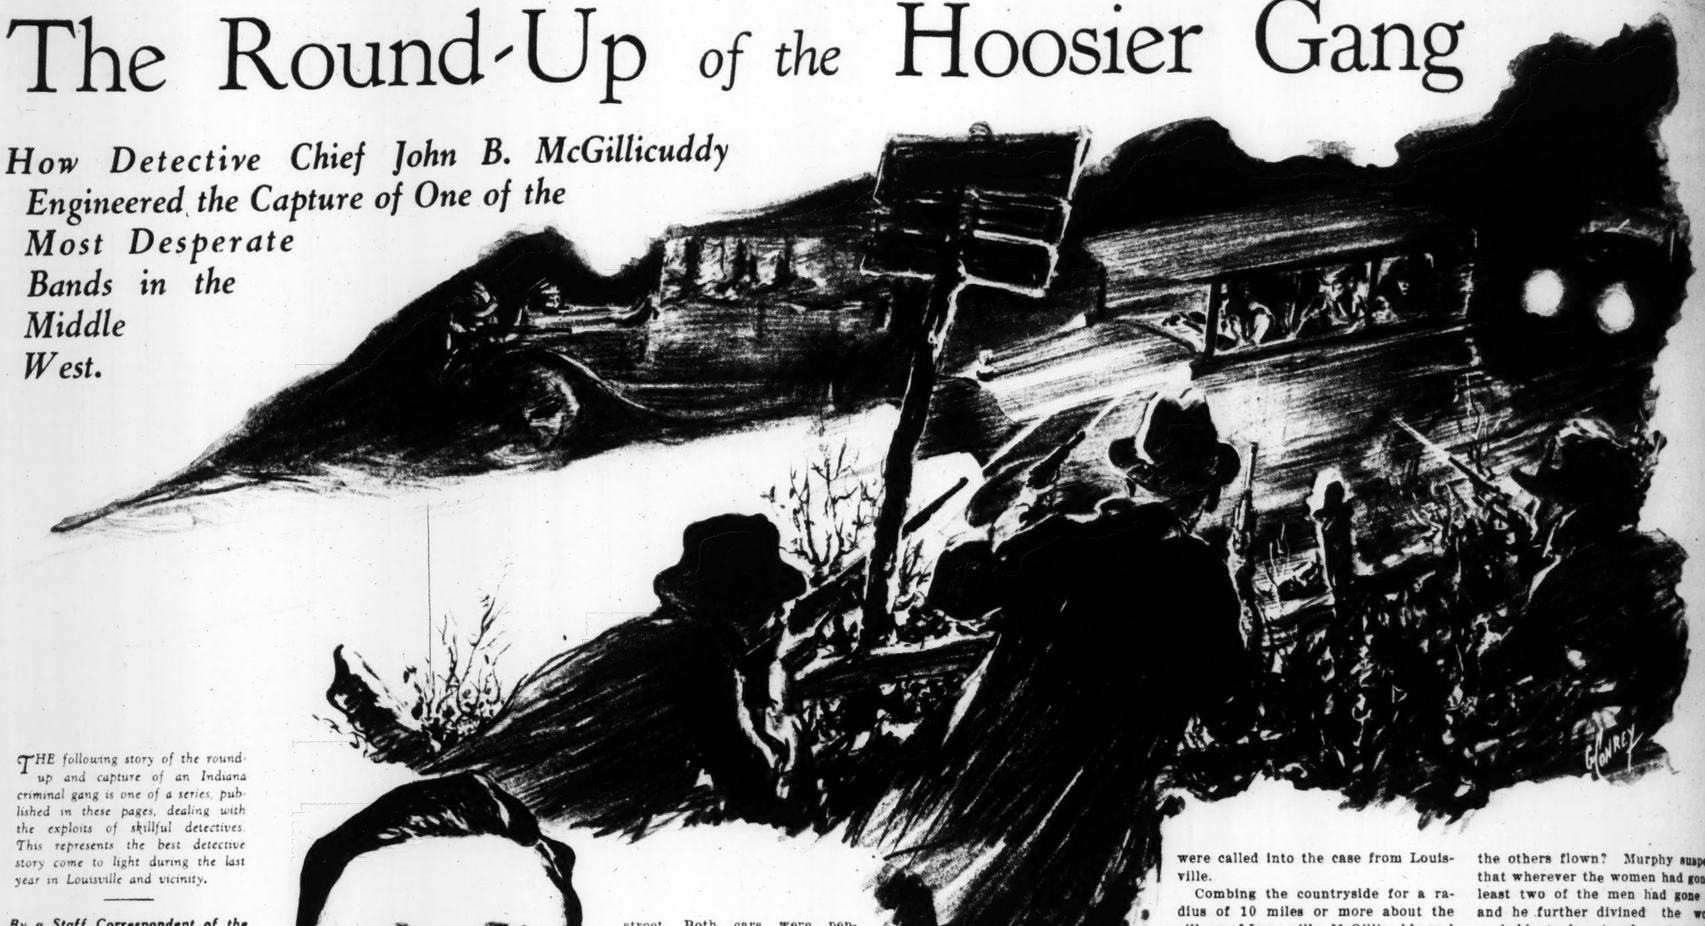
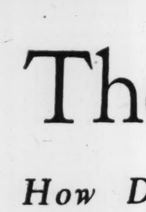
How Detective Chief John B. McGillicuddy Engineered the Capture of One of the Most Desperate Bands in the Middle West.



THE following story of the round-up and capture of an Indiana criminal gang is one of a series published in these pages, dealing with the exploits of skillful detectives. This represents the best detective story come to light during the last year in Louisville and vicinity.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine

LOUISVILLE, Kentucky.



DURING the winter of 1926, the small towns of Southern Indiana were terrified and harassed by a band of criminals notorious in this section as the "Hoosier" gang. Throughout December, 1925, and January, 1926, there were repeated holdups of stores, saloons, industrial plants and individuals. The crime wave, which centered about New Albany, across the Ohio River from Louisville, culminated on the early morning of Jan. 24, when an attempt to break into a village bank resulted in a running fight in which a deputy sheriff was killed.

Five men constituted the backbone and the brains of the "Hoosier" gang. Various other persons, including three women, were known at various times as hangers on, but these five were responsible for most of the major crime in the southern half of the state. The recent confession of one of them, listing their numerous forays, testifies to the veracity of this assertion. To put an end to the Indiana crime wave, officers of the law had to go after the leaders, but they didn't know then how many there were in the gang or who anyone of them might be. They groped blindly about, always a jump behind and getting nowhere until there occurred the attempted robbery of the Farmers' Bank of Lanesville, nine miles west of New Albany, and the killing of Deputy Sheriff Daniel Mayfield. This supplied a few faint clews and they set to work under the direction of Chief of Detectives John B. McGillicuddy, of Louisville.

Now, due to the work of Chief McGillicuddy and his aids, the "Hoosier" gang is no more and Southern Indiana again pursues its work and play in peace. Of the five criminals, four have been definitely and permanently accounted for. One, Joseph Murray, is dead. The officers found his body under a culvert after the running fight at Lanesville. Emmett Snyder, alias "Three-Fingered Craig," is serving a nine-year term in the Federal prison at Atlanta with a murder charge still pending. Two others, James Norris and Frank Taylor, are safely behind the walls of the Indiana State Penitentiary at Michigan City, serving terms of 10 to 20 years. Only one, Bernard Finegan, is still at large and he, it appears, has put many miles between himself and Southern Indiana.

EVEN with the unfinished business of accounting for Finegan still before them, the officers have earned a mark of distinction with what they have already accomplished in getting four of the five. The chronicle of what they did and how they did it in the Lanesville case constitutes Louisville's best detective story of the year. The confession made by Norris in the penitentiary not long ago, detailing the long list of robberies, points to the value of the capture beyond bringing to justice the slayer of Deputy Sheriff Mayfield.

In the pursuit and capture of the gang, a dozen or more officers and probably a hundred citizens got in their help at various times and places, but for good detective work which carried on the chase after the first sanguinary trail was lost, honors go to Chief McGillicuddy; to Lieutenant Ira Froh, his former walking partner, and to Detective-Sergeant Dave Murphy of Newport, Kentucky. The principal clews in the case were a telegram found in a country railway station, some baggage checks and the peculiar actions of a hotel porter. Along the way also are found such helpful factors as a Newfoundland watch dog, a resourceful and quick-witted girl telephone operator and a quick-shooting New Albany policeman.

Capt. John B. McGillicuddy.

Daniel Mayfield.

Detective David Murphy

It was 3:05 o'clock on the morning of Sunday, Jan. 24, 1926, and virtually all of the 269 inhabitants of Lanesville, Ind., were asleep when the big watch dog of Urban A. Zollman set up a disturbance in the Zollman living quarters next door to the Farmers' State Bank. Zollman was awakened and saw an automobile parked across the street in front, with the motor running. By telephone he aroused Miss Helen Dietrich, the operator, and told her robbers were in the bank. In a twinkling she plugged in on every line of the switchboard and notified every man in town with a telephone of what was taking place. One, living near the bank, made a mistake. He turned on the lights before answering the telephone, and the yeggs saw it. They fled, but Zollman got out in time to fire two charges of buckshot into the back of the robber car, a Buick sedan, as it pulled away. It was followed by a tan Chrysler roadster parked two blocks down the street. Both cars were peppered with bullets by the citizens as they sped away.

Observing the cars were headed toward New Albany, Miss Dietrich got busy on the telephone again, but she had trouble in reaching New Albany. The robbers had cut every line except one leading out of the village. This one they had overlooked, and it furnished, by a devious route, a connection with New Albany. Informed that five armed robbers, in two cars, were speeding toward his town, Night Chief of Police John H. Platt thought first of a narrow stone bridge near the eastern outskirts. He rounded up Sheriff Jacob Yenowine, Deputy Sheriff Mayfield and three or four patrolmen and told them to block the bridge. They started in a Ford, but were still two blocks away when they heard the roaring motors of the robber cars and realized the race was lost. They leaped out and blazed away as the cars sped past. Fire flashed also from a gun within one of the machines and Deputy Mayfield fell dead. It was afterwards found he was shot through the head.

The officers also were to draw blood. A few blocks farther on, Patrolmen Frank Hannan and W. G. Bruce were walking their beats and heard the shooting. Bruce fired four shots as the first car passed and almost immediately the Buick was seen to swerve from its course. For two blocks it swerved from one side of the street to the other and then crashed against a tree. Apparently the driver had been hit. The officers saw his companions drag him out, place him in the Chrysler, which slid up alongside, and go on their way in the roadster. One was riding on the running board.

Except for the fact that the Chrysler bore a Kentucky license tag and was headed eastwards, no clew existed as to the identity of its occupants or its destination. The Buick, piled up against the tree, was found to be a car which had been stolen a month earlier in New Albany, and used later in a $4000 payroll holdup in the same city. It supplied no clew whatever. After notifying towns ahead to be on the lookout for the tan Chrysler, the New Albany officers went to Lanesville to get a new hold on the slender thread. It was at this point that Chief McGillicuddy and Lieut. Froh were called into the case from Louisville.

Combing the countryside for a radius of 10 miles or more about the village of Lanesville, McGillicuddy and Froh, aided by Prosecuting Attorney Chester Lorch of Floyd County, Ind., were not long in picking up a trail.

Two days before the robbery attempt, it was found, two men posing as automobile salesmen and driving a tan Chrysler roadster had registered at a small hotel in the town of Speeds, five miles north of Lanesville. The next day they had been joined by two other men driving a Buick sedan.

JUST how Chief McGillicuddy happened to go into the Speeds railway station in quest of clews he doesn't know now beyond the fact that he was making a clean sweep of all business houses in the town and probably took the station as next in line. But he did go in, and found the most valuable clew so far picked up. It was the copy of a telegram filed two days before the bank job was attempted. It was addressed to Clarence Moore of Newport, Kentucky, and read:

"Come on. Bring Buick and put chains on. Roads bad. If you have trouble call Speeds Hotel."

It was signed with a name which, Chief McGillicuddy later found, was used by Murray.

Here, then, was a definite trail. The two men in the Chrysler had come on a prospecting trip and, finding everything favorable, had sent back to Newport for confederates and a second car for use in the get-away. Apparently the gang had operated out of Newport and probably had gone back there. They had left a marker on the road anyway. That marker, a ghastly one, was Murray's body. It was found soon afterward under a small bridge on the river road near Rising Sun, Indiana.

McGillicuddy and Froh caught a train for Newport. They found Moore without difficulty. He was known as a local police character. The tan Chrysler was his. They found it, too. It had just been fitted out with new curtains and three bullet holes in the body had been filled. He had loaned it, he said, to Murray and four other men who had been staying at a Newport hotel. The Buick, he said, belonged to one of these men. To be accommodating, he had taken it to Speeds at the owner's telegraphed request and had returned by train. He denied knowledge of the burglary attempt, and as evidence connecting him with the killing of Mayfield was insufficient to warrant extradition, he was sent to Louisville on other charges and given 30 days in the workhouse. McGillicuddy, Froh and Murphy, meanwhile, went on with their search.

On the day after Mayfield's killing, the officers learned, four of the five men who had been staying at the Newport hotel checked out and left the city. The women had gone, too. The fifth male member of the band had not been seen since the Friday before the killing. The discovery under the bridge explained why he had not returned to fly with the others. And whither had the others flown? Murphy suspected that wherever the women had gone, at least two of the men had gone also, and he further divined the women probably took a trunk or two. With that idea in mind, he set out to follow the baggage trail. He learned two trunks had been hauled from the hotel to Latonia, Kentucky, not far from Newport, and that they had then been checked on railway tickets to Philadelphia.

PHILADELPHIA, then, was the next stop. Prospects seemed bright upon their arrival there. They traced the baggage easily to a small hotel known as an underworld hangout. Only after they reached the hotel did it appear they had failed. Names on the register didn't mean much, but it appeared the two couples sought had checked out the day before. Nobody knew where they had gone. The officers questioned the clerk 20 minutes in an effort to uncover a clew.

Finally, Chief McGillicuddy noticed the hotel porter, a foreigner, was standing apart swallowing every word of the conversation but saying nothing. The Chief watched him and the more he watched, the more suspicious he became. His long experience in spotting pickpockets on Derby days, an art in which he especially distinguished himself, had taught him that when a man keeps eyeing an officer or, in police parlance, "making" him, he is usually "wrong." This porter, McGillicuddy reasoned, must be "wrong." He must know something.

McGillicuddy left the others and got the porter aside. He expected the man would feign complete and colossal ignorance. He was surprised. Instead of looking blank, the porter pointed toward the basement and whispered: "One of them is down there now." The Chief took him below.

The porter indicated a tall man who was about to leave the poolroom. The Chief recognized "Big Frank" Taylor, a pugilist of local renown in New Albany, and took him off his guard. He readily admitted his complicity in the bank burglary, and, declaring the officers might as well get the others, too, led the way to another small hotel, where Norris and the two women were found. The women were Alice Mayer and Mrs. Cecelia Reitzel of Pittsburg. They had financed the trip to Philadelphia for the four. Their trunks, leaving a baggage room trail, had been their undoing. Vague as the trail was, McGillicuddy and the others had followed it to its end within three hours after reaching Philadelphia.

Norris and Taylor named Snyder and Finegan as the other robbers and said it was Snyder who killed Mayfield. Upon clews furnished by them, pursuit led to Cleveland, where Snyder was arrested a few weeks later breaking into a Government armory. This Federal charge took precedence over the State case and resulted in Snyder being sent to Atlanta for nine years, while Norris and Taylor were sentenced to the Indiana prison. The murder charge, however, is hanging over Snyder and he will have it to face when he finishes his job with the Government. Only Finegan is still free, but even if he is, the officers are pretty well satisfied with their score of four out of five of the troublesome Hoosier Gang.

Mash Notes
From Kansas City
Mistaken for Apollo
Waddell the Tough Guy

To the Editor:

I SUPPOSE the public is in a fever to know whether we literary fellows as some calls us is ever the recipient of mash notes such as is sent in car load lots to stage and screen beauties like Martha Lorber, Mary Eaton, Johnny Dooley, Pola Negri, the Marquise de la Falaise de la Coudray and Ben Turpin.

Well friends I hope you won't think I am overstepping the holy bonds of modesty when I tell you that we boys gets fully as many perfumed missives as the above and about the only difference between their letters and ours is that ours generally always is scented with eau de garlic and the writers of same is too bashful to sign their names to them.

Just this wk. I recd. a billet doux from an anonymous admirer in Kansas City who I have often heard from him before though his letters always comes addressed to Long Neck, Great Island, which is just one of his comical little touches, but I will copy off a part of this latest one so as you can all share the thrill which a person can't help from feeling when strangers gushes over them, and will state that all his letters reads pretty near alike so that when you read the following you will get the gen. drift of our expistolary courtship.

"Lard Greaser," he writes. "That is what your name ought to be is Lard Greaser because you are about as cute and smart as a greasy tub of lard. This is a fine country where they shoot a man like Lincoln and let you live. They ought to put the man in jail for life who ever told you you could write. Why don't you go back to Niles, Mich. where you belong."

THAT is just a portion of my Missouri worshipper's latest encomium and they's more to it including a few words which become popular during the Great War and which I ain't allowed to use except in the privacy of my own home. As I say, this baby don't sign his name or give me his address so they ain't no way of me telling him that his love is requited, also that even if they had not of shot Lincoln I doubt if he would be alive today yet and I do go back to Niles, Mich., every time I get a excuse and would stay there if the folks did not know me too well.

But one of the most heart rendering notes that ever reached the undersigned was recd wile I was working in Chicago and which I have kept all these years to read once in a wile as a sort of antidote when I get to feeling too good. They ain't much to this one so I will copy it down verbatim word for word:

"I have been a constant reader of your articles but no more, you was pointed out to me yesterday at the coliseum, how can any one live with a face like yrs and what a paif of feet. They look more like a barge. Where do you ever get shoes big enough? I use to enjoy your articles but cant read them no more knowing what you look like."

This note of course was also unsigned so I couldn't call the party up and make a engagement with him and maybe prove to him that who ever was pointed out to him as me was not me at all but a hideous mistake.

As a matter of fact I had been at the coliseum on the day referred to, the occasion being a kind of reception in honor of moving picture stars and maybe I looked less handsomer than usual an acct. of the contrast with F. X. Bushman who was on display that day or because I was escorted by the fair Mae Tinee, far more beautiful than any of the idols of the screen.

But in justice to myself will state that as recently as the night of the Dempsey-Firpo fight I was mistaken by a waiter for What's-his-name Moreno and that was 5 or 6 yrs. after the Chicago episode and when age had added lines and subtracted hair.

AS FAR as my ft. is concerned wile I admit they ain't never caused me to be confused with a Chinese chorus gal, still and all I can go into any shoe store and buy a pair of 10 and a 1-2 C last shoes and wear them without no panic from overcrowding and when you compare my dogs with those mastiffs which transports Heywood Broun or Jess Willard across a ball rm. floor why you won't wonder that the little woman sometimes addresses me by the alias of Cinderella.

Any way I ain't never wrote my stuff with my ft. but with my hands which I don't hardly ever get a manicure but what the artiste gasps at their sheer beauty before she sets to work to embellish them.

Sport writers probably receives more mash notes like the above than any other form of literati. If words could kill, old Hughey Fullerton would of went the way of all flesh as long ago as 1911 when he predicted in the public prints that the Athletics would make a monkey of the Giants in the world series of that fall and at least 50 per cent of the Giants took pen in hand to call him everything they could think of and to promise him violence if they ever had the pleasure of meeting him face to face. A similar shower bouquet of raspberries is mailed to Grantland Rice whenever it becomes necessary for him to forecast a defeat for Yale.

The athletes themselves is often terribly displeased with what is said about them in the papers, but hardly ever to the extent of writing letters to the one who give them offense. That would be too tough a job. Its bad enough to half to write to your Mrs. one a wk. and exclaim why you ain't sent her her share of your last pay check.

No, the athletes generally make their threats verbally, but the results is about the same as is showed in the following typical incidence of more than 15 yrs. ago.

Rube Waddell had been suspended for the usual cause by the St. Louis Browns and the fact was recorded by Jim Crusinberry of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch. "Wait till I meet that Crusinberry!" said Rube to everybody who would listen. "I'll break him right in two!" Well Rube was finally reinstated and encountered Jim in a hotel in Washington. "Hello, Jim," said Rube. "Have a cigar."

Mrs. Dumbly

The Boarders' Bath
The Morning Hegira
Racing O'er the Linoleum
She Left the Water Running

WHY is it that no critic has reviewed that timely human interest drama, "He Who Gets No Bath" or "The Boarding House Bathroom?" But then, what critic could review it better than myself? For a whole long week, while our furniture was being moved—pardon me, I mean "slung"—from one flat to another, Artie and I have played important roles in this tense tragedy of human struggle and desire for the unattainable—all which is a fancy way of saying that we're rooming with Mrs. De Beefhash who has one bathroom for nine rooms.

The action of the drama is exceeding simple, and so is the setting—a long hallway with rows of doors exactly alike. The landlady paces slowly down a long, flowered pathway of linoleum, which leads to the dimly sputtering light which indicates the bathroom.

At each door she bends her head in a listening attitude and at the bathroom door she pauses. It opens and a figure emerges—it is wrapped in quilted silk, its hair is wound on tins and draped from its shoulder are things which are eulogized in advertisements and displayed in store windows but never mentioned in polite society—all sopping wet. Even wetter are the stockings which hang over its arm.

At the sight of the landlady it attemps to hide those evidences of crime.

"What!" exclaims the L. L. "Miss Simpson, have you been doing your laundry in the bathroom? I told you yesterday that I can't let you do it. And especially at this time of night. Mr. Piffleblower, as you know, is in the Summer Zimphony Orchestra and he has to have his bath before he goes."

MISS SIMPSON slam wangs the stockings against the wall. "I have as much right to be clean as Mr. Piffleblower. I don't care if he does play in the Zimphony!"

Here another door opens and there appears a masculine figure wrapped in a noble flowing garment. Long, soft bath towels hang from his outstretched arms and in his hands he bears a mug with a brush in it, a tube of shaving cream, another of tooth paste, a toothbrush and a comb. His eyes are fixed earnestly on that dim light over the bathroom door.

Suddenly this beacon is obscured as before it appears a lovely female form clad in transparent garments. It, too, bears in its hands the implements of cleanliness.

They both look at the light and a glance of antagonism flashes between them. Suddenly they break into a run, racing along the linoleum. There is a clash of tooth brushes, the soft thud of soap, a swish of towels, as they come to a quick finish before the bathroom door, grinding their unbrushed teeth in baffled rage—for the door is closed and from behind it comes a faint dampness and a trickling noise as of water running over porcelain—the song of the hydrant!

Doors open up and down the hall and heads pop out. One of them belongs to Mr. Piffleblower.

"WHO'S hanging onto that room?" demands Mr. Piffleblower.

"I'll try the door. Maybe that'll hurry 'em up," suggests the L. L. rattling the doorknob violently. No response.

A lady with a cup and some bouillon cubes slithers out of the darkness at the other end of the hall.

"I've been waiting for an hour to get a cup of hot water. When do you think I can get it?"

Again the L. L. shakes the doorknob, although she knows that usually at the second attempt the roomer leaves the next day. No answer.

Heads pop out again like prairie dogs out of their holes and the L. L. realizes that there is a head for each door. Counting them as one counts one's blessings she finds that each room has an occupant. But then who is responsible for the running water in the bath tub?

As though in answer to this wordless question, Miss Simpson, she of the laundry and the wet stockings, speaks:

"Oh, I forgot; I must have left the water running and closed the door when I left. I'll go open it."

A needless offer. There is a general pad-padding of slippered feet in the direction of the bathroom.

"Wait, wait!" cries the L. L., lifting her hands in a dramatic gesture. "Mr. Piffleblower must have his first. He's in the Zimphony, you know.

Where do we come in? Oh, we hardly ever get in at all. We haven't learned the technique.

BREAKFAST at the PLAZA

One of the Sixteen Best Short Stories of the Year, Selected by a Representative Group of American Editors.

By FRED McISAAC

THIS story can happen but once in a lifetime—and it happens in very few lifetimes at all. It's all wrong, no question about it, and the author should be expelled from the authors' union, if he happens to be a member.

But what are you going to do when you are dealing with facts? Should you distort them to conform with copy readers' whims, or lay them down fearlessly and ask what the other fellow has got?

There was a chap named Rufus Wilkins who had worked up to be chief clerk in the office of Felton Amalgamators, which are something that you fasten to something else which gives better results than if you didn't—at least, the salesmen so claim.

Rufus Wilkins had graduated from Columbia at the usual age, full of pep and education and with so much ambition that it didn't look as if anything could stop him from being the youngest bank president or the most successful captain of industry at the age of 30 that the world had ever known. Something stopped him; it was a blonde stenographer he married a year after he got the job. If she were not enough of an obstacle, she presented him with three assistant obstacles, named Mary, Eloise and William, during the next six years.

So we find Rufus Wilkins, Columbia 1910, at the age of 35, asleep in his bed in his flat in East Forty-ninth street, upon the morning when this truthful tale begins. As a result of 16 years of close attention to business, Rufus had risen to be chief clerk in the executive office of Felton Amalgamators, with a salary of $65 per week and a reputation for punctuality and dependability that must have been very gratifying to the high officers of the company, if they knew of it.

HE HAD a bank balance of about $235. If all his creditors were assembled in one spot at the same time, it would have looked like the annual meeting of some popular society. Mrs. Wilkins had been one of the prettiest stenographers who ever misspelled a word, and she had developed into an obese lady who thought the world was treating her badly and it was her husband's fault. Rufus himself was no longer the dashing youth of Columbia, class of 1910; his ambition had lowered its aim until it was pointed only at holding his job. Most of his hair had gone; he had developed one of those bookkeeper's mustaches, wore nose glasses, ready-made clothes and an air of apology.

Just the same, Rufus Wilkins was not an ordinary bookkeeper. There was something in him, a remnant of the fire of youth, a justification for an expensive education. To look at him, you wouldn't think it was there, but if he had been a regulation bookkeeper he wouldn't have done what we are about to relate.

So he was asleep in bed on this spring morning, sleeping as peacefully as though he had not forgotten to set the alarm clock and was already late for work. He went right on sleeping past 7:30, 8:30, 9:30 and 10:30. For the first time since his marriage, he woke up without being nudged, woke up completely rested, full of satisfied nerves, with a sense of well-being most unfamiliar to him.

For a moment he blinked contentedly at the bright light. Then he wondered where the family might be. Ah! He remembered that they had departed in a body the previous afternoon to visit his wife's father, who was dangerously ill, probably about to die if there was any doubt of it, the arrival of the Wilkins contingent would cause him to make up his mind.

By the time Rufus got dressed and bathed and shaved it would be noon, half a day gone. Why not be hanged for a sheep instead of a lamb and take the whole day off? Heaven knew he was entitled to a holiday, if any man in the organization might be. A holiday without a clamoring wife and sticky children to absorb his attention, a day in which he was absolutely free! He fondled the idea until it became a determination.

Grinning like a truant schoolboy, he called his office and asked to be connected with the second vice president, John Thompson, his boss.

"This is Wilkins, Mr. Thompson," he said. "I won't be able to be down today."

"You won't? Why not? A heck of a time you selected to tell me. Things are all balled up because you are not down already. What's the matter with you?"

THE lack of consideration evinced by the second vice president toward this man whose punctuality was noteworthy in the office slightly angered Rufus Wilkins.

"I'm not sick," he retorted. "I just happen to be unable to come to the office."

"If you're not sick what in hades is the matter with you?"

"A private matter."

"Attend to your private matters outside of office hours. I need you right away. Jump into a taxi and be here in half an hour."

A streak of stubbornness developed in the bookkeeper. He had waited long for this holiday and the second vice president was not going to bully him out of it.

"Sorry, Mr. Thompson," he said calmly. "I won't be down today."

"But I have to have those estimates on the Grew job!"

"Get somebody else to do them."

"Nobody here knows the facts."

"Then they'll have to wait until tomorrow."

His impudence almost terrified him. He cringed, for he expected Thompson to say:

"If you can't come now, don't come at all. You are fired."

Thompson, however, did not say that. He sputtered, grumbled and finally remarked: "If your business is so important, all right."

Wilkins hung up, then smirked at his reflection in the mirror. The telephone conversation had been a triumph, for it had convinced him of something that he had long suspected—his standing in the office was secure. An ordinary clerk who would not explain the reason for his absence and who refused the appeal of his boss to do a certain piece of work would have landed on his ear on the sidewalk. Thompson had caved in, and Wilkins knew that they couldn't afford to discharge him.

BY GEORGE! he felt like a fighting cock! He had talked back to the second vice president and got away with it. Now he was free, nothing to bother him, no wife or children around. Why, he was like a bachelor, a clubman, a man about town! What the deuce would he do with his leisure?

Well, he wouldn't cook his own breakfast. He would don his best suit, buy a flower for his buttonhole and breakfast in the Hotel Plaza. It would set him back a couple of dollars, that breakfast, but this was a red-letter day, a fellow was entitled to indulge himself once in 15 years.

Half an hour later, Rufus Wilkins strolled out of his two-by-four apartment near Third avenue in the east forties and sauntered through pleasant side streets to Fifth avenue, where he joined the well-dressed and leisurely throng which moved slowly northward.

Entering the sunny breakfast room of the big hotel, he allowed the head waiter to conduct him to a well-located table. There he settled himself, ordered a few dishes from the menu and accepted the morning newspaper from an attentive waiter.

The room was not full; it was dotted with rich-looking and contented gentlemen and a few rather plump and expansive appearing ladies. He glanced leisurely over the front page of the newspaper, then let his eyes wander about the room.

Crash!

It was the collapse of his pretense. Only a few tables away were two men; one of them, a portly, red-faced and irascible looking person, was no other than Benjamin R. Felton, president of Felton Amalgamators.

Caught!

Rufus ducked down behind his open newspaper, knowing that it was only a temporary refuge. Presently they would set food in front of him, and he would be forced to lay down the journal and eat. Then Felton would see him, demand to know what he was doing there and why he wasn't at the office.

For 15 years Wilkins had been seeing Felton, though the president rarely spoke to him. The old man represented Jove with his thunderbolts; minor gods transmitted his instructions. Of course, Felton would know his chief clerk, and though Thompson hadn't felt like discharging him, Felton would do it without hesitation.

Like a condemned criminal waiting for the order of execution, Rufus cowered behind his newspaper and heard the president ordering breakfast for himself and his companion.

By and by, the waiter, with a breakfast in dishes with silver covers, stood expectantly before Wilkins. He ignored the servitor as long as he could, but, in the end, surrendered. Rufus folded and put down his paper. Mr. Felton looked at him—and through him.

His heart stopped beating for a second as the old man gazed, then shifted his eyes to his plate. Glory be, the president had not recognized him!

Of course, it was not extraordinary, after all. Felton knew Wilkins when he wore his office face and suit; in his proper environment the president would have recognized him instantly. The Plaza, however, was not his regular environment, and Wilkins did not wear his nervous, business wracked, sleep lacking office face.

Instead, Mr. Felton saw an ordinary, well dressed man of 35 or 40, who seemed in some way familiar. Very likely he had noticed this man on previous occasions in the breakfast room of the big hotel. Felton had only given him a casual glance, and did not consider him further.

HOWEVER, the danger was not over. Wilkins fell upon his food and tried to keep his face down; his idea was to eat rapidly and get away before the big boss threw him a second and perhaps recognizing glance.

He could overhear the conversation at the president's table; as it was shop talk, it interested him. It seemed that Felton's companion was one of those wonderful persons called supersalesmen, the rare kind who evade purchasing agents and deal directly with big executives. This man was trying to land a big order of something. As Wilkins' superior, Mr. Thompson was purchasing agent for the company, and as Wilkins actually did most of the investigating and made the recommendations for purchases, in his opinion he was justified in his eavesdropping.

The conversation was exciting. The salesman represented an importer who had come into possession of a huge shipment of Chilean zennite; an ingredient which entered into the construction of the Amalgamators. It seemed that the importer had secured 2000 tons of the metal, through the failure of a foreign firm to complete payment for it, and was able to dispose of it at five cents a pound less than the market price, provided the entire shipment was taken. They did not have much time to waste on Felton; other amalgamator companies were in the market and President Felton would have to decide immediately if he would buy.

If she were not enough of an obstacle, she presented him with three assistant obstacles, named Mary, Eloise and William.

Zennite was ordinarily purchased by the 100 pounds; 2000 tons would last Felton two or three years. As the market price was twelve cents per pound and it was being offered to him at seven cents, it seemed a bargain, but it meant a big investment. Naturally Felton talked terms.

"If you will accept a payment of $50,000 and take notes covering two years, coming due three months apart, I might consider your proposition," said the old man.

"We have to have $100,000 cash."

"I can't do it."

"Let me step to the telephone. Perhaps we can come to terms," said the salesman.

Felton waved his hand. The salesman rose and walked out of the room.

RUFUS WILKINS was in a terrible predicament. He knew all about zennite; he was, perhaps, the only man in America who did know all about it. He knew that the Chilean Government had been holding since the war some 20,000 tons of zennite upon which the foreign buyers had defaulted payment. If the Chileans released 2000 tons of it, it meant to Wilkins that they intended to throw it all on the market, as fast as they could get rid of it.

When the news got out, the bottom would fall out of the market, and shipments to come would be sold for very much lower prices than the seven cents per pound which Felton proposed to pay. The Felton Amalgamators would be loaded with a commodity which its competitors would be able to buy more cheaply and would be forced to go through with the bargain because the selling concern held its notes as security for payment.

Wilkins was a very thorough person. Everybody had forgotten this board of zennite in the hands of Chile, because it was eight years since they had seized it; and 20,000 tons was considerably more than the world's yearly production of the metal. Even with the Chileans dribbling it out a tenth of their supply at a time, the price would flop on them and they would get only a cent or two for their last few shipments.

Felton's competitors, buying at such prices, could undersell him and put him out of business. Wilkins had never forgotten the Chilean supply of zennite and had always expected it to come out some day; therefore he had seen to it that the company was never oversupplied with the stuff. Probably the president had gone over his supplies, seen that he had very little zennite ahead, and had grasped at what he thought was a bargain, without consulting his office.

As an employe, it was Rufus' duty to warn the president instantly. To do so, however, meant to introduce himself, to call attention to his own absence from duty, to permit Felton to know that a clerk was giving himself airs in an expensive hotel. Suppose the old man refused to listen to him, put the deal through and fired him? Rufus' knowledge that the company would be out of business in two or three years would be small satisfaction for his own starvation and the suffering of his wife and children.

The world is full of capable, competent men who have a delusion that there is no other job for them than the one they hold; once out from under cover, they believe they will die of unaccustomed exposure.

WILKINS was loyal to Felton's: he had seen the rise of the company; he could not stand by to see it fall when he could save it. Even if he was to be fired, he could not permit the president to be tricked in this manner. He pushed back his chair, with the boldness of desperation, and sauntered over to his employer.

"How do you do, Mr. Felton!" he said, trying to appear confident and assured.

Felton looked up pleasantly. "Good morning, Mr.—er—aw—"

"Wilkins, sir."

"Wilkins! Wilkins!" Recognition dawned upon the old man; his face grew stern. "What are you doing here at this hour?"

"Never mind that now," advised the clerk. "Fortunately I overheard that bunk the man who just left was handing you. You didn't fall for it, did you?"

"How dare you question me? How dare to listen to my conversation?" exclaimed the president, who pushed back his own chair and stood up with a flushed face.

"I've been working for you for fifteen years and I don't want to see the company ruined," said Rufus.

"It need interest you no longer! You are fired!"

"Sssh! He's coming back," warned Wilkins. "Listen! There are 18,000 tons more of zennite coming out of Chile, after you've bought this shipload."

"All right, Mr. Felton," said the salesman heartily, as he pulled out his chair, but remained standing because of the intruder. "The boss says that he will take $50,000 from you, but no other concern could get such terms."

"I have an important office matter to discuss with this gentleman," said Felton, rather embarrassed. "This is Mr. Wilkins—Mr. Monahan. If you will excuse me for a moment, I'll step outside with him."

"Meanwhile, I'll tell them that we have closed," remarked Monahan.

"Not so fast!" returned Felton. "I haven't accepted your terms yet."

Monahan concealed his anger with a bland smile. "Don't delay too long. We have several salesmen out," he warned.

"I'll chance it. Come, Mr. Wilkins."

THEY walked into the lobby, where Felton confronted his clerk excitedly.

"Now, young man, repeat what you were saying in there!"

"I'm through," said Wilkins quietly. "I'm discharged."

"Don't be an ass," said the president hastily. "I was a bit hasty, but I couldn't understand why you were not at the office. Never mind that now. How do you know there are 18,000 tons of this stuff to be released?"

"It's my business to know," replied Wilkins. "I read Spanish and since we have been buying this stuff I have been reading the Valparaiso papers. I know they took over from their own people some 20,000 tons of zennite in 1917. They have held it, waiting for a favorable time to sell it. There is a new government down there that wants cash and it is evidently shipping the stuff out quietly. This fellow told you that they were getting it from the Chilean Government. What more proof do you need?"

"Thompson talked this purchase over with me. Why didn't he know about this 20,000 tons?"

"He should have," returned Wilkins. "I told him about it six years ago. There has never been an occasion to speak of it since, and I suppose he forgot it."

"Hum! Damn expensive bit of forgetfulness! I'll have your statement verified, Mr. Wilkins, and meanwhile I'll let somebody else secure Mr. Monahan's bargain. If what you say is true, the price of zennite will drop to nothing. Go right down to the office and tell Mr. Thompson not to buy anything until I see him."

"He wouldn't make any purchase without consulting me," said Wilkins jauntily.

"Indeed! Hurry along now."

But Wilkins was still suffering from his dementia.

"Pardon me, Mr. Felton, but I have urgent private business which keeps me from the office today. I have already informed Mr. Thompson of this."

THE president regarded him speculatively. "It's fortunate your private business brought you to the next table. Do you mind phoning the message to Mr. Thompson?"

"Not at all, sir."

"Thank you, Mr. Wilkins."

The old gentleman returned to the dining room, but Wilkins phoned the office and, finding Thompson out, left the message for him. Then Rufus paid the waiter for his breakfast—for the man was hovering outside the phone booth with his check—passed through the lobby and stood upon the steps of the hotel, contemplating the lovely spring day. There was a touch on his shoulder and he turned to see the angry countenance of Monahan, the supersalesman, much too close to his own to be friendly.

"Say," demanded the salesman, "what in hell did you say to old Felton to spoil my sale?"

Wilkins regarded him coldly. While he might be afraid of the president, he wasn't worried about salesmen, today or any other day.

"I gave him certain information."

"What information?" demanded the man less truculently. "I offered him one of the biggest bargains ever set before a business man. He was ready to close when you butted in and handed him some bunk. What was it?"

Wilkins was a free man on this day. He had escaped with credit from a great danger a few minutes before, and he was unperturbed. His brain was well oiled and functioning smoothly. That the salesman was really perplexed indicated to him that the man himself was deceived, that he did not know that he was selling something not worth selling. And it occurred to Rufus Wilkins that his information might be of great value to the seller, as well as the buyer.

"There's a reason why your proposition was no bargain. I know it and you don't," he declared. "Why should I give you valuable information?"

"See here, if you've got anything up your sleeve, we will make it worth your while."

"What do you mean—worth my while?"

"Will you come with me and talk to my employer?"

"I might. I haven't anything special to do."

MONAHAN clutched the clerk by the coat sleeve and drew him into a taxi, which went dashing through traffic, on downtown until they were very close to the jumping off place.

Wilkins was thinking furiously during the journey. Suppose this importer was stung, too! Suppose he didn't know that Chile had something up her sleeve! Unless the importer sold his zennite quickly, he was apt to lose a lot of money.

They entered the private office of Nickolas Redmund, head of the firm of Redmund & Walsh, just as he was preparing to go to lunch.

"Hello, Monahan!" he said cordially. "Close the deal?"

"No," replied the salesman, in dis-

"It was sufficient to unsell Felton."

"What do you want for it?"

The importer wrote out a check for $5000 and handed it to Wilkins.

He scrutinized it and put it in his pocket. Outwardly he was self-possessed, but inwardly he was jubilant. A check for more than a year's salary as a result of a breakfast at the Plaza!

"You purchased this zennite from Chile?" he asked.

"Yes."

"They have 15,000 tons more to sell as soon as they get your money."

Redmund turned pale. "How do you know?" he demanded. "You must be crazy. There isn't that much of the stuff in the world."

WILKINS told him what he had already told his employer, adding additional details. "They are out to get all the money they can as quickly as they can and you are the first to be stung," he went on. "Now that you have the dope, you ought to be able to verify it."

"Our agent in Valpataiso must be a crook," declared the merchant. "I don't know whether you are right or not, Mr. Wilkins, and I am not going to waste time trying to verify your statements. We haven't paid for the shipload yet and we can get out of it."

"You were selling it before you bought it?"

"Had to do that in such a big deal. We couldn't swing it all ourselves. We just have an option on the stuff. Now that I have the information you gave me, I could stop payment on that $5000 check and let you give the news to the trade. You're not as smart as you thought you were."

Wilkins' heart dropped into his boots.

"But I won't," went on Redmund, with a smile. "Your dope was worth it."

"How about a commission to me out of that check?" Monahan asked Wilkins. "I brought you here, and you cheated me out of a big one."

"Ten per cent," declared Wilkins happily.

"You are on."

The broker shook hands with Wilkins, who, accompanied by Monahan, went to the bank to cash the check so that he could pay the salesman his commission. The money came into his hands and he counted over five $100 bills to Monahan.

"Do you know what I'm going to do with this?" asked the salesman.

"No. What?"

"Sell zennite short. You'd better do the same."

"How do we know we won't lose?"

"How can we lose? We sell the trade that Chile has 20,000 tons of the stuff for sale."

"I can't do that. I made a deal with Redmund."

"He doesn't care. He's called the purchase off and is probably selling the stuff short himself. And you bet old Felton has had his broker on the phone."

Wilkins allowed himself to be persuaded. They sold zennite on a ten-point margin. An hour later the financial sheets got the Chilean dope from three different sources and when the market closed every body was selling zennite.

Wilkins got a ticket for the "Follies" that night. He bought it from a speculator and sat in the front row. A chorus girl winked at him, which gave him a thrill, but he didn't meet her at the stage door. He was a respectable married man.

AFTER the show he went to a restaurant and ate lobster salad and ice cream. He enjoyed the cabaret, staying until they put the lights out and returned to his apartment at 2:30 a. m. setting his alarm clock for 7:30 as usual. The lobster and ice cream engaged in a battle in his stomach and kept him awake until 4 a. m. When the alarm went off at 7:30, it did not disturb him. He slept through its clamor.

It was the telephone bell which finally drew him from his deep slumber, there is something about a telephone bell which will penetrate any trance. He rolled out of bed, glanced at the clock and saw that it was 10:30.

There was a woman on the phone. "Mr. Felton wishes to speak to you," she said.

Felton himself—on the phone! The president was speaking: "Mr. Wilkins, why are you not at the office?"

"You fired me yesterday, sir. Why should I be there?"

"I fired a clerk. I am now speaking to the second vice president. Thompson is through. I investigated yesterday afternoon and found out he didn't know anything about anything. Apparently you have been the whole works in his office. And now, Mr. Second Vice President, will you kindly come down so that this establishment can function?"

"Yes, sir, at once!"

"And say, Wilkins, did you have anything to do with the panic on zennite? The bottom dropped out of it this morning."

"A little, sir."

"Hope you made a killing. I did!"

Felton rang off. Wilkins, in a dream, moved about his chamber. The job of second vice president had paid Thompson $10,000 a year. It was unlikely that they would start him in at that figure, but he would surely get $7500. What a surprise for his wife! Although she nagged and crouched, she loved him and was loyal. He could do things for his family now. And if there had been a panic in zennite, he must have made a lot of money. He had sold the stock of the Zennite Corporation of America short at eighty-two. With trembling hands he grasped the telephone and called his broker.

"This is Rufus Wilkins, a customer, speaking. What's zennite quoted at this morning?"

"Selling at 45 and no buyers. It will hit the bottom before night," replied the clerk on the other end.

Rufus hung up, drew out a handkerchief and wiped the beads of perspiration from his forehead. The money he had played on the market had certainly multiplied! He had made a fortune. It could not be true.

He continued dressing, but dared not shave, because his hand was trembling to such an extent that he feared he would cut himself.

Well, he was entitled to it. After all, he was an able man, the only person in America who had all the facts about zennite. How lucky it was that he had remembered! He had even preserved the Spanish newspaper which contained the article regarding the seizing of the Chilean supply eight years before. It was somewhere in the apartment. How lucky he had learned Spanish. How fortunate he was in every respect!

HE WENT to his desk and looked for the newspaper upon which his prosperity was founded. He discovered it eventually in a pile of papers. He took the sheet to a table and spread it out, running his finger down the columns for the item. Here it was. He read it. Then his eyes dilated; he sank into a chair; his heart pounded furiously. Could it be possible? No! He read it again.

There it was in black and white. The Chilean Government had seized a supply of zennite upon which the buyers had defaulted payment—2000 tons, not 20,000 tons. He had remembered the item all these years, but remembered it inaccurately; 2000 tons—that was all there was. It was a great bargain at 7 cents. And Rufus Wilkins had prevented Felton from buying it! He had made the importer relinquish his option. He had caused a panic on the stock market all on misinformation. Instead of being made, he was a ruined man!

Mechanically, he took the phone to call his broker. He gave the number and got the clerk with whom he had done business.

"Oh, Mr. Wilkins!" said the clerk, "zennite is down to 30. Want to buy?"

"Buy? Buy!"—said Wilkins stupidly.

"O. K." said the clerk and hung up on him.

Wilkins tried to get the number again, but failed. What was the use? The jig was up.

Bowed and stricken, he sat at the phone for five minutes, then it rang sharply.

"Mr. Wilkins?" said the broker's clerk. "Bought your stock at 28. Congratulations! You make more than $20,000."

WHEN he had hung up, Wilkins lifted his head. He had a ray of hope. He might make some return to the firm which had trusted him. He would make over the $20,000 to Fred dent Felton. But that wouldn't save his job. And then he got the big idea. Excitedly he called up Redmund & Walsh, and asked for Mr. Redmund. His name brought the importer to the phone.

"Good morning, Mr. Wilkins! Thanks for your tip yesterday. I'm about $50,000 ahead on the market."

"Have you got rid of your option on the Chilean zennite?"

"No," replied Redmund. "I guess I'll have to forfeit the $5000 I paid for it."

"Want to sell it to me for $5000?"

"Yes. You can have it. Cash! What do you want it for?"

"It's a deal," returned Wilkins. "I'll be down and take it up."

In this way he repaid Redmund for the $5000 cash paid him for his false tip. That was something. But the idea was getting bigger. There was nothing the matter with zennite. In a day or two the truth would become known and it would shoot up again. Meanwhile Wilkins held the option on 2000 tons of it, and he could turn it over to Mr. Felton.

In 15 minutes he was in a taxicab on his way to the office. He had no trouble that day in getting admitted to the president.

Felton greeted him cheerfully. "Seen zennite lately?" he demanded. "It's down to 20."

"Close your account up quickly—at once, Mr. Felton! I'll explain when you have sold."

"Not me," retorted the old gentleman. "Tell me first. It's still going down."

THE confession was very hard, but Wilkins managed to get it out in time. The president began by being very angry; finally he began to laugh. In the end he patted Rufus on the back in friendly fashion.

"You pulled a bone," he said. "You were too damn cocksure. But as a result of your error I have made $100,000. Furthermore, I'll take that shipment of zennite off your hands. I imagine Redmund was paying about 5 cents for it, and we were willing to pay 7 yesterday. So that's a big profit.

"Now I'll take my winnings and which will shoot back to 70 or 80 as soon as this flurry is over. The only person who is stung is Redmund, and it serves him right for not verifying your statement. Besides, he was selling something he hadn't bought, and that is reprehensible—if you're caught at it."

"I don't suppose you want me as vice president after this!" said Wilkins.

"Not keep a man whose mistakes make big money for the firm? You bet-your life you stay! I fired Thompson because he was generally incompetent, not because of that zennite matter. Now, do you want to take your profits and buy zennite along with me?"

"No, sir. I'm through with the market."

"Good! I don't like to have my officers speculating—though this is a sure thing. Go over and take up your option and turn it over to me. Then go to work. Vice presidents are supposed to be in at 10, young man."

"Yes, sir," said Wilkins.

Oklahoman Wins Fortune and Bride in Arctic

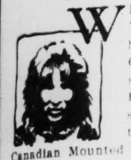
Frank W. Bezona Landed at Herschel Island Fourteen Years Ago and Said, "I Want a Job" —Now He's a Prosperous Trader.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine

EDMONTON, Alberta.



WHEN FRANK W. BEZONA, husky six-foot Oklahoman, stepped off a Frisco trading schooner and told the Royal Canadian Mounted Police detachment at Herschel Island, in the Arctic Ocean, that he had come to stay and was looking for a job, the hardened Mounties laughed merrily, ha! ha!

They needed the laugh, anyway, for there isn't so much to laugh at, on that little bit of rock sticking up out of the Arctic, on which the men of the northern headquarters staff spent their years of service.

About all Bezona had was a good pair of hands and a lot of grit and determination.

That was 14 years ago.

Today he is the proud owner of one brunette Eskimo wife, two kiddies, a $6000 schooner and a bank account. One of the children, little Tadjok, is Mrs. Bezona's child by a former husband—an Eskimo—who was killed on a hunting trip.

The other, baby Havokhok, has the proud distinction of having an Eskimo mamma, an Oklahoma papa and a $6000 trading schooner named after her.

Today, after 14 years, Bezona has come "outside," to Edmonton, capital city of Alberta—a little jaunt of some 2000 miles by water and rail—with Kelak, his Eskimo wife, and the two children.

When they go back they will take the $6000 trading schooner, named after the north-and-south baby, and spend the rest of their lives trading with the Eskimo along the shore-line of the Arctic.

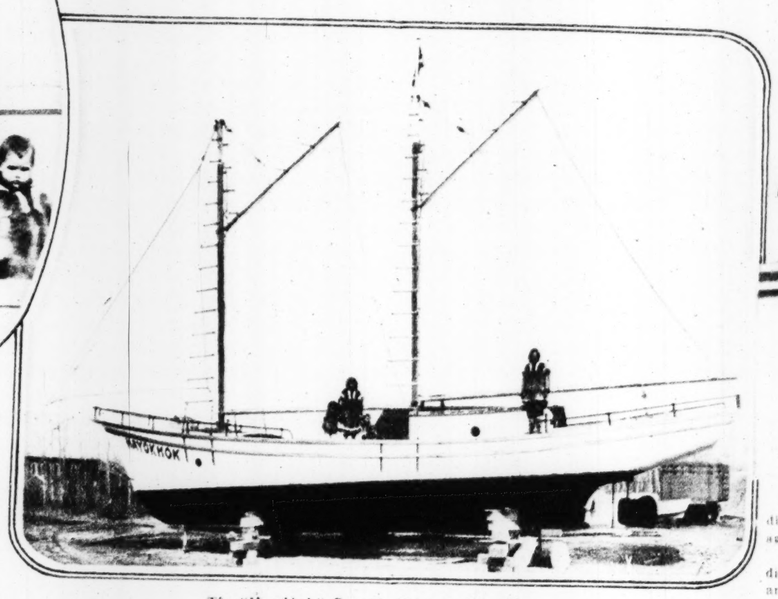
Back of this record there is a romance of the Arctic, a romance of real hard work.

THERE aren't many jobs to be had on a bit of rock island inhabited entirely by Mounties and Eskimos—and not so many of them at that—so maybe the Mounties are to be pardoned for laughing, even if their conduct to a visitor was rude.

Mrs. Frank W. Bezona, nee Kelak, and family.

"Better slide down to Aklavik—might rustle a job there," advised the Mounties, handing out smoking hot pork and beans and good advice, at one and the same time.

Aklavik is 60 miles south from Herschel Island. It lies in a more-or-less sheltered delta of the great Mackenzie River, just where that big volume of water, flowing north to the Arctic, breaks up into many streams in its search for access to the sea. Aklavik is the new "metropolis of the north," consisting of a postoffice, with a real Postmaster, who holds 15 other Government jobs as well. Also it is the northern terminus of the fleet of steamboats that ply up and down the Mackenzie River, in the short season of open water. Government radio headquarters for the Western Arctic, and the center of all the trading companies, including the Hudson's Bay. A dozen or more private traders also call Aklavik their home town, vieing with each other for the furs of the trappers, which they take in exchange for trade goods that range all the way from a packet of fishhooks, to an upright piano.



The "Havokhok," Bezona's 10-ton trading schooner.

"Oklahoma" Bezona went south to Aklavik in the delta, and announced himself ready to consider applications from anxious employers.

He got the jobs—lots of 'em. He learned how to run a dog team; how to trap and hunt; how to keep store, and how to do 50 other things. He lived with the Eskimo, who taught him how to hunt the walrus and the seal, the white whale, and the polar bear, and how to tell a spring-killed fur from a winter-killed one.

They offered him a job running the dog sleds to Herschel, hauling in precious mail sacks and bundles of papers, carefully wrapped in oiled silk sheets, and he took that, too. His old friends, the Mounties, hailed him with cheers, and showered upon him lavish hospitality.

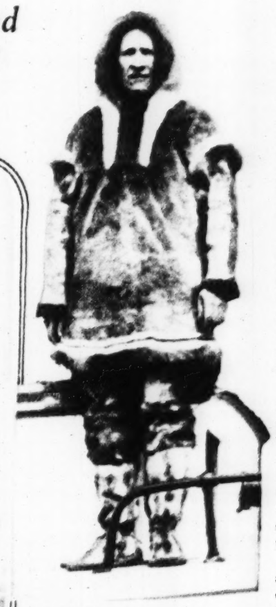
And, at the end of a few years, "Oklahoma" Bezona had some money saved up and made the big decision that finally led him to Kelak, the Eskimo girl widow, and Tadjok, and baby Hayokhok, and the $6000 trading schooner. He decided to be a trader on his own account.

THAT took nerve, too, to enter into a fight for trade with the Hudson's Bay Company and with the dozen or more private traders who knew to a hair just what every fur in the territories was worth.

But Bezona went into the game, and he stayed in it. Wider and wider grew his trading circle, and everywhere he went Bezona came known for his square dealing, and for his willingness to give rather more than a dollar's value in trade, for every dollar's worth of fur.

At the end of a 300-mile trip with his dogs, which swung him clear into Coronation Gulf, away off to the east, Bezona dropped in one day to say "howdy" to Chief Ipukwak of the Kogmolik tribe, in their ice huts on the Arctic's rim.

And there it was that he met Kelak, the chief's daughter, a comely girl-widow with one young son. Her husband, a noted hunter, had lost his life in an encounter with a polar bear, and somehow Kelak, though much sought by the Eskimo tribesmen, did not seem anxious to wed again.



Frank W. "Oklahoma" Bezona.

But "Oklahoma" Bezona was different. There followed a brief and tempestuous wooing between the man from the south and the brunette, bobbed-haired little Eskimo girl, and it ended with the young couple "standing up" before the Anglican missionary at Aklavik, while her father, Ipukwak, gave away the bride in real civilized fashion, for all the Kogmolik tribe are Christian.

But Bezona wasn't satisfied with the long trading trips far into the interior, with the slow, tedious battle along every mile of the trail, against snow and sale and fog. His idea of a real life was to have a big trading schooner, with sails for the breeze, and an auxiliary engine for calm days, in which he and his family could coast along the rim of the Arctic in comfort, trading with the Eskimo villages along the shore line.

Then came Hayokhok, the baby, and the determination to go "outside" to Edmonton, there to have built the dream schooner for which Bezona had saved and planned.

So by the very next dog-team mail went a letter to Cap'n Jock Matheson, himself an old-timer in the Arctic, and now one of the most famous of northern boat builders, telling him to build a schooner.

LAST fall, when the wild geese were flying in their V-formation due south ahead of the snow flurries that marked the near approach of another winter, the Bezona family said goodby to Aklavik for a while and followed in the wake of the wild geese, on the last southbound steamer of the season.

For the man, it was the first taste of civilization in 14 years; for Kelak, it was her first sight of trains, and a big town, and thousands of white people. Kalak liked the change, bought herself silk stockings and patronized beauty parlors, where she had her sleek black hair carefully trimmed.

Meantime, Cap'n Jock Matheson and his men were working away on the big schooner. Fifty feet long, with cargo capacity of 20 tons; with foresail, mainsail and jib; with the neatest of cabins, and a real anchor, and a pennant to fly at the peak; with an auxiliary engine capable of driving the loaded ship at eight miles an hour in calm weather—it will be one of the finest schooners the Arctic can boast. The big boat is almost ready now!

At McMurray, the end of the railway, willing hands will rig up a runway, broadside-on to the brown river, and there will be a christening when the "Hayokhok" slides down the greased skidways to receive the first cold kiss from those waters which will henceforth be its home.

Then Frank ("Oklahoma") Bezona, owner, skipper and navigating officer—with his little crew, Kelak, Tadjok and the baby after whom the boat is named, will sail away down the Athabaska River, across Lake Athabaska, into Slave River, across Great Slave Lake, and thence down the Mackenzie to where shine the lights of home, at Aklavik in the delta.

"The Champagne of Ginger Ales"

THE witchery of a wonderful flavor has made "Canada Dry" the outstanding ginger ale success of all time.

Somehow it seems as if the very spirit of the snow-clad hills and the stimulation of mountain air have been captured within each crested, emerald bottle. Poured into fragile stemware, this fine old ginger ale bubbles and dances like a time-mellowed champagne and bids you drink and be merry.

"Canada Dry" is a better, finer ginger ale because we make very definite efforts to have it so. In the purity and quality of its ingredients, and the perfection of the methods by which it is made, it stands absolutely alone. There is no other ginger ale like it.

Serve it tonight at dinner or when good friends call to spend the evening with you. It's a real treat for all the year—for every occasion.

LINCOLN

This Lincoln Sport Phaeton is much admired for its air of distinction combined with practical utility. The trim, yacht-like effect is emphasized by the compactly folding top which lies flat, attaining an unbroken sweep of contour. This is enhanced by the artistic moulding treatment. Folding tonneau cowl and second windshield, wider doors opening toward the front and other unique details, add comfort and convenience with a marked degree of smart elegance.

And to crown this rare body achievement, Lincoln engineers have given the word, Precision, a new significance in the building of fine motor cars.

(Above) GILDA GRAY basks with "Woof" in the Southern California sunshine. And sunshine makes her teeth, polished by Pepsodent, sparkle like precious jewels.

Those Smiles You Envy

Come Now by Freeing Teeth of Dingy Film

Remove Daily—This New Way Dentists Urge

THAT many of the commoner tooth and gum troubles, and most cases of so-called "off-color" teeth, are due to a film that forms on teeth which ordinary brushing does not successfully combat, is today's dental opinion.

Send for 10-Day Free Tube

Run your tongue across your teeth and you will feel this film—a slippery sort of coating. Film absorbs discolorations and thus makes teeth look dull and dingy. It breeds germs and bacteria and invites tartar, decay and pyorrhea. It is a menace.

Thus dental authorities now seriously urge that film be removed at least twice every day—in the morning and at bedtime. To do so, obtain Pepsodent—a special film-removing dentifrice most dentists favor. It curdles the film, then removes it and polishes the teeth to high lustre in gentle safety to enamel. It combats the acids of decay. It acts, too, to firm and harden the gums; thus meeting, in many ways, the requirements of modern findings.

Old-time dentifrices did not adequately fight film. That is why this modern protective way, as a twice a day habit, and at least twice a year calls on your dentist, are being so widely advised.

Accept this test

Send the coupon for a 10-day tube. Brush teeth this way for ten days. Note how thoroughly film is removed. The teeth gradually lighten as film coats go. Smiles become glorious.

SMILES ARE DAZZLING WHITE when film is gone. Teeth sparkle like polished jewels. Gums firm to healthy coral tint. Thus this new scientific way of dental care becomes one of the greatest beauty treatments of the day, and with its unique therapeutic and prophylactic qualities, a great aid in oral hygiene.

"The Same Little Pitcher—"

Used for years in making rootbeer from Hires Household Extract

"WOULD you like some rootbeer that I made yesterday from Hires Household Extract," inquired Mrs. Hamilton from the hollyhock side of the iron picket fence. "My Joe and the girls like it so much on these real warm days."

"Nothing would please me more," laughed Mrs. Adams, owner of the little gray house on the wallflower and sweet william side. "The children are always asking for rootbeer . . . 'the kind that Mrs. Hamilton makes.'"

"Oh, rootbeer is so perfectly simple to fix," Mrs. Hamilton went on. "I dip it up with the same little pitcher mother used to use. Hires Extract has been a fixture in our family for years."

"Yes, I intend to make some for my family very, very soon." And Mrs. Adams cut the last white sweet william for her pretty bouquet. She was wearing the brightest sort of smile as she turned toward the house, thinking to herself, "What a delightful treat for Betty and little Tom."

Our Ella has wished herself into a lovely job as maid to Mrs. DeWitt Spoopendyke, Palmtown's richest woman.....

MRS. SPOOPENDYKE IS THE DEAREST BOSS I EVER HAD— AND IF SHE KEEPS ON BUYING ME CLOTHES LIKE THIS, I'LL PROBABLY BE THE DEAREST MAID SHE EVER HAD!

I DON'T LIKE THE WAY HE WALKS, SO I'M GOING TO SEE THAT HE GETS A NICE LONG RIDE, IN AN AMBULANCE— AND I HOPE THEY GIVE HIM A HOMELY NURSE!

THIS COMES OUT OF MY WAGES— BUT IT'LL BE WORTH IT!

OGEEGOSH! HE'S COMING IN. YOU NEED DYNAMITE TO DISCOURAGE SOME OF THESE GUYS! BUT I DID THINK HE'D TAKE MY HINT!

IMAGINE COMING IN HERE AFTER ME— HE HAS MORE NERVE THAN A HYPOCHONDRIAC! I'LL GO DOWN AND GET MY BROOM AND SWEEP OUT WHAT'S LEFT!

BUT MY DEAR NEPHEW, WHATEVER HAPPENED TO YOU?

A GIRL WHO CAME IN THIS HOUSE JUST AHEAD OF ME CHUCKED A CEMENT MIXER ON MY HEAD!

NEPHEW! NEPHEW!! JOB, FAREWELL— I DON'T HAVE TO BE TOLD I'M ON MY WAY!

AUGIE, THIS IS ELLA CINDERS, MY NEW MAID— WAS SHE THE GIRL WHO DROPPED THE ROCK-CRUSHER ON YOU?

NO, SHE'S NOT THE GIRL— THE OTHER ONE WAS UGLIER, IF POSSIBLE!

YOU MAY GO, ELLA.

MY FACE MAY NOT BE MY FORTUNE, BUT IN THIS CASE IT WAS THE GOODS! IT JUST GOES TO SHOW THAT A GIRL IS ALWAYS TAKEN AT HER FACE VALUE!
